GIBBONS URGES MILITARY RULE IN HAWAII

Today

The Party Is On.
Parched Society Ladies.
The Usual Dead Racketeer.
Suppression Fails.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE 1932 POLITICAL party is on.

Gov. Roosevelt, who expects to be President, says national income, in the future, must be distributed differently. In good times, it is a big income, about ninety thousand million dollars, of which workers have been getting sixty thousand millions.

Talking in Atlanta to the students and faculty of Oglethorpe University, Gov. Roosevelt says a large part of our trouble is due to "selfish and opportunist groups."

PRESIDENT HOOVER, opposing great outlays for public works, says:

"We cannot thus squander ourselves into prosperity."

Norman Thomas, of New York, nominated for President as a Socialist, attacks corruption in both the old parties. Young members of the Socialist party paraded carrying American and red flags, singing the "Internationale."

Radicalism increases with unemployment, but the average American who believes that the red flag means blood, whereas the Socialists say it means brotherhood, still likes to see the Stars and Stripes traveling by itself.

FEW AGREE, yet, that our system of government is permanently a failure.

ENTHUSIASTIC American women, called by reporters "society ladies," learn with surprise that Dr. Colvin, of the National Prohibition Committee, describes them as "Bacchantian maidens, parching for wine—wet women, who, like the drunkards whom their program would produce, would take pennies off the eyes of the dead for the sake of legalizing booze."

Some that have studied society women in their lairs report no signs of parching. Any genuine "society woman" has money, and anybody with money, according to reliable witnesses, can get everything from a cocktail on through sherry, hock, champagne, claret, burgundy, port and assorted liqueurs.

The president of Radcliffe College for Women, Ada L. Comstock, who never drinks but opposes prohibition, will be especially interested to learn that she is "parching for wine."

THE HOPE of the thirsty, or "parched," was crushed to earth again yesterday when the House of Representatives, 228 to 169, defeated a proposal to legalize 2.75 per cent beer, with a tax heavy enough to bring in $500,000,000 a year and more.

Not even for $500,000,000 a year would the House abandon its ½ of 1 per cent fortress. It seems clear that the wets can THINK beer, PLAN beer and LONG FOR beer, but they can not hope to DRINK beer for the present, without violating the law.

THE USUAL dead racketeer incident. This time his name is Leon Goldstein, aged 19, and picked up with a bullet hole back of the ear. According to the police, he was called the "Ear Bender" because he bragged so much about his crimes and his willingness to murder anybody for $50.

There is nothing new in that boast. When the late New York politician, "Big Tim" Sullivan, devised the Sullivan law that deprives all except criminals of weapons, he said to this writer:

"I could have any man in New York murdered for $50."

IN TURKEY of late—thanks to world depression and other causes, including offenses against religious prejudice, taking the veil from the faces of women, the fez from the heads of men, permitting statues and portraits that Mohammed forbade—suicides have been numerous.

Kemal Pasha's government ordered newspapers to print no suicide news for fear of encouraging the habit, and now Constantinople newspapers are all prosecuted for publishing the suicide of Kreuger, Swedish financier.

Some newspapers and public men in the United States have treated our depression as Turkey treats suicide news, thinking they can cure it by ignoring it. They cannot. Plenty of light, free discussion, ALL THE FACTS are what every situation calls for.

MRS. EARHART PUTNAM, who flew across the ocean alone in less than 14 hours, going 2,026 miles without a stop, a new record for women, was herself again yesterday buying things to wear in London's West End shops. Everybody praised her, and she took it quietly. Young people who "wish they had a chance," a rich father to buy them an airplane or something of that sort, will notice how Mrs. Earhart Putnam got her start.

She worked for the telephone company, saved her money, paid for flying lessons with her savings, broke records, and achieved fame. Nobody handed it to her ready-made.

ERNEST J. LENGYUL, aged 19, wanted to become a flier, couldn't manage it, so he paid for a 15-minute air trip in Chicago, blew his brains out 3,000 feet above the earth, wrote to his sister:

"I wanted to die happy. That's why I did it in a plane."

He said he wrote to his sister "because you are the only one

MRS. JACK DIAMOND

MRS. DIAMOND IN FREAK SHOW

By MARGARET LANE
International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 24.—(INS.)—Mrs. Jack Diamond, widow of the slain racket king, has joined a Coney Island freak show.

For a dime you can go into a little cabinet with a tiny stage and hear her tell what a good husband Jack was. Would he ever have believed that on the strength of his name his widow would become equally good box-office with a midget, a pair of pin-heads and the Siamese twins?

"Hear from her own lips the incredible story of life in the underworld! Come inside, girls, and learn what it's like to be a gangster's wife!"

The barker urges the crowd forward. Mrs. Diamond smiles and smoothes the fold of her dress, and is ushered inside to do her stuff, the crowd pressing on her heels. Inside it is hot and filled to suffocation. In an unemotional voice the widow says:

"Jack was a good, devoted husband. A lot of people got him wrong, but the half that was said of him wasn't true."

Bank Bandits Raid Town for $400 Loot

LOVINGTON, Ill., May 24.—(AP.)—Five bank robbers spread terror through this town for two hours early today. They kidnaped the night watchman, wrecked the telephone exchange, forced the cashier of the Hardware State Bank to open the bank safe, and escaped with the loot, $400 in money.

Hoover Has Teeth Pulled, Says Friend

JAFSIE ASKS RETURN OF RANSOM

Note in Paper Urges 'John' To Give Back Lindy Cash And Get $25,000 Reward

BECKET, Mass., May 24.—(AP.)—Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon, Lindbergh ransom negotiator, who came here yesterday with Walter C. Goodwin of the Bronx, N. Y., to the summer shack of the latter, today through a representative of a Springfield newspaper, dictated a message to the mysterious "John" to whom the aged doctor tossed $50,000 of Col. Lindbergh's money in a Bronx cemetery.

The message was dictated after Dr. Condon had been informed that the state of New Jersey had offered a reward of $25,000 for information leading to the identity of the abductors and killers of the Lindbergh baby.

The message was as follows:

"John: Money I gave you is useless. You can't get rid of it. Return to Col. Lindbergh in time. Get your $25,000 reward. "(Signed) JAFSIE."

LAUDS REWARD OFFER

Dr. Condon said in his opinion the offering of the reward was one of the most excellent actions since the child's body was found.

He said he was convinced that "John" would accede to his personal request if he should see it and return the $50,000 in some manner to Col. Lindbergh.

A report this morning that Jafsie with his host, Goodwin, had left the Goodwin camp last night proved without foundation. Dr. Condon and Goodwin both remained at the camp throughout the night. Condon said he had enjoyed his first 10 hours' continuous sleep since he started his negotiations with the alleged kidnapers early in March.

The aged negotiator said his plans for the present included two days' stay in the Goodwin camp which he will spend in seclusion, guarded by the German police dog, "Nero," and his host.

Rosner Waives Immunity Before Lindy Grand Jury

NEW YORK, May 24.—(AP.)—The Bronx County grand jury investigating the futile $50,000 ransom payment for the kidnaped Lindbergh baby heard three witnesses during a three-hour session today and adjourned until June 2.

One of today's witnesses was Morris Rosner, one of the intermediaries authorized by Col. Lindbergh to negotiate with the underworld for the baby's return. It was the first time he was publicly brought into the negotiations conducted by Dr. John F. Condon, the "Jafsie" who tossed the $50,000 into a Bronx cemetery to an agent of the supposed kidnapers. Authorities did not state what angle of the case they desired to question him about.

Rosner signed a waiver of immunity before he went into the grand jury room, and he was be-

New Bishop

BISHOP A. W. LEONARD

BISHOP LEONARD ASSIGNED HERE

Bishop Adna Wright Leonard, of Buffalo, who took an active part in the 1928 presidential campaign, today was the new head of the Pittsburgh area of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was assigned to the local area at the general conference of the church yesterday at Atlantic City to succeed Bishop Herbert Welch, who goes to Shanghai, China. He is the son of a former Pittsburgh minister.

Bishop Leonard was speaker at a series of seven daily meetings which opened the Smithfield Street Methodist Episcopal Church, after extensive alterations. His father, the Rev. A. H. Leonard, was pastor of "Old Brimstone" in 1865-1868.

The new bishop is 58 and was born in Cincinnati. He is married and is the father of two children, Adna Wright, Jr., and Phyllis Day. He was ordained into the ministry in 1899.

Among other assignments at the general conference Bishop Francis J. McConnell was ordered back to New York, Bishop Ernest G. Richardson to Philadelphia, Bishop Frederick Leete to Omaha, Bishop Titus Lowe to Portland and Bishop Frederick T. Keeney to Atlanta. Bishop Edwin Hughes, at Chicago, goes to Washington to replace Bishop William F. McDowell, senior bishop of Methodism, who is retiring.

'JOY-RIDING' ON COUNTY GAS BARED

While the taxpayers were buying rugs for the Mayor's office they were also paying for the gasoline used by county employes to joyride with, the audit of the county's fiscal affairs has developed.

Although none of those officially connected with the audit would volunteer any information concerning the latest phase of the probe that has been under way for nearly six months, an authoritative source of information yesterday disclosed that after several hours grilling by the commissioners and the auditors Saturday C. C. Benz, chief clerk in the county purchasing department, made a clean breast of irregularities in his department.

GAS CHARGED

Benz is said to have told the inquisitors of an arrangement with the Peoples' Service Station, operated by Edward Kenna, former lieutenant of the preceding county administration, whereby county employes and others filled up with county gas and oil and signed the slips charging it to what the boys around the Courthouse humorously refer to as "The Great State of Allegheny."

A load of gasoline, approximately 4,500 gallons, ordered for the county parks, never got there, the audit developed, and Benz is understood to have given the probers the story of what happened to it.

SPRINGLE CALLED

The inquiry took place in the office of Commissioner C. M. Barr Saturday, with Commissioner C. C. McGovern and M. C. Conick, chief auditor of Main & Co., doing the quizzing. Called into the inquiry were Ray Sprigle, Director of Property and Supplies, who retained Benz as his chief clerk when he took office, Parks Director Paul B. Riis, county solicitors and a stenographer.

The People's Service Station recently was awarded the annual 400,000-gallon gasoline contract by the Commissioners against a number of other bidders.

U. S. GOLF ACE LOSES ABROAD

MUIRFIELD, Scotland, May 24.—(INS.)—Leonard Martin, of the Apawamis Club, Rye, N. Y., who eliminated Eric Martin-Smith, defending champion, in the first round of the British amateur golf championship here yesterday, was defeated by Martin Crowley, member of the Irish international team, 2 up, in the second round today.

Douglas Grant, a former California champion, also was eliminated in the second round by Edward R. Tipple, the well-known tournament player from Kent, 2 and 1, reducing the American contingent to four.

David Martin, California amateur champion, entered the second round today by defeating Leonard G. Crawley, British Walker Cup palyer, 1 up.

Joshua Crane, the Boston veteran, was upset in another first round match, postponed from yesterday because of darkness, by S. Forsyth, of Edinburg, 2 up.

F. B. Tipping, an experienced London player entered from an Irish course, was eliminated by Charles Sweeney, an American, entered from Prince's Club, Sandwich, 4 and 3.

Vicki Baum Shows Much Improvement

THE PROBLEM

LATEST official estimates of the State Department of Labor and Industry on unemployment in 18 Western Pennsylvania counties show: January unemployed, 276,694; March unemployed, 378,019. Increase, 101,325, or more than 33 per cent.

THE REMEDY

A $5,000,000,000 bond issue by the United States to build great public works, employ several million men, start the nation back to prosperity.

This Nation Needs A Prosperity Loan

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

ECONOMIC REALITIES are no respectors of political parties or of state boundary lines.

As aggregate national, state and local public works have been declining in 1932, general business and opportunities for employment in the United States have further shrunken.

Small wonder that public men and business executives have increasingly come to a realization of the need for dealing fundamentally with the economic crisis.

Almost a year ago, William Randolph Hearst stressed the need of a vast prosperity loan of $5,000,000,000 for the acceleration of job-creating public works. He envisaged the bond issue as a means of re-employment of the idle and as an instrument for social reconstruction.

MR. HEARST'S recommendation was consonant with the proposal of scientific economists that public works, regarded as an economic stabilizer, should be expanded in times of subnormal business and retarded in periods of boom.

The general scheme has been subsequently indorsed in a joint memorandum by forty-six eminent economists, members of the faculties of the principal learned institutions in the United States.

Of late, additional leaders in and out of Congress have expressed a desire to translate the plan into workable legislation, but there has been some disposition to deal with an economic emergency in a temporizing spirit of compromise.

The Hearst newspapers warn that economic facts do not change in accordance with political expediency.

Business and employment are distinctly more subnormal than a year ago and the need is for a robust stimulant.

CONGRESS SHOULD not be turned from a $5,000,000,000 bond issue by proposals of half measures.

The actual sale of bonds within any given period can be limited to actual need for funds to carry along work, and the emergency program can be tapered off, provided business and employment return to normal while the projects are under way.

No mere tinkering with symptoms can meet the situation.

There can be no effective substitute for jobs for millions who are able and willing to perform useful work.

Before adjournment, Congress should adopt a prosperity loan as a constructive, effective means of reversing the economic trend, and restoring happier conditions.

House Defies Hoover On Bonds for Relief

Garner Plan Basis Of Aid for Jobless, Senate Stirred

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—The drive for unemployment relief legislation, including a huge public works program to create jobs, continued unabated in the House today despite President Hoover's opposition to a bond issue.

The $2,100,000,000 program of Speaker John N. Garner was accepted as the basis for House legislation, which may be enacted while the Senate is struggling with tax, economy and appropriation measures.

While the Garner program was being whipped into form, a bipartisan committee of three rallied friends of jobless relief for a congressional mass meeting, to be held Thursday night.

ACTIVITY IN SENATE

Although unemployment relief agitation was largely confined to the House, the Democratic Senate leaders held informal conferences with administration spokesmen in an effort to harmonize views on the Democratic $2,300,000,000 program.

House Group Rejects Birth Control Bill

WASHINGTON, May 24.—(AP.)—The Hancock bill to legalize the distribution of birth control information was defeated today by the House Ways and Means Committee in a 20 to 4 vote.

TELLS HOUSE COMMITTEE OF PERILS

'Headline Hunter' Shows Islands Must Bear Brunt Of Any Attack From West

WASHINGTON, May 24.—(INS.)—Declaring that Hawaii is an American fort, Floyd Gibbons, noted war correspondent, today told the House Territories Committee that the island should be placed under military control.

With "one-half of the world on fire and one-fourth of the world in arms," an emergency exists which should receive the prompt attentoin of Congress. He said:

PRAISES HAWAIIANS

Expressing a spirit of friendliness for the Hawaiian people who entertained him and insisting that there be no discrimination under form of government, Gibbons told the committee that as an American citien he believed Hawaii should be treated as all other forts are treated. He said:

"Our primary interest in Hawaii is not the pineapples industry or the ukelele industry or civil liberties—that place is a fort.

"Onehalf of the world is on fire, one fourth of the population of the world is under arms in China, and Japan is fighting from Manchuria to the Southern Sea. An emergency exists."

He followed Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations and Maj. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of the Army General Staff, in testifying on the bill of Representative Britten (Rep.), to place Hawaii under military rule.

URGES ARMY CONTROL

Admiral Pratt asserted that the Army should have the right to take over Hawaii in an emergency. He carefully avoided any reference to possible conflict with Japan involving Hawaii, but emphasized his belief that any outpost must be subjected to absolute military control in time of war.

Gen. MacArthur told the committee that the question of Hawaii is boun dup in the whole national defense scheme, intimating that if Congress continued to emasculate the national defense the Army could not properly defend Hawaii.

Gibbons said he had read of the Britten bill in a New York newspaper and offered to help get some legislation enacted because of his studies of the situation. Frankly

TROLLEY PASS BAN APPROVED

The Traction Conference Board today approved of the abolition of the weekly street car pass as an experimental move to determine its effect on the income of the Pittsburgh Railways Company.

The company requested the board's approval of the plan in a formal petition May 4.

No definite time for abolition of the pass was announced by the board, but it was understood to be scheduled for the first week in July.

The weekly pass has been in use since 1925.

When the railways company's request was filed with the conference board, officials of the company pointed out that the income for the first four months of 1932 was $863,627 below the estimate made in the budget for the year.

Congressman Hawley 74 Behind in Vote

PORTLAND, Ore., May 24.—(INS.)—James W. Mott, State Corporation Commissioner, today was given a 74-vote lead over Representative Willis C. Hawley for the Republican nomination from the First Congressional District of Oregon, in latest revised returns.

After a series of see-saw totals, which shifted the lead between the two candidates, a checkup of the district's 802 precincts today gave Mott 30,814 and Hawley 30,740. The official count will be required to determine the result.

BINGHAM OFFERS AMENDMENT FOR PROHIBITION REPEAL

SENATOR ACTS FOR VOTE AT THIS SESSION

Some Drys Favor Move for Test on Resubmission, Foe of Volsteadism Says

International News Service

WASHINGTON, May 24.—In the hope of assuring a Senate vote on resubmission of the Eighteenth Amendment before its summer adjournment, Senator Bingham (Rep.), of Connecticut, today introduced a Twentieth Constitutional amendment calling for outright repeal of prohibition.

The amendment was in the form of a joint resolution and Bingham received permission for it to lay on the table. He said:

"This will enable me to ask for a vote on it the next time we get a morning hour. I have taken this step because all other bills and resolutions for resubmission of the prohibition question have been delayed in the Judiciary Committee and I believe this is the only way we can get action at this session.

"A number of senators, including several supposed drys have told me they would like an opportunity to vote on resubmission at this session."

STATE CONVENTIONS

His amendment provides for resubmission of the Eighteenth Amendment to state conventions. It would become effective if ratified by three-fourths of the states.

It reserves to states the right to abandon prohibition entirely or adopt any form of modification they desire. It would also empower Congress to regulate the sale or transportation of liquors in interstate commerce in order to protect the states which remain dry.

Meanwhile a demand by Senator Johnson (Rep.), of California, that Congress resubmit the Eighteenth Amendment before adjournment spurred the drive for modification of prohibition.

Johnson, who has seldom taken part in the dry battles declared the prohibition problem was one of those which should be solved at once. He said the tax bill, unemployment relief, the appropriation bills and a real economy measure should be enacted, too, before Congress quits.

Anti-Drys Pin Hopes On Next Congress

WASHINGTON, May 24.—(INS.)—Anti-prohibition sentiment has increased rapidly in the House in the last two years, but anti-dry forces are still confronted by a formidable majority in that body.

This situation was emphasized today as congressional observers pondered over the House vote of 228 to 169 against consideration of the O'Connor-Hull 2.75 per cent beer bill.

The anti-drys admittedly have a chance to overturn the dry majority in the coming fall elections, and leaders of the "wet bloc" predict that the next Congress will vote to repeal or modify the Volstead act.

A switch of 30 votes, on the basis of the vote yesterday, would yield the anti-drys their prized majority. With anti-prohibition organizations making a hard campaign and the wets admittedly gaining under the reapportionment act, even unbiased drys admit this is not an impossibility.

BILL FOR KLINE TRIAL O. K.'D

The bills totaled $1,882.47, divided as follows:

Bus transportation for 46 people, $57.50; automobile storage, gas, oil and other incidentals, $71.37; meals and rooms at the Nixon Hotel, $1,687.85; printing of meal tickets, $5; expenses to R. S. Whitely, a Chicago witness, $50, and telephone charges, exclusive of toll calls, $10.75.

The County Commissioners approved the bills and ordered payment.

There is a picture of "flaming youth" that will not wait.

WHEN THE Japanese went into Manchuria they knew what they were going for, and they are getting it. Their tax collectors are actually collecting, refusing the offers of local bribes, which had been one way of avoiding taxation. Recent anti-Chinese activities are said to have cost Japan nearly $100,000,000, a lot of money when translated into yen off the gold basis. But Manchuria will supply room for excess population, land to grow food, also coal and iron. Japan needs them.

Gibbons Warns of Hawaii Peril

telling the committee he neither posed as an authority on Hawaii or military affairs. Gibbons, in a conversational tone, gave the members his conclusions from long experience in roaming the world and his studies. He said:

"I belie this bill brings the situation before the country. Congress can investigate to see if a menace exists in Hawaii as I think it does."

DISTRICT DISFRANCHISED

Questioned by members when he suggested that voting all other civil liberties be denied in Hawaii, Gibbons reminded the committee that nearly 500,000 people in the District of Columbia are disfranchised. He said:

"Hawaii is our 'front door' in the Pacific. It is an outpost."

He pointed out there are 140,000 Japanese in Hawaii, that about 60 per cent of the population is Asiatic in part or in whole.

Expressing admiration for the fanatical patriotism of the Japanese, he told of three Japanese soldiers in China who strapped explosives to themselves, crawled under the barbed wire entanglements and blew them up along with themselves. Gibbons said:

"A legislator of Japanese extraction in Hawaii was quoted as saying that American admirals give him a pain in the neck. If a legislator made that remark in Japan it would be the last pain in the neck he would get."

He referred to Prosecutor Kelly's conduct of the Massie Case particularly in his cross-examination of Mrs. Massie.

REFERS TO KELLY

Kelly, he said, referred to Navy officers as "strangers who come here to administer our laws." Continuing, he said:

"That is the menace. The politicians are conscious that two-thirds of the people are Asiatic."

While the Japanese proved loyal citizens during the World War, Gibbons said a different situation might arise if Japan were not our ally. He said:

"I think it woul dbe a very bad place for our Army and Navy to operate."

Gibbons reminded there are Japanese missionaries in Hawaii, teaching Shintoism and the Japanese language. He said:

"From a religious standpoint they belong to their Emperor. The Emperor is their living God."

He told the committee that "if any one of these 140,000 people believed they could serve their God by destroying the docks at Pearl Harbor they would do it."

Gibbons said he thought the United States "had done very badly" by the Hawaiians, saying:

"The first thing we did was to import thrifty, hard-working Asiatics, who crowded out the primitive Polynesians who had lived an easier and more happy life."

VACATIONS FOR CONVICTS

The committee's interest was aroused when Gibbons said he attended a party given by the warden of the penitentiary in Honolulu who lost his job because he gave prisoners week ends.

The House hearings were suspended indefinitely, but Britten planned to press the bill for action in the present session.

Britten spoke of the heavy alien population of Hawaii and Representative Johnson (Rep.), of Washington questioned the accuracy of his statements. Britten said:

"If a search were made of Japanese homes in Hawaii I believe you would find plans to destroy docks and fortifications."

CLASH OVER JAPAN

When Johnson again attempted to block discussion of the Japanese question, Representative Douglas (Dem.), of Massachusetts, insisted that "this is the crux of the question."

Britten argued the bill be considered from a purely military standpoint. He said:

"Now is the time to consider the interest of the United States. I am sure no one will attack us from the West without first destroying Hawaii."

He declared that every officeholder in Hawaii "is first a Hawaiian and second an American."

Chairman Williams (Dem.), of Texas, announced hearings would end today, and that Mrs. Granville Fortescue and other principals in the Massie attack case will not be called.

K. of C. Seeks Ban On Religious Quiz

SCRANTON, Pa., May 24.—(AP.)—At today's session of the state convention of the Knights of Columbus the committee on resolutions was expected to report favorably on a resolution urging the enactment of a state law prohibiting inquiry concerning the religion or religious affiliation of persons seeking employment as teachers or official position in the public schools of Pennsylvania.

SENATE GROUP VOTES SALES TAX ON TIRES

Tubes Included in 10 Pct. Levy Adopted to Replace Charge Made on Imports

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service

WASHINGTON, May 24.—The Senate Finance Committee today voted a 10 per cent sales tax on rubber tires and tubes to replace its previous action in taxing rubber imports five cents a pound.

The committee also reduced the tax on race track admissions from 25 per cent to 10 per cent, and exempted mutual insurance companies from the corporation income tax.

Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, said it was decided to revise the import tax on rubber because it was felt the 10 per cent sales tax would not be so great a burden on the consumer as the proposed 5 cents per pound duty. He said:

"The tax by weight would have hit the consumer harder than the 10 per cent sales tax."

WOULD RAISE $42,500,000

The sales tax is expected to bring in $42,500,000 revenue annually. The weight tax would have brought $53,000,000.

The sales tax situation was confusing. Senator Reed, one of its advocates, declared it would be revived and predicted its adoption by the Senate. Other administration leaders could see no prospect for victory.

The sales tax would be offered by Senator Walsh (Dem.), of Massachusetts. It would probably impose a 2 per cent tax on manufactured products, to be paid at the source. Food, clothing and medicine would be exempted.

The demand on Congress for a sales tax has grown as opposition crystallized against specific excises in the bill. Industries which protested that a 5 or 10 per cent tax would drive them into bankruptcy appealed for the general sales tax and announced their willingness to pay a fair share of the tax burden. This demand may have some effect on the Senate.

FARM AID PLAN OFFERED

While demands for adoption of a general sales tax increased, the Senate's warfare over the new revenue bill swerved today from taxes to the export debenture plan for farm relief.

Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, offered this plan as a rider to the tax measure, after a coalition wrote import taxes on oil, gasoline, coal, lumber and copper into the list of new levies approved by the Senate.

TEXANS READY TO BACK GARNER

HOUSTON, Tex., May 24.—(INS.)—Unanimous indorsement of John N. Garner, the native son, as the party's presidential nominee was a foregone conclusion today as Texas Democrats gathered for the state party convention.

The convention, however, was sharply divided on the question of platform proposals on the prohibition issue, with a substantial group of leaders apparently in a position to guide the convention along a harmony course on the issue.

Outspoken anti-drys and liberals of the party, showing their first real power in 14 years, were determined, however, to bring the party to a firm stand on the issue of repeal.

Leaders in the Garner movement have counselled that any expression at this time on prohibition might injure Speaker Garner's chances.

JERSEY BACKS SMITH

TRENTON, N. J., May 24.—(AP.)—Without a dissenting voice the New Jersey delegation to the Democratic national convention today indorsed the candidacy of Alfred E. Smith for president. New Jersey has 32 votes in the convention.

Today's vote came during a "pep meeting" of the Jersey delegation preceding the state convention. Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City, Democratic state leader, advocated support for Smith, former Governor of New York state and the Democratic standard bearer in the 1928 presidential race.

Prior to today's action there had been widespread belief that the delegation would cast its first ballot for Gov. A. Harry Moore.

Before the meeting Mayor Hague indicated his belief that Gov. Moore's chances as a possible vice presidential candidate were as good as any one else's.

JAFSIE SEEKS RANSOMRETURN

fore the investigating body one hour and 45 minutes.

EDITOR TESTIFIES

The other witnesses examined today were Gregory F. Coleman, former pupil of "Jafsie's" and now assistant city editor of the Bronx Home News, the newspaper in which Dr. Condon first published his "Jafsie" advertisements, and Detective Sergt. James Finn, of the New York police department and friend of Col. Lindbergh, who has been connected with the New York investigation into the kidnaping.

Coleman was before the grand jury an hour. Serg. Finn, who had testified at an earlier session of the grand jury last week, was in the jury room for 15 minutes.

When the grand jury recessed it was not certain what witnesses would be called when it reconvenes June 2, but it was believed they will include two men who attempted to negotiate for the return of the child to its parents.

Hope $25,000 Reward Will Bring Gang Betrayal

HOPEWELL, N. J., May 24.—(AP.)—The state offered $25,000 reward today in the hope some one with inside knowledge would "squeal" and break the Lindbergh murder mystery wide open.

The reward measure passed the Legislature at Trenton overwhelmingly last night, and Gov. A. Harry Moore signed it today.

Gov. Moore later issued a proclamation offering the reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the kidnapers.

After signing the bill in his ante-chamber at the state house, Gov. Moore told his secretary, John Tooey, to notify Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of state police, that the reward would be available immediately.

Col. Schwarzkopf was instructed to send circulars telling of the reward to police throughout the country.

Senator Emerson L. Richards, of Atlantic County, said:

"No crime has ever tugged at the heartstrings of the world as has the kidnaping and killing of the Lindbergh baby.

"The world is waiting to see what New Jersey is going to do. Under the circumstances we are justified in offering this large reward."

PINCHOT TO AID VOTE MACHINE PROBE HERE

Harris Also Gets Beamish Promise to Assist Inquiry In $1,200,000 Transaction

HARRISBURG, May 24.—(AP.)—Senator Frank Harris, of Pittsburgh, chairman of the State Senate Voting Machine Investigating Committee, yesterday conferred with state officials on the question of continuing the inquiry into the purchase of voting machines for Allegheny County.

Gov. Pinchot told Harris he would be glad to do anything he could to assist him in continuing the inquiry and Secretary of the Commonwealth Richard J. Beamish offered him and the committee the resources of his office.

$1,200,000 DEAL

The committee two weeks ago began an investigation into the contract of the Allegheny County Commissioners for purchase of 1,100 American voting machines from the Poole Company, of Maryland, for approximately $1,200,000. It learned that four men, Hiram Hirsch, Frank Hirsch, E. N. Rosenthal and C. G. Brown, all of Pittsburgh, had formed a pool to secure the contract of the commissioners for the purchase of American voting machines.

When the contract was awarded, the syndicate or pool received $169,000 in commissions. After ascertaining that this money was divided among the four men in cash and that there were no bank records of what they did with the money, the committee, by a vote of two to one decided against inquiring into the personal affairs of the quartet. This blocked an attempt to determine what was done with the money.

COMMITTEE QUITS

After concluding its inquiry here and adjourning to Pittsburgh, the committee again became involved over this question and, by a vote of 2 to 1 adjourned. Harris, the minority member of the committee, came here yesterday to learn what help he could receive from the administration.

The officials said they promised to help him in any way they could. They said Harris made no particular request and that the nature of the assistance to be given will be made after he has made a definite request. It was pointed out that the Secretary of the Commonwealth, who has charge of all voting machine matters in the state, could start an investigation of his own in this case, but no decision has been made to inaugurate such an investigation.

KING STIRRED BY LINDY CASE

LONDON, May 23.—(INS.)—The intense interest with which King George has followed developments in the Lindbergh case came to light today with the revelation that the monarch and Andrew W. Mellon, United States Ambassador, talked of nothing else on their first meeting at Windsor Castle several weeks ago.

Some speculation was caused at the time by the fact King George asked the new envoy to remain at Windsor for luncheon after he had presented his credentials, an unusual procedure.

It was learned from an unimpeachable source today that almost the King's first question was regarding the Lindbergh case. During luncheon and afterward, the monarch plied Ambassador Mellon with queries concerning the kidnaping and evinced great interest in all phases of the case and of American crime in general.

De Jute Boy to Lead Niles Children in Lindy Tribute

NILES, O., May 24.—(AP.)—One of this country's saddest tragedies—the kidnaping and death of little Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr.—will bring a new and greater significance for Memorial Day this year to the children of this community.

Children not much older than Baby Charles will join with all the school children of Niles in a special tribute to his memory. And leading them will be one of their own number, who also was kidnaped, but who fortunately was rescued unharmed.

With simple ceremony the children of Niles will plant a weeping willow tree beside a wading pool where its branches will shade children at play for many years to come. This will be their memorial to the little child of Charles Augustus and Anne Morrow Lindbergh.

The first spade of dirt in the planting will be turned by James DeJute, Jr., 11, the Niles boy who was kidnaped March 2, just a few hours after the Lindbergh baby was stolen. Jimmie was rescued three days later, with two captors, in a secret chamber of a deserted gambling house. Both of these men have been sentenced to the Ohio Penitentiary while a third supspect is under arrest.

Jimmie pointed at Lauri, who was arrested at Weirton, W. Va., early yesterday, said said:

"That's the man."

AMELIA VISITS PRINCE OF WALES IN BORROWED CLOTHES

FAILS TO WEAR GOWNS BOUGHT IN LONDON

Entertained in Library by British Heir; Plays Host To Air Women of Empire

By LINTON WELLS
International News Service.

LONDON, May 24.—Amelia Earhart Putnam called on the Prince of Wales today and didn't dress up for the occasion.

The daring flier, the first woman ever to cross the Atlantic in an airplane alone, arrived at York House, St. James' Palace, at 3:03 p. m., three minutes late.

She was attired in the same navy blue suit she has worn since her arrival in London—a costume borrowed from Mrs. David Finley, wife of the honorary first secretary of the American embassy.

BOUGHT NEW CLOTHES

This occasioned some surprise, as Mrs. Putnam spent two hours and a half buying all sorts of clothing yesterday, and it was anticipated she would wear one of her new afternoon gowns for her meeting with the heir to Britain's throne.

Driving up to the ancient palace in an embassy automobile, Mrs. Putnam slipped in through the rear courtyard to avoid the crowds. She reached the entrance to York House virtually unnoticed.

Mrs. Putnam spent 47 minutes alone with the prince. On her departure he accompanied her to her car, assisted her to enter and stood rubbing his hands and bowing until she drove away. The prince was dressed in a double-breasted gray suit and wore no hat.

Riding back to the embassy, Mrs. Putnam refused to discuss her audience with the prince, contenting herself by saying:

"We just talked shop. That is, we did a little 'ground flying.' Most of the interview consisted of exchanging flying experiences."

WALES 'CHARMING'

Asked what she thought of the prince, she said:

"He is just what I expected—charming."

Mrs. Putnam wore a dark pink rose given her by the Prince. She said:

"I told him all about the flight and he warmly congratulated me."

She revealed that she had just received a belated message of congratulations from King George, which went astray Sunday, but pleased her greatly. She refused to disclose its contents.

Returning to the Embassy Mrs. Putnam disclosed she had changed her plans and would not attend the international congress of aviators in Rome. Her husband expects to sail for England Friday, she said, and after she has made a hurried trip to Paris they will return to New York together, sailing June 9.

FLIERS DISCUSS AIR PROBLEMS

ROME, May 24.—(AP.)—Regular air service between Europe and America could be developed if a method were devised of making an airplane alight on water even if fog were so thick that it was impossible for the pilot to see the surface, Harold Gatty, Australian who went around the world in eight days with the American Wiley Post in 1931, told the trans-oceanic fliers convention today.

Gatty suggested a North Atlantic route by way of Greenland, Iceland and Labrador.

Wolfgang von Gronau, who flew 4,670 miles from Germany to Chicago via Greenland, said it was possible to alight in fog by gradually coming down to a level of nine feet above the sea, when the water is visible, or by trailing a hundred feet of wire which lights a lamp on the instrument board the moment it touches the water.

The day when airplanes will cross the South Atlantic in six hours and the North Atlantic in 10 was foreseen by Dieudonne Coste, Paris-to-New York flier. He gave trans-Atlantic aviation a brilliant future, but a dull present.

Graf to Lead Autos In 'Run, Sheep Run'

FRIEDERICHSHAFEN, Germany, May 24.—(AP.)—The Graf Zeppelin will take a day off from its long and steady non-stop trips to South America late this month to join in a little game of "run, sheep, run" with a flock of automobiles.

The big dirigible will be the leader in the game. Equipped with colored sheets of paper it will start off on a ramble over the countryside, laying down a trail by dropping the colored marks on the ground. The automobiles will then take up the chase and the prizes will go to those which follow the trail best.

Japan Will Permit Sea Flight Landing

TOKIO, May 24.—(INS.)—A permit to allow the American flier, Nathan Browne, to land in Japan on a flight from Seattle, Wash., probably will be granted tomorrow, officials of the ministry of communications said today.

It was pointed out Browne was anxious to reach here by June 1, the date on which a contest offering $25,000 for such a flight expires.

BERLIN CROWDS CHEER DO-X

BERLIN, May 24.—(INS.)—While thousands cheered in the streets below, the giant air liner DO-X flew over Berlin at 6:12 p. m. today (1:12 p. m. Pittsburgh time) on its way back to Friedrichshafen, Germany, after its trans-Atlantic flight. The huge craft made good time on its flight from Southampton, England.

After circling the city several times the DO-X descended on the surface of Lake Mueggel.

At least 100,000 persons lined the shores of the lake, a popular resort in the southeastern part of the city. Marine police held back thousands of water craft whose occupants tried to steer close to the DO-X for a glimpse of the huge seaplane.

Aviatrix Follows Highway Wrong Way

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(INS.)—Phoebe Omlie, aviatrix, can't be last in the air, but on the ground she's not so good.

Piloting an automobile, she won as a prize in the cross-country airplane flights last year, Mrs. Omlie left St. Louis for Memphis. She got all mixed up in traffic and finally located Highway 61, to Memphis.

"It was the right highway but the wrong direction," Mrs. Omlie told friends.

She went several miles beyond the St. Louis city limits before discovering she was headed north instead of south.

MYSTERY MAN BALKS QUIZ ON SHIP BLAST

Held as Duquesne, Refuses To Talk on Fatal Sinking; Cleared of Kitchener Link

NEW YORK, May 24.—(AP.)—A man seized as a spy after a 13-year hunt insisted in the police lineup today that he was not the fugitive sought by police for murder in connection with the sinking of the steamer Tennyson off Brazil in 1916.

Police claim the man is Capt. Fritz Joubert Duquesne, one-time Boer rebel, soldier of fortune and alleged German spy, who sawed the bars of a window of Bellevue Hospital and escaped in 1919 and fled to Mexico.

But the man, who was arrested yesterday at the offices of the Quigley Publishing Company, claims he is Frank De Stafford Craven, a critic.

REFUSES TO ANSWER

In the police lineup today he refused to answer questions of Assistant Chief Inspector John J. Sullivan, who read the charge on which he was arrested—murder on the high seas preferred by the British government. The suspect said:

"I have nothing to say. I want to see my lawyer before I'll make any statement. I don't intend to supply the British government with any information concerning myself."

Police regarded the prisoner's last statement as a slip, pointing out that the real Duquesne was best known for his hostility to the British government, and that if the prisoner were not Duquesne he would have nothing to fear from telling about himself.

Authorities—meanwhile—are relying on the memory for faces of old-time police officials for complete identification. Apparently the man's fingerprints, if any were taken, were not on file. Several old police officials already have identified the prisoner as Duquesne.

Three seamen lost their lives in the sinking of the Tennyson. It was charged at the time that Duquesne shipped several mysterious cases which were stored near the place where the explosion on the liner subsequently occurred.

KITCHENER LINK

From London, after the arrest, came cabled information that Duquesne, who recently wrote a book making the claim he was responsible for the death of Earl Kitchener in the North Sea when H. M. S. Hampshire went down mysteriously, had been reported cleared of that offense.

He had been interviewed, the message said, by Col. Norman Thwaites, former head of the British intelligence service in the United States, who said:

"My records show that in June, 1916, when the Hampshire was sunk, Duquesne was in America."

RECTOR IN RAGE DURING QUIZ OVER GIRLS

Shouts at Prosecutor From Witness Stand; Scores 'Evil-Minded Gossips'

By H. K. REYNOLDS
International News Service.

LONDON, May 24.—An indignant outburst from the witness stand caused an uproar today in Consistory Court, where the Rev. Harold Francis Davidson, rector of Stiffkey Church, Norfolk, is on trial on charges involving a score of girls.

The outburst came when Attorney Oliver for the prosecution attempted to question the 60-year-old clergyman regarding Lottie Green, a domestic servant. Davidson said he was unable to remember the details of an incident in 1915. He shouted from the stand:

"I've been gossipped about by evil-minded people in connection with every young girl I've tried to help."

Davidson was quieted down with difficulty and the questioning proceeded. The clergyman soon flared up again, however, accusing the prosecution of "dirty tricks" in questioning him regarding "private family affairs."

Oliver referred to evidence that the rector was called "the Mormon" by some of his acquaintances. The rector said:

"That's because I associate with so many young people. I joke about it myself."

Davidson admitted that he had not always followed the advice of St. Paul to "avoid the appearance of evil." He observed:

"That's why I'm here."

RIDICULOUS GOSSIP

The clergyman told the court how certain persons chose to describe his activities in the past. He said:

"I remember a friend who used to speak about 'Mr. Davidson and his harmless harem.' It was ridiculous gossip."

Oliver suggested that Davidson was particularly interested in girls about the age of 16. The rector replied:

"I like to get hold of them from 14 to 21. It's the most impressionable age for sowing the best thoughts in girls who are going to become the mothers of future generations."

The attorney observed:

"If you were judged by the standards of ordinary men you agree that you'd be convicted in this case?"

The rector retorted:

WALKER INCOME SIFTED BY U. S.

NEW YORK, May 24.—(AP.)—Uncle Sam stepped on the stage in the Walker-Seabury drama today as New York's spick and span mayor prepared for his question and answer duel with Samuel Seabury.

Federal officials, it was disclosed, are investigating Mayor James J. Walker's income tax returns as the result of information dug up by Seabury, who has been burrowing into the city administration's record for months.

The federal men, headed by U. S. Attorney George Z. Medalie, began their inquiry after Seabury, counsel for a legislative committee of inquiry, unearthed testimony that J. A. Sisto, taxicab financier, had given the Mayor $26,500 in bonds.

Seabury, placing Walker on the stand tomorrow in the climatic drive of the long investigation, is expected to ask him the reason for this alleged gift from a casual acquaintance.

BANDIT SEARCH LEADS TO W. VA.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., May 24.—(AP.)—Capture of four killing bank robbers appeared no nearer today, although officers of three states combined in efforts to apprehend them.

The men who yesterday took $23,000 belonging to the Mahoning Trust Company and killed Patrolman Clarence Campbell were reported to be hiding in a West Virginia village, but police refused to say what place was being watched. Ohio territory is also being searched, as are several sections of Pennsylvania.

The gunmen executed their crime shortly before the bank opened yesterday morning. They fled toward Beaver Falls, leaving behind a trail of roofing nails which they hoped would block pursuit by automobile.

These additions bring the total members of the women's anti-dry organization to 16,000 and the men's to 24,000, leaders said. Plans are now under way to carry the campaign to Butler, Greensburg and other nearby cities. The drive here was under the direction of Mrs. Joseph Dilworth, assisted by Mrs. G. VETS WIN RIDE, QUIT TRAIN AS TROOPS MASS

Bonus Band Promised Lift By Sheriff, Quit Cars Held Up Yards 12 Hours

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., May 24.—(AP.)—After delaying a refrigerator train for 24 hours, and bringing National Guard troops to the scene, 300 World War veterans gained their objective today—another ride on their way to Washington, where they will plead for bonus legislation.

The men, on their way from Portland, Ore., to the national capital, centered their attentions on a refrigerator train of 30 cars, at Caseyville, eight miles east of here, when Baltimore and Ohio officials refused to give them transportation.

TRAIN DELAYED

Clambering aboard the train, uncoupling cars, and using other means, they succeeded in delaying the train more than a day—until Sheriff Jerome Munie, of St. Clair County, promised them transportation to Washington, Ind., on motor trucks.

With that promise the doughboys released the train and peacefully pitched camp to await the arrival of the trucks. Meanwhile National Guard troops from six cities arrived here today, and prepared to go to Caseyville, if necessary, to preserve order.

The troops, under the command of Lt. Col. Robert Davis, of Carbondale, came from Springfield, Carbondale, Salem, Mt. Vernon, Paris and Cairo. Col. Davis said he understood his men would not be called to Caseyville unless new trouble arose.

AUTOS PROMISED

Sheriff Jerome Munie, of St. Clair County, ended the "boxcar blockade" by promising the veterans that they would be provided with transportation by automobile and motor truck to Washington, Ind. Once there, leaders of the group hope to obtain free boxcar transportation to the capital, where they will undertake to present to Congress their plea for a cash bonus bill.

The "expedition" organized at Portland, Ore., traveled by freight trains to St. Louis, but after it had crossed the Mississippi River it found its progress blocked by the determination of Baltimore and Ohio Railroad officials to prevent the group's riding on trains of that line. Until last night, the railroad had moved eastward only one freight train since arrival of the veterans Saturday.

HOSPITAL FUND APPEAL ARGUED

The suspended payment of the state's $160,000 appropriation for St. Francis Hospital, provided by the 1929 Legislature, was before the State Supreme Court in Harrisburg today.

Arguments were heard on the state's appeal from a Dauphin County Court ruling that the hospital was sectarian and therefore ineligible for state aid. The state denied claims of the Constitutional Defense League that, regardless of its ownership by the Sisters of the Third Order of St. Franciscus, was non-sectarian.

The court also heard arguments on the defense league's appeal of a Dauphin County Court decision which held constitutional the $7,151,500 omnibus appropriations bill of 1931 giving state aid to 162 hospitals.

COAL OPERATOR, LEWIS CLASH OVER BILL

United Mine Workers' Head Protests Against Attacks Being Made on Union

WASHINGTON, May 24. (AP.)—C. A. Cabell, West Virginia coal mine operator, and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, engaged in a wordy dispute today at a Senate Committee hearing on the Davis-Kelly bill for federal regulation of the bituminous industry.

Cabell asserted that the bill apparently was conceived from suggestions of United Mine Workers officials and that that organization has engaged in compulsory bargaining "under the cloak of collective bargaining."

LEWIS PROTESTS

Interrupting, Lewis protested against what he said were "unwarranted, vicious attacks on the United Mine Workers of America which can't be substantiated in fact."

When Cabell, president of the Carbon Fuel Company and the Kanawha Coal Operators Association, continued his references to the mine workers, Lewis again broke in to object to "going back 30 years to air his grievances against the United Mine Workers of America." Cabell replied:

"I'm not airing any grievances against the United Mine Workers. I settle those on the ground."

Lewis asked sharply:

"With a machine gun?"

"Not any more than you do in the brush."

NO COMPULSION

As Cabell continued, Senator Davis (Rep.) of Pennsylvania, asserted the bill would not force the operators to deal with the United Mine Workers. Davis said:

"If you're going to deal in personalities I know they can say a lot of mean things about the coal operators, not alone in Pennsylvania but in West Virginia as well."

Cabell returned:

MINE SNIPERS, GUARDS BATTLE

UHRICHSVILLE, O., May 24.—(AP.)—A machine gun fight between guards at the Wolford coal mine near here and snipers in the hills nearby broke out early today. Hundreds of shots were fired, but apparently no one was wounded.

Ivan and J. N. Wolford, brothers, owners of the mine, said the attack of the snipers was another outbreak of a wage strike of miners. The shaft was closed by the strike several weeks ago, but recently resumed operations on an open-shop basis.

The first shots were fired by the snipers, J. N. Wolford said. Several guards employed by the mine and armed with four machine guns, sent a hail of bullets in return.

The shooting continued steadily for about 45 minutes and ended when the snipers retired.

Presbyterians Go To Denver Meeting

A party of more than 50 Presbyterian ministers and laymen, headed by the Rev. Dr. C. C. Cribbs, moderator of the Pittsburgh Presbytery, left Pittsburgh last night for the general assembly of the church in Denver.

Among those who will attend from Pittsburgh are the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomas Kerr, pastor of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church and former moderator of the Presbyterian Church in the United States; the Rev. T. D. Imbrie, of Braddock; the Rev. Hugh Leith, of Mt. Lebanon; S. R. McClure and Edward Krebbs, of Pittsburgh.

Rob McKeesporter Of $128 and Truck

Hiding in the rear of his truck, four armed Negroes early today held up and robbed Zincela Smeznes, McKeesport poultryman, of $128 and his machine in Moon Run road, police reported. Smeznes told police he and a companion were en route to Ohio to purchase chickens.

He and his companion were driven to a point near the Summit House on the Beaver road, following the robbery, and forced from the truck. The machine was driven a short distance and abandoned.

UNION LEADERS SIGNING TO STRIKE

VICE PRESIDENT LEON LOADMAN JOHN HARVEY PRESIDENT PETER SIGEL

Officers of the Cleaners and Dyers Industrial Union and Mr. Harvey, of the Trade Union Unity League, signing the order calling cleaners, dyers to strike. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

DYERS GUARDED IN STRIKE

Police were protecting two East End cleaning establishments today as a result of a walkout staged by the Cleaners and Dyers Industrial Union, whose members are striking for the avowed purpose of protecting their organization, which their leaders assert was threatened by price slashing.

The only concerns to request police protection were the Consolidated Cleaning Shops, Inc., 5901 Bryant street, and the Paulson Cleaning and Dyeing Company, 625 Paulson avenue.

Two score union members and sympathizers were about his plant and injuring his business, Joseph Gerson, of the Paulson company, said today.

N. Roth, of the Consolidated Company, reported the strikers were carrying signs in front of his place.

Demands of the strikers include a 50-hour week for men, with overtime provisions, and a 44-hour week for women.

A survey of cleaning establishments throughout the county brought assertions from owners that only a few concerns are affected by the strike.

HIDE IN TRUCK, ROB DRIVER

Ralph Cayne, who lives in Boston road, near McKeesport, was driving from his home to Ohio early today, where he planned to buy some chickens. The truck was filled with blankets to cover the chickens on his return trip.

He stopped at Crafton for gasoline and a sandwich, he reported to county detectives, and two miles beyond, on the Steubenville Pike, three men rose from under the blankets, flashed guns in his face and took his $65 watch and the $168 for the chickens.

Communist Rally Blocked by Police

An attempt by Communists to hold a meeting at South Twenty-second and Wharton streets without a permit was frustrated by a squad of South Side police late yesterday. About 250 persons were dispersed.

HOOVER TOO BUSY ON BUDGET TO HEAR STARVING

TIME ONLY FOR BIG BUSINESS, SAYS WRITER

Winifred Black Finds 'No Maudlin Sentimentality' in 'Hard-Headed' President

By WINIFRED BLACK

SAN FRANCISCO, May 24—"Balance the budget."

That is the answer that Herbert Hoover, President of the United States and practical man of affairs, gives to the cry of starving men, hungry women and poor little bewildered fearful children who haven't had enough to eat in months.

What a relief it is to have a good hard-headed mining engineer at the head of the nation when the nation needs common sense and common kindness and plain common understanding of human hearts.

Nothing maudlin in that message of President Hoover's.

No sickly sentimentality there—not so you would observe it.

Railroads, banks, great corporations—that's the idea.

What do plain every-day Americans know about high finance anyhow?

NO BANK ACCOUNTS

Why, they don't even know enough to hang on to a bank account in these times.

Narrow-minded, small-calibered folks—all they can think of is food and a place to sleep and a job, a chance to hold up their heads in decent self respect.

How distressing it is to have to deal with creatures like that.

They don't discourage President Hoover at all.

He doesn't seem to have time to think about them—he's too busy "balancing the budget."

Sometimes, when we hear so much about that budget, and the trouble it is to balance it, some of us ordinary, every-day people who would love to have a budget to balance wonder just how long this national budget is going to be there, either balanced or unbalanced.

THE HORSE THAT DIED

You remember, of course, the good old lady who was training the horse to get along without food.

She stopped oats first, then she cut down hay, and then she shut the horse up in a stable so he couldn't overload his stomach with fresh green grass. And just as he was getting along beautifully with her system—the foolish, ungrateful horse died.

It would be rather an absurd situation if the aforesaid budget should get so tired of being "balanced" that it would lie down in a corner somewhere and die—wouldn't it?

May 24th—that's the date, isn't it?

Getting pretty close to time for Congress to adjourn and go to Chicago.

Getting pretty close to time for Congress to adjourn and go to Chicago to attend to really vital business of politics—

May 24th—only a few days left, gentlemen of the Congress, and you haven't even begun to whisper about one of three great issues that are tearing country to pieces today.

Unemployment.
Prohibition.
The crime wave.

Opening exercises were held in St. Francis Hospital School of Nursing. Miss Ruth C. Bower, directress of nurses at West Penn Hospital, is president of the league.

Miss Bower

Nurses attending the Tuberculosis League Hospital clinic were to hear Dr. C. Howard Marcy, medical director of the league, and Dr. H. R. Other clinics will be held in the Children's Hospital, Presbyterian Hospital, Mercy School of Nursing and West Penn Hospital.

Dr. Florence M. Teagarden of the University of Pittsburgh and Mrs. Theodosia Crosse spoke yesterday.

Nearly 100 nurses have registered for the five-day conference. Helen Pratt of West Penn Hospital is general chairman of the institute.

INJURED AIDING FIRE 'RESCUE'

Rushing into the smoke-filled hallway of a building at 815 Fifth avenue early today to rescue two unidentified men partially overcome by smoke, Frank Cardino, 24, of 41 Hooper street, suffered abrasions when he fell. The two men escaped by jumping from a ledge on the second floor of the building.

Discovering the building occupied by the Fifth Avenue Lunch Shop ablaze, the two men dashed into the building to aid another they thought they had seen in the structure. A short time later the would-be rescuers appeared at windows in distress. Damage to the building was estimated at $150 by firemen.

The second floor of the building, now vacant, was formerly a gambling resort which was held up recently by four men who escaped with $1,000.

PINCHOT CALLS 50 TO RELIEF PARLEY

Father Cox Among Group of Pittsburghers Invited To Meeting on Thursday

HARRISBURG, May 24—(AP)—Gov. Pinchot today made public the list of 50 welfare workers and persons interested in unemployment relief who will confer with him here Thursday on the Pennsylvania unemployment situation.

The conference will be held in the Governor's reception room at 10:30 a. m. eastern standard time.

The point upon which information is particularly desired is the extent of suffering from unemployment in the various localities and in the state as a whole, the Governor said in his letter inviting the conferees.

TO CHECK RESOURCES

He also asked that information be given on the resources now available, the length of time resources now available will last, and other resources that could be made available such as exhausted powers of taxation and borrowing. He also asked for suggestions of measures which might be passed at a special session of the legislature.

The Governor today said that for some time he had said that another extra session might be called for unemployment relief but he declared that no definite plans had been made.

Those invited to the conference included:

Light Firm Blocks Wilkinsburg Cut

A request to reduce the candlepower of the borough lighting system as an economy measure was rejected by the Duquesne Light Company at a meeting of Wilkinsburg Borough Council last night.

Council requested the light company to permit installation of bulbs of less candlepower to reduce the light bill. Refusing, the company pointed out the borough's three-year contract would remain effective another year.

Girl's Mother No Target, She Fells Shooter

UNIONTOWN, Pa., May 24—Frank Volpe today sits in the Fayette County Jail. Last night he started something, and Mrs. Mary Dufsco finished it.

Volpe met Mrs. Dufsco and her daughter, Mary, on the street. They argued, and Volpe, police said, fired a shot at the mother. She ducked. Then the two women swung rights and lefts, Mrs. Dufsco ending the encounter by socking Volpe on the head with a brick. Police took Volpe to jail.

Reward for Hickman Capture Held Illegal

SAN FRANCISCO, May 24—(AP)—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals has ruled it would be illegal for the city of Los Angeles to pay $10,000 reward for the capture of William Edward Hickman, who was hanged for the kidnaping and murder of Marian Parker, 11.

The decision yesterday reversed the findings of the Federal Court in Los Angeles, which had held T. B. Gurdane and C. R. Lieuallen, Oregon officers who caught Hickman near Pendleton, December 23, 1927, were entitled to the reward from the city.

tion as inevitable, studied the whole situation, hoping for a compromise.

Speaker Garner believes his own program can be harmonized with the views expressed by the President in assailing a bond issue on the ground that it would prevent balancing of the budget. Garner specifically suggested a special tax to pay interest and retire the bonds, so the budget would not be affected.

The congressional mass meeting will be addressed by President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor; Jett Lauck, economist, and Fred Brenckman, of the Grange. It was called by Representatives Mead (Dem.), of New York, Kelly (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, and LaGuardia (Rep.), of New York.

KELLY FAVORS PLAN

Kelly announced he favors the Garner plan, but does not believe it goes far enough. He proposes to increase the $1,000,000,000 which the speaker proposed as a bond issue for public works. There are projects already authorized by Congress totalling more than a billion, he said.

The Garner plan was indorsed by Representative Connery (Dem.) of Massachusetts, chairman of the labor committee, which spent months studying the unemployment situation.

With sentiment rapidly crystallizing for definite action, the House ways and means committee is expected to begin hearings soon after the bills of the Speaker are completed.

In the Senate, Cutting (Rep.), of New Mexico, offered a $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan bill to put 8,000,000 men to work at once, chiefly at road building, while La Follette (Rep.), of Wisconsin, announced he would call up the defeated La Follette-Costigan $5,000,000,000 bond bill for early reconsideration.

COX PLANS HELP IN ABSENCE

Father Cox

Through it all he remains cheerful and is going away knowing that nothing will be undone that will be of assistance to the thousands of needy and starving who come to him every day for aid. COUPLE PLEADS IN VOTE CASE

James Nestor, a state employe, of 1607 Clark street, Wilkinsburg, and his wife, Edith, pleaded no defense today in the First Ward election fraud cases growing out of the constable fight between Paul Walsh, son of Police Supt. Walsh, and Constable Jack Schneider, who was defeated for renomination.

Judge Elder W. Marshall suspended sentence on Nestor and quashed the charges against his wife.

Nestor explained that for years he had maintained a legal residence in the First Ward, receiving his mail at a hotel, but that shortly before the primaries last September he had taken rooms in Wilkinsburg. He and his wife were charged with registering and voting illegally in the First District of the First Ward.

Seven other cases were scheduled for trial this afternoon.

ASK TEACHERS TO ECONOMIZE

Teachers and pupils of Pittsburgh public schools will be asked to sign "economy pledges" for the coming school year in an attempt to reduce operating expenses, a teachers' committee announced today.

The action followed acceptance by the teachers of a 10 per cent "voluntary" wage cut suggested by the Board of Public Education.

Teachers in every school will be asked to plan their programs for the 1932-33 school year with an aim to using such materials as may now be on hand in storerooms, thus holding new supplies expenditures to a minimum. They also will be asked to personally watch small leakages in their individual rooms, such as unneeded lights, excessive heat and open water faucets.

Programs for the pupils will be formulated later, the committee said.

BARKLESS DOGS CITED IN PLEA

Schnausers don't bark, and neither do English bulldogs, Dr. S. E. Young, veterinary, testified at the final hearing regarding a proposed cat and dog hospital at 5432 Center avenue, before the Board of Adjustment yesterday.

The proposed hospital would be operated by Dr. Samuel Glenn. Proceedings to revoke a permit for the building on the ground that it would be a nuisance were started by the First Evangelical Church and adjoining property owners.

Dr. Young's naming of dogs that don't bark was in defense of Dr. Glenn's contention that not many of his dog patients would bother the neighbors by barking.

The board's decision will be handed down within a week, J. W. Cree, Jr., said at the close of the hearing.

Dry Raiders Wreck Swanky N. Y. Club

NEW YORK, May 24.—(AP.)—The flourish of a ginger ale bottle waved in the air by a chief of prohibition agents signalled the federal raid that left the fashionable Spa, a West Fifty-sixth street supper club, a comparative wreck today.

The agent arose from his table last night, waved the ginger ale bottle before the startled eyes of several score diners and announced that he and seven others (who arose at his signal) were taking the place over in the name of the government.

DON'T use harsh, unsanitary handkerchiefs! Doctors advise
KLEENEX
Disposable Tissues

MOTHER, surely you wouldn't use a partly soiled handkerchief for baby. Not since Kleenex has been made so wonderfully inexpensive.

Baby skin is so sensitive. And the nasal passages are so susceptible to infection. A slight infection which a healthy grown-up would hardly notice, may prove fatal to a baby.

So take the simple precaution of using always a fresh Kleenex Tissue for baby's handkerchiefs bibs and napkins. This sanitary habit not only protects your child, but saves a lot of washing.

Kleenex is simply destroyed after use. You can use several Kleenex Tissues for the price of having one handkerchief laundered!

Kleenex is available at any drug, dry goods or department store.

Scarcely a day passes in which Helen Board, 24-year-old soprano at CBS, does not perform on some network program. She is heard each Sunday night in the chorus of the Ziegfeld Radio Show and as soloist with that petite organist, Ann Leaf, each Monday at 2, in addition to a number of other programs not heard locally. . . . Bill Sutherland, WCAE announcer, recently attended the regatta, cheering his Cornell buddies. . . . Biblical dramas, for years a favorite NBC Sunday program, return to the air Sunday. Burke Boyce, NBC continuity chief, is author of the scripts.

Question Box

Who plays the part of Jack Arnold in the "Myrt and Marge" series? Can you tell me anything about him? Mrs. R. L. F., Wilkinsburg.

Vinton Haworth plays the part of Arnold in the programs. He studied liberal arts at George Washington University at Washington, D. C., and played stock in the Bronx, New York. For three years he toured with a dramatic skit in vaudeville, and made his radio debut in a mystery drama in 1925. For a time he was the announcer for the Three Doctors on CBS, and he produced the first synchronized sound and television drama in the Midwest—from W9XAP. His picture appeared in these columns recently.

BOOM FORECAST IN RADIO TRADE AT SHOW

15,000 Hear Prediction of Prosperity for Industry By Federal Commissioner

CHICAGO, May 24.—(AP.)— Fifteen thousand radio manufacturers were told by a member of the Federal Radio Commission today that prosperity is certain to crown their efforts in the industry.

The speaker, Harold M. Lafount, in an address before the American Radio Manufacturers' Association trade show, said that radio, the youngest of the nation's industries, probably will be the first to shake off completely the clutches of poor business.

LAUDS RADIO TRADE

He lauded the radio business as a stabilizer of industry, a means of enlightening the public, an aid to aviation, and an outlet for inventive genius. He said:

"Manufacturers of radio equipment deserve much credit for initiative and optimism. Most people are talking depression, but you are anticipating normal business. You are right —the evidences of a return to normality are as obvious as the budding trees are a sure sign of spring."

The United States has 13,500,000 homes not yet equipped with radio, J. Clarke Coit, president of the association, said yesterday at the opening of the show.

FIELD FOR EXPANSION

As a further field for expansion of the industry, Coit asserted many of the 16,000,000 radio sets in operation are now obsolete and should be replaced.

The association members agreed business prospects were good and learned of the latest developments in television, which was still, speakers said, a long way from successful home usage.

No startling innovations were evidenced in the hundreds of radio sets on display. Improvement in tubes was described as the most important factor in bringing radio closer to perfection.

Smaller sets were said to be increasing in popularity.

Brave Youngster Made Lifeguard By Wales

LONDON, May 24.—(AP.)— Peter Garvie, a little boy who wanted to be a lifeguard, was told by a nurse, as he was having several stitches taken out of a wound, that "lifeguards don't cry." She said:

The Prince visited the hospital a few days later and the little fellow called out:

"I want to be a lifeguard."

The nurse told the Prince how brave the boy had been.

Two days later a little lifeguard's uniform, complete in every detail, was sent to Peter Garvie with a card:

"From the Prince of Wales."

BUNCO SUSPECT HELD IN OHIO

The alleged "headache" swindler, Natale Condorelli, was under arrest in Girard, O., today and being held for Pittsburgh detectives. Condorelli, alias Alfred Amato, is accused of swindling Eugene Grassle, of 5407 Wellesley avenue, of $1,300 in the Pennsylvania Station six weeks ago.

Detectives said Condorelli and one other promised Grassle $500 for himself if he would choose a destitute family to whom they wished to give $500. As evidence of good faith Grassle turned over to them his savings—$1,300—and, the detectives said, they then sent Grassle to a drugstore for a box of aspirin. When he returned they had fled.

City Detectives William Sullivan and Charles Waizenhofer left for Columbus, O., today to ask Gov. White to hold Condorelli in jail until they obtain extradition papers. Girard police said the prisoner was trying to obtain his freedom on a habeas corpus writ.

Justice League Will Hold Open Forum

The fourth open forum of the League for Social Justice will be held in the Y. M. & W. H. A. night. J. B. Matthews, executive director of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, New York, will talk on "The Issues of the 1932 Campaign."

Music, Readings and Selections By Reorganized Choral Make Up Luncheon Program

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Another year, a year of unprecedented activity in the face of threatened financial loss, closed yesterday for the Homewood Women's Club when more than 100 members met for luncheon in the Arlington dining room, Center and Aiken avenues. Mrs. Frank Homer Fulmer introduced the program which consisted of a group of numbers by the reorganized club choral, readings by Mrs. Harry Charles, vocal numbers by Miss Betty Foster, accompanied by Miss Marjorie Meyer, and violin solos by Mrs. Kathryn Rice Letterman, with Priscilla Margaret Allen at the piano. Purple foxglove and narcissus carried out the club colors in the decorations.

Mrs. Garnet E. Cooper, retiring president, announced that Mrs. Earl Reed would entertain the club at her home, Crescent Pines, on the Frankstown road, on June 27; that the new president, Mrs. R. H. M. Mackenzie, will be hostess at a garden party bridge in her summer home in the South Hills on July 20 and at a benefit bridge in her South Graham street home on June 16.

New Year Book Out

The club's new year books, which were distributed yesterday, promise a full and varied year, beginning October 3 with president's day. Speakers listed are Dr. J. M. Kistler, who is to talk on cancer; P. S. Chambers, who will give an illustrated lecture on "Effect of Food Upon Health;" Frank C. Pierson, whose topic is insurance; Attorney Ella Graubart, whose talk will be on "Laws Affecting Married Women in Pennsylvania," and Mrs. Elmer Dean, in a discussion of native birds.

Federation Day, the usual community Christmas party, a Christmas tea, a program by Westinghouse High School, one on citizenship and an evening for the juniors with Mrs. S. B. Cuthbert and Mrs. J. G. Chalfant speaking, a program of biographies of modern women, the annual business meeting and the annual luncheon comprise the remainder of the club's regular programs.

Travel Chairman

Club women everywhere are interested in the appointment of Mrs. William Gary Brown, of Chicago, as transportation chairman for the National Council of Women. The first task assigned to the new chairman is the building up of a committee of executive railroad women to handle all the organization's special trains to the international congress of women at the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago next year.

Mrs. Brown was transportation chairman for the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, which has sponsored some of the largest all-women specials ever run in this country, including a transcontinental special to Oakland, Cal., in 1927, with a passenger list of 1,000. Also, Mrs. Brown has for several years been transportation chairman for the annual conference on the Cause and Cure of War.

She plans to run specials from all sections of the United States to Chicago. European visitors to the Congress, landing in New York, will be escorted to Washington and officially welcomed in the capital en route to Chicago and routing and arrangements of all these special trains will be in charge of Mrs. Brown's committee.

Mrs. Brown is a railroad executive, head of the women's department of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at Chicago and also of the Baltimore and Ohio tour bureau. She is a member of the Chicago committee which is cooperating with the National Council of Women in its campaign for 1,000,000 signatures in support of the international congress.

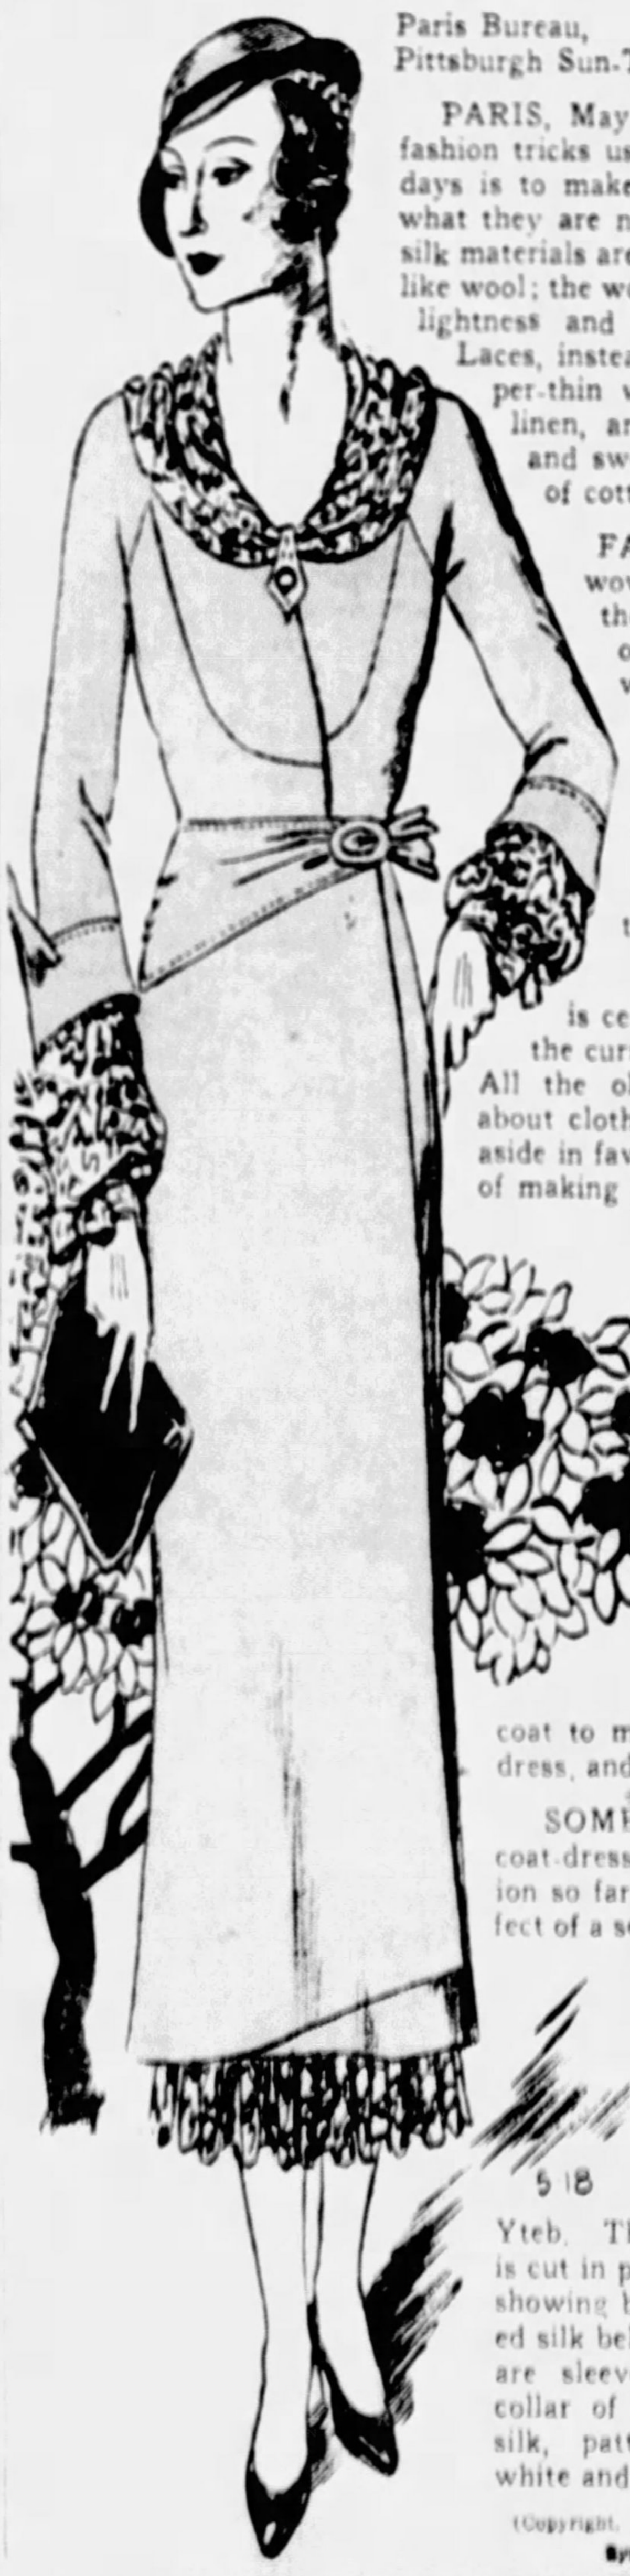
Actress Loses Suit In Costello 'Slander'

LOS ANGELES, May 24.—(AP.)—The $100,000 slander suit of Miss Vivienne Sengler, musician and actress, brought against Mrs. John Francis Dillon, wife of a motion picture director, and four other persons was thrown out of court yesterday by Superior Judge H. P. Wood.

Miss Sengler, who once sued Maurice Costello, the actor, for $100,000 as heart balm, accused Mrs. Dillon, Mrs. Anna Hallor and her [illegible] daughters and a son of making derogatory remarks about her in the presence of Costello.

NEW COAT DRESS PROVING POPULAR

—Sketched in Paris—



Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, May 24.—One of the fashion tricks used in Paris these days is to make things look like what they are not. The favorite silk materials are those which look like wool; the woolens have all the lightness and softness of silk. Laces, instead of being in paper-thin weaves of silk or linen, are made of wool, and sweaters are knitted of cotton string.

FABRICS ARE woven to look as if the entire surface of the material were covered with little tucks; on the other hand, tucks are sewn into plain materials in such a way as to appear in the weave.

* * *

TURN ABOUT is certainly fair play in the current fashion game. All the old-fashioned rules about clothes have been cast aside in favor of a new policy of making garments that are easy to wear.

* * *

PROMINENT in this new regime is rearrangement of coat and dress lines. More than a third of the new costumes alter the lines of the coat to make it look like a dress, and vice versa.

* * *

SOME OF THE new coat-dresses carry the illusion so far as to give the effect of a separate dress worn under the coat. One of these is sketched—a model in eggplant-colored wool designed by Yteb. The woolen portion is cut in popular coat length showing box-plaits of printed silk below its hem; there are sleeves and a draped collar of the same printed silk, patterned in violet, white and black.

JUNIOR LEAGUE MAPS RELIEF

LOS ANGELES, May 24.—(AP.)—A plan to increase their service to the nation's destitute formed the principal subject on the program today for 250 delegates to the twelfth annual conference of the Association of Junior Leagues of America.

After three luncheon meetings, the formal-conference opening dinner will be held this evening. Mrs. Roger S. Sperry, of Waterbury, Conn., president of the Association of Junior Leagues, will speak at the dinner. Awards for meritorious work in league activities will be made.

Tomorrow's sessions will be devoted to the arts, creative interests and magazine departments of the league. Thursday's program will consist largely of an open forum, where problems relating to organization matters will be discussed.

Election of officers and adoption of resolutions relating to welfare and economic problems will constitute Friday's business and conclude the conference.

American Actor Weds English Girl

LONDON, May 24.—(INS.)—Frederick Wellington Ayer, actor, of Milwaukee, Wis., was married today to Enid Margaret Copper, English actress, in the Holborn registry office. They plan to leave for the United States on June 10 and continue their careers in that country.

Club News

Sheraden Juniors last night elected Miss Ruth Hadley as their president; Miss Harriet Glass, vice president; Mrs. A. S. Barclay, recording secretary; Mrs. Loran L. Lewis, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Robert G. Meals, treasurer. New directors are Mrs. Hugh Horner, Miss Bess Killingsworth and Mrs. W. B. Hershberger. Mrs. Joseph M. Steim, state chairman of juniors, was the speaker, and Miss Evelyn and Miss Alice Black, of Allendale street, were hostesses.

The Outlook Alliance has canceled its tulip tour, set for tomorrow, and in its stead will have a rose tour late in June.

At the club luncheon on Thursday when the members will be addressed by Dr. N. S. Munn, the program also will include contralto solos by Mrs. Gladys Dove, Eisteddfod Winner, of Warren, O., and readings by her daughter, Miss Betty Dove, who won the elocution contest at the same place. Joseph Dove will accompany his mother.

Give Yourself a Fair Deal And Others Will Too

What's a nice girl to do—go out and be talked about, or stay at home and be yelled at?

Inez would like to know.

It's all a terrible muddle to her. There's Mamma, for instance, who won't speak to her if she tries to have a little fun; and there's Dad, who starts a row for the same reason—or no reason.

"I am so unhappy!" she moans hopelessly. "Is it all worth while? I'm only 18, but my life seems ruined. What shall I do?"

What can she do? Will it help if she throws everything to the winds, and goes out for a big time?

LEFT HOME

"Dear Sally:

"I wonder if you will help me. Please try. I need help and advice so badly.

"I am 18. My life at home has been very unhappy ever since I can remember. There is usually a quarrel going on between my mother and my father—or he is mad at us kids. The only way to not start something is not to talk.

"Ever since I was 15 I have been going out on good times, or wild times, but I have never done anything wrong. Of course there would always be a quarrel when I came home, and then mother wouldn't talk to me for days.

"I never paid any attention to that, though, but went out just the same. A few months ago I decided I wouldn't go out so much. I stayed at home and went out once in a while with girl friends. Then the first time I went out with a man again, mother growled at me more than ever. I got tired of it, and left home.

"They found me, and took me back. Since then they have said about 10 words to me, and that was only when they couldn't get away from it.

"Now I have a friend that I have known since I was 16. We have gone out riding and to the theater together quite a lot, but have never spoken of love. Now I find that I care for him more than just as a friend, but he won't marry me. I don't know the reason. Do you think it is because of the life I've led?

GETS DISCOURAGED

"What shall I do now? My life seems to be hopeless. It seems as if I have to stay at home forever, with nothing to look forward to—or shall I go on 'good times' again, and try to forget about him and my unhappy life at home? Sometimes I feel as if nothing were worth while.

"Do you think I will gain anything by not going out for a good time? Would it really make any difference what I did? Everything seems so useless! "INEZ."

So you don't think the old folks are giving you a square deal, youngster? Well, let's look at your own record.

What sort of a deal have you given them—or yourself?

You say "I've been going out on wild times since I was 15 but I have never done anything wrong."

But there's more than one way of doing wrong, Inez. And one of the most serious things a growing girl can do is to burn up her body and good name on "wild times;" for wild times at 15 mean a burnt-out body and a blasted reputation at 25. You know that as well as I.

Yet you think your parents were unfair to scold. What else could they do? Try to consider their side of the case. It cost them plenty to give you 15 years of life. They had to sacrifice their own fun and freedom; had to worry and work through long, drudging hours; had to slave and pinch. This they did willingly through love and pride.

But even if they hadn't done so willingly, the law would have compelled that of them. The law makes them legally responsible for your welfare; compels them to send you to school, to support you decently.

And what sort of co-operation have you given?

You want fair play. Have you given it?

And now your own crowd is proving to you that your parents are right. Mother and Dad told you that the world would consider you a bad egg if you played around. Now the man you love is telling you the same thing. He doesn't want you—puts no value on you—because you have thrown away your own value.

Even if you aren't a "bad" girl you're so cheap and common that any man who took you now would get the razz from all his crowd. And yet you think the old folks had the wrong dope!

Snap out of it, kid. Get sense. You've made a bad start, but it isn't too late. Make a new start, with a new crowd if necessary. Give yourself a fair deal, and you'll very soon find others willing to give you the same.

Household Hints

In these days of enameled and porcelain-topped kitchen equipment we are sometimes at a loss as to where to fasten the meat grinder. A strip of rubber mat or piece of cigar box or even the kitchen order tablet will protect the table top and prevent the grinder from skidding. Place on the table surface before putting on the chopper.

Don't forget to have lower hooks in the closet if you wish to teach the youngster to take care of his clothes. He cannot reach those high ones, you know, then the game ceases to be fun but is a nuisance.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Form of Address

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Will you kindly advise me as to the correct form of address:

Mr. Charles Jones
215 West 188 Street
New York City

or

Mr. Charles Jones
215 West 188 Street
New York
New York

2. Please tell me how to address an ambassador. E. B.

1. While strictly speaking the second form is the formally correct one, since it gives the name of the city as it is and the name of the state as it is, the form that is oftenest used is just New York. We often see New York City and City of New York, but these forms are redundant.

2. If we are speaking to an ambassador, we say, either, "Your Excellency" or "Mr. Ambassador."

If we are addressing a letter to, say the American Ambassador in England, we write:

His Excellency,
The American Ambassador
American Embassy
London

A formal letter to him begins:

Your Excellency:

and ends:

I have the honor to remain,
Yours faithfully,

or

I have the honor to remain,
Yours very truly,

An informal letter to him begins:

Dear Mr. Ambassador:

and ends,

Yours faithfully,

The Monogram

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it correct to use the initial of your first name on handkerchiefs and monogrammed stationery? I prefer doing this, but the correctness of it has been questioned by some of my friends. E. C.

If you use only one initial, it is usually the initial of your first name. But the better form is to use your two or three initials, either as initials, or designed into a monogram.

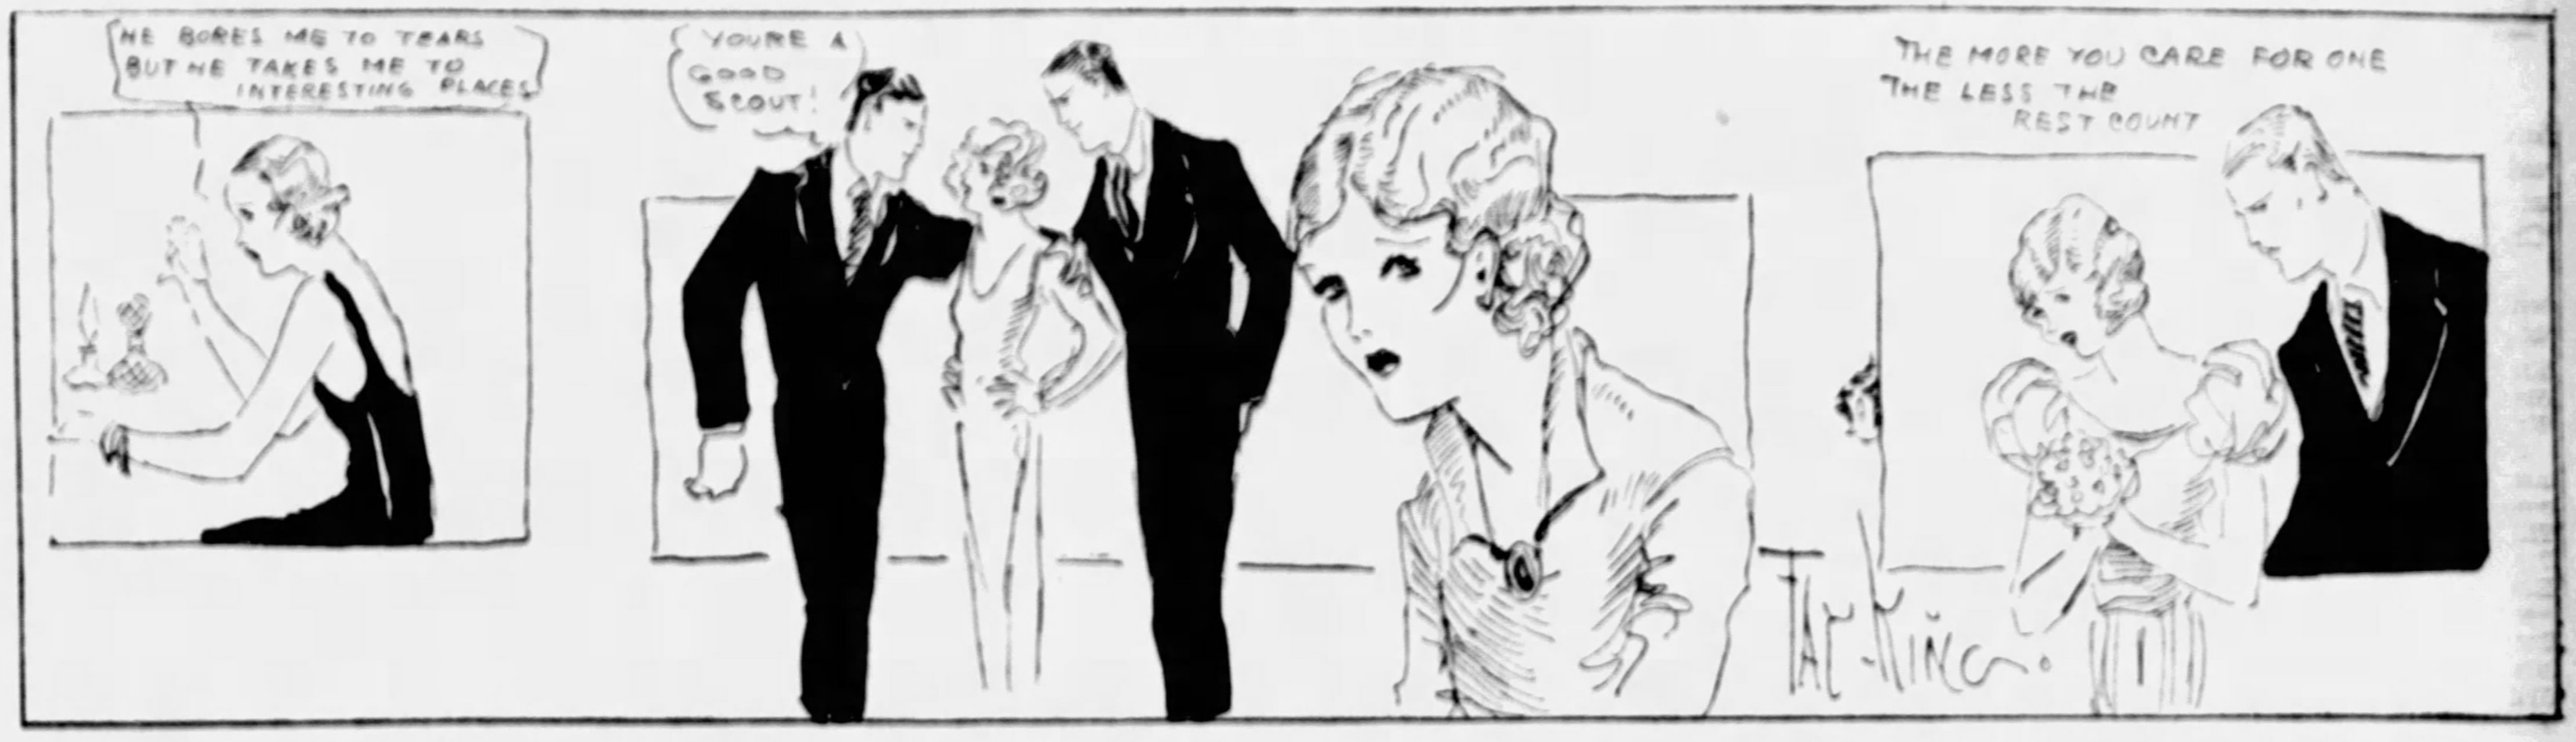
Popularity Game Best Played with Much Head and Little Heart—Fay King



HE BORES ME TO TEARS BUT HE TAKES ME TO INTERESTING PLACES
YOU'RE A GOOD SCOUT!
THE MORE YOU CARE FOR ONE THE LESS THE REST COUNT
FAY-KING

By FAY KING

Entirely too much emphasis is placed upon so-called popularity.

A girl may be "popular" with many men who mean as little to her as she means to them.

In fact the girl who excels in so-called popularity is either promiscuous or so superficial in the nicety of pleasing that she can be exceedingly pleasant to those who do not interest her at all.

So don't worry if you are not as popular as the girl who will go anywhere with anyone.

She chiefly attracts those who do not yet wish to pay serious attention to a girl who is serious.

So-called popularity is really a social game that is best played with much head and little heart.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Deep Breathing Pays Big Health Dividends

To have good health there must be plenty of fresh air and sunshine. Without an abundant supply of oxygen the work of the body cannot be carried on properly.

Dr. Copeland

People who fail to breathe well are usually pale, easily fatigued and lacking in vitality and physical endurance. Very often they are victims of colds. Every tissue of the body is benefited by deep breathing.

Here is a simple breathing exercise: Stand erect, arms at side, head up, shoulders back, abdomen in. Take a deep breath, inhaling slowly, count three and exhale through the nostrils. This exercise is best done before an open window, and with no tight clothing to impede the free movement of the chest.

At first take only three or four breaths if you are habitually a shallow breather. You may feel a little giddy if you are not accustomed to taking so much fresh air into your lungs. Later, you may increase the number of deep breaths to 10 or 20.

Get the habit of taking two or three deep breaths each hour during your working day. Sit up straight in your chair, and give the lungs a chance to take in oxygen. When there is a lack of oxygen in the lungs, one feels tired, as well as dull and sleepy.

Get out-of-doors as much as possible; take long walks, and indulge in swimming, golf and other athletic sports. This kind of exercise will induce deep breathing.

Another means of developing the lungs is to do blowing exercises. Stand before a drapery, lace curtain or a strip of paper suspended in the doorway. Blow at the object till you see it move in the air.

Of course it is not the blowing, but the necessity of filling the lungs with air, that does the good. But you cannot hope to have the full measure of health without constant supplies of oxygen.

A few months of this regime will improve your personal appearance, as well as your health. Bear in mind that deep breathing is a wonderful beautifier, as well as a tonic.

'PUBLIC ENEMY' WINS FREEDOM

CHICAGO, May 24 — (AP) — William (Three-Fingered Jack) White, gunman, racketeer and one of the original "public enemies" was freed yesterday from a seven-year-old charge of murdering a policeman.

The state, which succeeded in convicting White twice, only to have the Supreme Court overrule the verdict, admitted it had no new evidence and dismissed the charge.

White was charged with killing Policeman Edward Pflaume in a pistol battle in 1925. He was convicted in 1927 and sentenced to life imprisonment. The Supreme Court reversed the verdict, saying the state had not proved that the officers had sufficient grounds to arrest White.

Sergt. James McBride, Pflaume's companion and the principal witness against White, was shot and seriously wounded by machine gun bullets in 1930 as he was riding on a street car headed for a conference on the case.

In 1931 White was convicted again and sentenced to 14 years. Again the Supreme Court reversed the decision. During most of this time White was in jail. He was admitted to bail only last February.

HONOR BENSON AT BURIAL

WASHINGTON, May 24 — (AP)—Admiral William S. Benson, who died suddenly Saturday of cerebral hemorrhage, was buried in Arlington National Cemetery today with military honors.

The admiral was wartime chief of naval operations and the first officer to fill that post when the bureau was organized.

The Rt. Rev. Edward J. Buckey officiated at a solemn requiem mass at St. Matthew's Church. The final absolution was given by Mnsgr. Fumansoni-Biondi, papal legate of the Catholic Church in the United States.

Naval attaches of all foreign embassies attended. The pallbearers were headed by Admiral William V. Pratt, present chief of operation, and Benson's assistant during the war, and Maj. Gen. Ben H. Fuller, Marine Corps commandant.

Feature Showing

Few methods are infallible. Feature showing is by far the best method yet evolved of discovering whether or not slams should be possible to make. With rare exceptions it is the only safe way of determining grand slam possibilities. It is the most simple method of determining the safety of small slam attempts, especially for average players or even good players. Of course, experts have other methods of arriving at small slams with comparative ease and safety, but such procedure is over the head of ordinary players in most instances. The only reason why feature showing is condemned by many experts is because they adhere to the rather clumsy demand bid of two, with which feature showing fails to harmonize.

The next hand illustrates the fact that even feature showing may not always definitely disclose the possibilities of hands.

Z made an opening bid of 1-Heart, that Y shifted to 2-Spades, announcing "game expected and slam hoped." Having admirable support for his partner's make, Z assisted by bidding 3-Spades. In feature showing the contracting is kept down as much as possible. This allows bidders to disclose more features. It became Y's turn to announce to his partner whether Y really sought a slam or merely wanted to make certain that game should not be missed. As Y really had slam in mind when he bid 2-Spades, he now started showing features, by bidding 4-Clubs, thus announcing possession of the ace of that suit. Z stated that he held the Ace of hearts, when he responded with 4-Hearts.

There was no possibility of one partner thinking that when the other partner showed a feature that he wished to shift the make. Y had definitely stated that he wanted to play at spades, and Z had assented when he supported that make. To hold down contracting as much as possible, Y next bid 4-No Trumps, thereby announcing: "Partner, I hold all aces not yet announced. This was to avoid bidding 5-Diamonds. Over his partner's bid of 4-No Trumps Z could bid 5-Diamonds; showing the K of that suit, since Y had already shown the Ace. Had Y bid 5-Diamonds, Z would have been obliged to bid 6-Diamonds. He had to show features in order, commencing with the lowest suit, and running upwards. Y did not know whether or not a slam could be made. On that account he did not respond with 6-Diamonds, to show the Q, after he had shown the Ace and Z had shown the K. Y was more prudent than that, he bid only 5-Spades, leaving his partner to judge whether or not bidding should end at five. Having both the K of hearts and the K of spades that had not been shown, as well as the doubleton Q of clubs, Z took the slight risk of bidding 6-Spades, ending contracting.

The opening lead was B's fourth-best diamond. Y was careful to win the trick in his own hand, leaving Z's K for future use as entry to dummy. Three rounds of trumps pulled all opposing spades. Z was an old stager; he knew enough to try to establish Z's long heart suit, rather than at once risk taking a finesse in clubs. Two leads of dummy's top cards on hearts were taken. Then Y led a third round of hearts, and trumped the trick. Finding all opposing hearts had fallen, Y put dummy in the lead, by leading a low diamond from his own hand, and winning the trick with Z's K. Upon the two good hearts left in dummy, Y discarded his own two lowest clubs, leaving nothing but winning cards in Y's hand. Then Y spread his cards, claiming a grand slam—one trick more than bid.

WALTONS SAVE INDIANA ZOO

CROWN POINT, Ind., May 24.—(AP.)—The Crown Point Zoo will not be destroyed, thanks to the Izaak Walton League.

The Board of County Commissioners had decided to do away with the zoo on the grounds that the money spent in keeping it up could better be used to feed needy families. The local chapter of the Walton League stepped into the breach and promised to support the zoo. Said the league resolution:

Woman, 80, Heir To $120,000,000

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, May 24.—(AP.)—To take possession of a fortune of $120,000,000, a white-haired Armenian woman, Marianee Djanikian, 80, has gone to India with her two sons.

In 1882 Eli Amirhanian died in India and left the fortune. His will stated that it should not be turned over to his heirs for 50 years. With the expiration of the 50 years, the executors searched for their heirs and found Mrs. Djanikian, a granddaughter.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Things That Go Over Nobody's Head

(Unless you're buried 6 feet deep.)

That there are more inmates of insane asylums in New York State than in any 16 other states combined. (Well, there are more columnists in New York than in any 16 other states, too.)

That when a hippopotamus is excited he exudes blood through the pores of his skin. (But when you see blood in a hippopotamus' eye, don't make the mistake of thinking he's just having a little sweat.)

That Schopenhauer, the German philosopher, never paid a bill that had his name spelled incorrectly. (Well, I'm going to be different and refuse to pay those that spell mine correctly.)

That an ancient custom in Morocco compelled the bridegroom to throw a raw egg at his bride. (And I know negligent husbands who have thrown their brides at bad eggs.)

That a cockroach has 3,000 teeth. (And never heard of Amos 'n' Andy.)

That Nero considered himself the greatest poet of all time and had the death sentence passed on all contemporary poets who challenged him.

That hydrophobia is not caused by canine saliva, as is commonly believed, but by phlegm contained in the bronchial tubes of the animal. (So if you're dying of hydrophobia, that's the reason.)

That George M. Cohan thinks it unlucky to write his manuscripts on anything but yellow paper. (But when it comes to flags, he favors red, white and blue.)

That when crows are feeding they always place a sentinel on look-out duty.

That there is three cents' worth of gold in every ton of water. (Proving that there's gold in them thar gills.)

That if you get caught in quick-sand, you can save yourself by lying flat on your back and rolling to the edge.

That in many states embalmers are not permitted to serve on juries.

That Oscar Wilde was considered the greatest dandy of his day despite the fact that he seldom bathed. (Well, who doesn't slip up on a Saturday every now and then?)

That the chemical value of the human body has dropped from 97 cents in 1929 to 59 cents today. (But I still know a lot of guys who aren't worth 30 cents.)

That elephants weep the same as human beings when they are unhappy.

That the fashion in the time of Sir Walter Raleigh was to cut dainty holes in coat sleeves so your friends could see your pretty underwear. (Today the fellow with holes in his coat sleeve gets a preferred place in the bread-line.)

That thin people really suffer more from the heat than stout people. (The stout people suffer mostly from the thin people.)

That the first use made of gunpowder in England was to blow criminals to death through the mouth of a cannon. (They later made it into lollipops for naughty children.)

That a bushel of timothy contains 55,000,000 seeds. (I counted them myself so as to make certain you'd get the right information.)

That dragon flies can fly both forward and backward without turning.

That due to heat expansion, the Eiffel Tower is 7½ inches taller in summer than in winter. (Could it be the heat that makes my head larger in the hot weather.)

That the portraits of living people are never used in engravings on bank-notes. (Well, there are plenty of statesmen today whose pictures could be used without violating the tradition.)

The best eating oysters are three years old. (And some restaurateurs have the same idea about chickens.)

That in 1847 it was legal to bisect a 10-cent United States stamp and use half for 5-cent purposes.

That in Spain, Christmas gifts are only given to servants. (And over here even the servants will not get them this year.)

Vital statistics show that clergymen, as a class, live the longest. And that the wives of clergymen live longer than any other group of women.

That money in the South Sea Islands is made from porpoise teeth. (There must be a gag about money talking somewhere in this line.)

That Thomajan is the authority for the statement that an egg wrapped in cellophane will remain fresh for years.

That Tartars put steak under their saddles and bump against it for 24 hours before they consider it palatable. (What, no tartar sauce?)

BY GEORGE SEIBEL

It was hot under the Big Top, but nobody minded that. A sprawling baby was absorbing the contents of a milk bottle, while its elegant mamma was puffing a cigaret, but nobody noticed them. The circus of Sells & Floto was about to unfold its marvels—its daring and beautiful equestriennes, its Imperial Russian Cossacks direct from Hollywood, its famous dancing equines capering to "2 Herzen im ¾ Takt," its musical seals performing the "Wearing of the Green" on their portable Steinways, its queens of the air turning into butterflies as they hung by their teeth—all these and a hundred other dazzling, devastating, dizzy demonstrations of agility and splendor were waiting to be unfolded.

Mr. Seibel

Then came the initial parade—camels looking very dry, elephants as kind and helpful as Boy Scouts, red-coated bandsmen and silver-armored Amazons, clowns of every size and every degree of silliness, cowboys and Cossacks, gauchos and Arabs—they glided past as if they had just come from Xanadu and the stately pleasure dome of Kublai Khan.

The sprawling baby had finished its bottle of milk, and the elegant mamma threw away the remnant of her cigaret.

Sells and Floto, owners of the gigantic sea elephant and managers of all these variegated tribes and resplendent beings, were ready to do business at Exposition Park.

And for two hours the three rings and two stages were full of tumbling, flying, gyrating, glittering performers.

CLOWNS IN HIGH FAVOR

The death-defying acts are necessary, no doubt, to make it a real circus, but the clowns are still the favorites. Hundreds of hearts went out to the weary hobo carrying his "hope chest," an empty beer case. The children were delighted with the huge "hot dog sandwich," which was put down and developed a pair of legs and ran away. There was a tiny dog disguised as a baby elephant, and there was a fistic encounter which ended with one of the sluggers dashing a bucket of water over the audience—but the water was only snippets of paper.

And there was Jimmy Davidson with his pesky automobile—which had a mind of its own and usually ran off when he wasn't looking or blew up when he was.

And there was the clown with boomerang hat, which always came back to his head when he tossed it over the grand stand.

Such a colony of clowns make you forget the weather, the depression and the speeches of the political candidates.

BEAUTY DEFYING DEATH

But the praise of the clowns does not mean that the beautiful ladies who flirt with the Grim Reaper are to receive no bouquets of adulatory adjectives. Who would deny a few roses of rapture to Irene Ledgett, "the bravest woman in the world?" Even the elephants—monstrous pachyderms, if you please—bow to Irene. And as for "France's fairest flower," Mlle. Rosina, there isn't a wilt or a wither to her. Then there is Agnes Doss, empress of the aerial realm, who wears her crown with airy grace. And Carmencita Nelson, who does a few dozen somersaults like a streak of lightning. And don't forget Madam Lorette, sliding from dome to ring with no support but her braided locks. Truly a hair-raising feat!

Lest we forget the agile and graceful Loyals, and those "Golden Girls in a Golden Whirl," Ida White and Esma Wilson, we doff our hat to them before we seek the sideshow, where Hindu magic and incredible freaks of nature amaze and astound us. We see the five-ton Sea Elephant eat 490 pounds of fish, and we invest in a chameleon, and drink a bottle of greenish mineral water because it looks like absinthe, and then we wend our way through the multitude wondering whether the sprawling baby was appropriately grateful to Sells and Floto, those renowned benefactors of the human race, for the grand show, and whether its elegant mamma is going to the performance at Point Breeze today and tomorrow.

It was an afternoon well spent, edifying, satisfying and hot. But who minds the weather when the circus is in town?

Films Claim Society Woman

BY HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, May 24.

New York society has contributed the latest aspirant to screen fame in Hollywood.

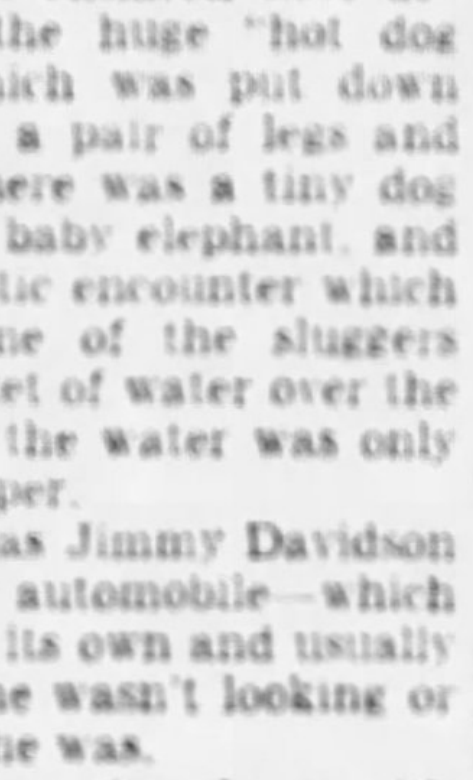
She is Kendall Lee Glaenzer, wife of Jules Glaenzer, of the jewelry firm of Cartiers. Besides being a prominent figure in New York and Continental society, Mrs. Glaenzer is famous as a beauty.

She will make her screen debut in the United Artists' production of "Rain." Her role is that of Mrs. McPhail, the doctor's wife in the picture. Playing opposite her will be Matt Moore.

The decision of the society beauty to take up film work came through a meeting with Lewis Milestone in New York. At the time, the director laughingly remarked that she was the type of personality he had in mind for Mrs. McPhail.

To his surprise, she suggested a screen and voice test.

They were successful and Mrs. Glaenzer took the train for Hollywood. She is now with the "Rain" company on location in Catalina Island. It is her hope, she has told friends to remain indefinitely in pictures.



Ronald Colman

Maybe you have heard the story, but it is new to me. I mean about the two Jewish friends who met, after many years, when their trains happened to stop simultaneously at Albuquerque.

They were so overjoyed at seeing each other that they forgot and boarded the same train. When it was well out of the station, one of the friends said:

"Aren't these modern inventions wonderful—the telephone, the movies, the radio? You're going to New York and I'm going to Los Angeles, and here we are on the same train!"

AND SO TO GOSSIP

Since Samuel Goldwyn has decided to scrap both "The Brothers Karamazov" and "Way of a Lancer" as Ronald Colman vehicles, Sidney Howard and his wife, the former Polly Damrosch, leave Hollywood to motor East. They will go to Cornish, N. H., to spend the summer. There, Mr. Howard will work on a new play . . . Hollywood tennis players are working feverishly at at their games in preparation for the annual Motion Picture tournament to be held at the Los Angeles Tennis Club, May 29 and 30 and June 6. This competition is open to anyone connected with the industry. Last year, the singles championship was won by Salvini Biaino, a musician. Among the stars, Theodore Von Eltz is a leading player. Kay Johnson is an expert player.

Kay Johnson

They tell it that a certain boxer was very much befuddled in a recent punch-fest here.

As he was being frantically fanned in his corner, he leaned over groggily to his manager.

"You want to watch that referee next round," he mumbled. "He's slipping in a few, too."

Stage Claims Movie Actress Again

Claudia Dell, blonde screen star, will return to the legitimate in "The Blessed Event," playing the feminine lead opposite Reginald Denny. Claudia is formerly of the Ziegfeld Follies and has been wanting to step in front of the footlights for a long time now.

Studies

50 'Pilgrims' Booked For Father Cox Tour

More than 50 persons in the tri-state district have booked reservations for the Rev. Father James R. Cox's seventh annual pilgrimage to Europe, which leaves Pittsburgh June 10, according to Father Cox.

The party will visit Montreal and the Shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre, Quebec, before sailing for Europe. In Dublin the pilgrims will attend the opening sessions of the Eucharistic Congress. They will be given a private audience with the Pope in Vatican City.

Summer Schedule For Federal Court

The summer schedule of the United States District Court was announced yesterday by J. Wood Clark, clerk of court. From June 15 to September 15, court will be held only Tuesdays and Thursday, with only one judge on the bench. Judge Nelson McVicar will preside from June 15 to July 15, Judge F. P. Schoonmaker from July 15 to August 15, and Judge R. M. Gibson from August 15 to September 15.

The court will be open only for current business and will convene at 10 a. m., daylight saving time.

Negri Is Star In Cinema

By MARY SHINE

Pola Negri gestures all over the place in "A Woman Commands" in the Avenue Cinema. Aside from that there is very little action and flimsy dialogue. Pola, as Mme. Maria Draga, a singer is in love with Basil Rathbone, as captain in the king's guard. The captain pays more attention to Maria than to his soldiering and gambles to provide her with luxuries, thereby incurring his general's deep displeasure.

The captain is ordered to a distant post to get him out of Maria's clutches. King Alexander, played by Roland Young, gets in a few wisecracks now and then, and, in between times, kidnaps Maria and marries her much against the will of his people. Things go from bad to worse, with Basil Rathbone popping up now and then to sneer at his lost love who has forsaken him for a king.

Finally the people rebel against the king, who is conveniently assassinated. Maria is sentenced to death, because she won't admit her baby son is illegitimate, to clear another's path to the throne. Rathbone also is sentenced to death for conspiracy to get her out of the country. And just as you are all ready for the fatal shots everything clears up mystically, and everyone lives happily ever after except poor King Alexander.

Commercial Use Of Property Sought

Love

"LOVE IS worth dying for . . ."

Paul Grove said that. And it came about in a funny way. He was the son of the wealthy mine owner—you remember. The kid had plenty of looks and charm, despite the hard hats they wore in 1907.

He had been in love with that red-headed Irish kid ever since he came back from college. Somehow, she seemed different. There was a change somewhere. What it was he didn't know.

But she was no longer a pig-tailed kid. She was a lady. That was it. She was a lady now. Her hair was piled like shiny strands of copper on her head. And, despite the fact that every girls in the town was on the make for Paul, he had a yen for no one but Mabel.

"Love is worth dying for . . ."

Paul Grove said that. And it came about in a funny way. He was standing on the bank of the creek with Mabel. Over their shoulders they could see a few houses nearby, and, farther back, the spire of the Baptist church.

The snow had melted. It seeped into the creek, making it cold, wide and muddy. They stood there talking of love. Paul insisted that she wear his fur coat. It looked big and floppy on her, and he shivered in the cold.

Paul proposed marriage. Mabel made no answer. His teeth chattered and he stuck his hands in his pockets dejectedly. Then she smiled. An impish, Irish smile.

"If you love me, jump in the creek for me." She had expected he would laugh—as she did. But he didn't.

"Love," he murmured, "is worth dying for . . ."

He slid down the muddy bank and splashed into the icy depths of the creek.

But he didn't die. He didn't even catch pneumonia. The doctor called it la grippe and his father called it damned foolishness.

Mabel married him the year after that. Her father, who worked in the Grove mines, was given the day off to witness the ceremony. Mabel's folk cried. The Groves never cried.

The couple moved into a big house on the outskirts of town. Paul was given a half interest in the mines as a wedding present, and had more money than most of us wish we had.

Mabel settled down to a life of luxury and ease. Her maid combed her red hair, the cook cooked and the butler buttled. That, she assumed, was all there was to life.

"Love is worth dying for . . ."

Paul Grove said that. And it came about in a funny way. They had been married five years. Paul was happy and content. Mabel was content.

They were sitting on the front porch. The electric fan sounded like a swarm of bees behind the house. Even in cool flannels, Paul looked warm. He ran a white handkerchief around the inside of his collar.

"But everybody's talking, dearest," he said. "Five long years have passed by. The foreman at the lode talked of nothing but his baby. Six he has. We have none. Everybody's talking, I tell you."

Mabel threw her head back and let the rush of air from the fan disturb her hair. She sighed.

"Let them talk," she murmured slowly. "Just let them talk. We're not going to have any. Too many women die that way."

Paul turned sad eyes on her.

"Love," he said simply, "is worth dying for . . ."

It took him 15 long years to find out the truth. When a man holds his hands before his eyes, it doesn't take an optometrist to tell you that he can't see.

Perhaps he was afraid of what he would see. It wasn't until the fall of 1928 that the affair reached the showdown stage.

Mabel had been in love with the superintendent of mine operations a long, long time.

But when he walked in that day, and found them together, nothing but stone blindness could save him from seeing. The superintendent was blond and tall and young. He smiled and offered no apology. He knew that Paul knew at last.

Mabel talked fast, nervously. She was sorry, awfully sorry, but he might just as well know it now as later. She had found love. She was in love. And Paul didn't figure in either of those things.

Paul played the gentleman to the hilt. His hands itched to choke, but he clasped them. His lungs itched to scream. His brain was numb.

Could he forget? Could he? Sure. Of course he could. Would he let Mabel go away with this—this man? Of course. Would he grant her a divorce? Absolutely. So it went . . .

"Love is worth dying for . . ."

Paul Grove said that. And it came about in a funny way. He found that he couldn't accept defeat gracefully. He found that, since the folks passed on, he missed Mabel more and more.

He tried liquor. But it didn't work. There were more aches in the heart than in the head after each try. Then he tried other women. That didn't work either.

He tried travel. He tried gambling. And most of all—he tried mismanaging his inheritance. On the day that he lost the mines, the new owners offered him a directorship on the board.

But he turned it down. He had lost the big house. He spent what little money he had left, and disappeared quietly. No one knew what had become of him, and few cared . . .

The cop watched the man closely. This was the fourth day the man had stood gazing in that department store window. What was he looking at? A bum like him couldn't afford to buy anything.

"Move on, bum!" The man shuffled off. He stopped once and looked back. Then he moved on.

The cop looked in the window. A lot of neat handbags were arranged in front. In the center stood a wax model wearing a gray military cape and holding a gray handbag. The wax model had brilliant red hair that peeped out like strands of copper from under the gray turban. On her face was an impish, Irish smile . . .

The cop chased him away every day for two weeks after that. He didn't want to arrest the poor man. He seemed inoffensive. At one time, maybe, he had been in better circumstances. But the old bum continued to come back.

The cop heard about it the day after his day off. The relief officer had been watching the window dressers changing a wax model. A blonde one had been carried in. The red-haired one disappeared.

An old bum—Lord knows what he might be!—had pressed his nose against the window and watched, too. He must have been crazy. Plain batty. For he was crying as they changed the wax models. After a while, he went away.

Late that night they found him. He was slumped down against the window, stiff as a board. The ambulance doctor said he died from a heart attack. There was no identification mark on him. But somebody—a child, perhaps—had scrawled some silly words in chalk across the window:

"Love," they read, "is worth dying for . . ."

NEW CHARGES LOOM IN BUILDING-LOAN CASE

POLITICS

Pa. Democracy Assumes Important Position

—By MARK SHIELDS—

Pennsylvania's Democracy, ordinarily an inconsequential segment of the political picture, subordinate to the eternally dominant Republican party in the state, always assumes an important position in presidential years. Indeed, the maneuvers of the Democrats then often take rank in public interest and importance above those of the Republicans, especially when a President is being renominated by the Republicans.

Mr. Shields

These observations, of course, attach to the pre-convention campaign, the selection of a candidate. In the election there is a reversion to normality, and Pennsylvania contributes no electoral votes to a Democratic candidate. But it does send 76 delegates to the national convention, a most potent weapon in deciding who shall be the nominee of the Democratic party.

For that reason much consideration should be given Pennsylvania's Democrats now, together with the influence they and their conduct may have upon delegates from other states, far and near.

For example, the outcroppings of last week's Democratic State Committee meeting, wherein the forces of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, scored a victory, may affect Ohio and West Virginia.

Roosevelt will receive the large majority of Pennsylvania delegates on the first ballot. He will get the vote of West Virginia also. Ohio will go for Gov. George White on the first ballot, but shortly will swing to Newton D. Baker. That, of course, is unless Roosevelt should be nominated on the first or second ballot, which only his most ardent boosters here in Pennsylvania and elsewhere predict.

With Roosevelt Stopped Anything Can Happen

The bitterness between the Roosevelt group and Al Smith opens the way to much speculation. There are few Pennsylvanians who think that Smith has a chance for the nomination, thought he will be placed before the convention. The tendency of his followers is to swerve to Baker early. They believe the Ohioan will attract support on this movement, with the delegates of his own state as a nucleus.

Then, should Baker and Roosevelt continue to stalemate the convention, the time for negotiations will have arrived. Therein lie possibilities for more than one potential candidate to profit by the animosities aroused, especially marked in Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania's anti - Roosevelt Democrats will exert all their influence to stop the New York Governor. They will do so because they are anti-Guffey Democrats before they are anti-Roosevelt Democrats, and see Roosevelt victory as enhancing the prestige and power of Joseph F. Guffey, the man who originated the campaign which led to the election of Warren Van Dyke as Democratic state chairman last week.

This ill feeling may be communicated to other states, particularly where the first choice is Smith, and where the determination to block Roosevelt will be equally as firm as is that wish—if not ability — among the Pennsylvania Smithites. If this ill feeling mounts to success, and if Roosevelt is stopped, anything can happen in the convention.

It is no difficult leap to a conclusion that the Roosevelt leaders might transfer their acrimony to Baker, looking upon him as an intended beneficiary of Smith's distaste for his former friend. In such circumstances the Roosevelt forces might refuse to accept Baker, even though he might at the time have the highest vote next to Roosevelt, and be in a position to need only the vote of the Roosevelt forces to become the nominee.

Garner to Profit by Succeeding Ballots

With that development it would not be surprising to see a turn to Speaker Garner, of Texas, who appears to be acceptable to more leading Democrats than is Gov. Ritchie, of Maryland. Garner stands to profit by succeeding ballots more than any of the other suggested leaders who will go into the convention with a secondary vote.

It is interesting to note the pleadings of some Democratic prominents against a repetition of the 1924 convention and its protracted balloting. They warn that the party will disrupt itself before the campaign begins. The significant feature is that the most ardent in hoping for a quick decision are the Roosevelt exponents.

They know they will go to the convention with the largest vote, possibly a majority. They realize that if a candidate with a majority cannot as one ballot follows another add sufficient to reach the necessary two-thirds and that if there is a centering of opposition on some one enemy the psychological effect will be bad from their standpoint.

Much of the progress of the convention will revolve about Pennsylvania. There are Roosevelt delegates here who are anti-Guffey, and there is no doubt but what the Smith people will work upon them to back away from the New Yorker after they have discharged their obligation, which they will consider fulfilled if he is not nominated early.

In other words, as in a bridge game, the Smith players will try to keep the bidding open, while the Rooseveltians will try to preempt. In such circumstances, look out for some "psychic" attacks.

U. S. JOB LOAN INDORSED BY MULDOWNEY

5-Billion Prosperity Loan Appeal Supported by Vets, Congressmen Erk, Kelly

Warning that the city's $5,000,000 bond issue for unemployment relief through a program of local public improvements was not security against suffering by the unemployed next winter, City Councilman Michael J. Muldowney added his suport to the national appeal for a $5,000,000,000 federal prosperity loan.

The Greater Pittsburgh Chapter, Disabled American Veterans of the World War, today added its support to the proposed plan for public work programs to give employment to more than 1,200,000 in Pennsylvania and over 190,000 wage earners in Allegheny County now idle.

WAR-LIKE CRISIS

Commander Norman A. Robinson declared:

"We, in the form of a resolution, have gone on record in favor of the Hearst plan of a federal bond issue because we think that the present crisis can be considered in like proportion to war."

An appeal that voters write their Representatives and Senators was issued by Councilman Muldowney, who is Republican nominee for Congress, in a radio address last night from Station WCAE. He pointed out:

"I believe that a dole is un-American. I do not believe the people would appreciate anything smacking of outright charity. I believe the people want an opportunity to work for what they receive. President Hoover, speaking to the Methodist congress at Atlanta said:

"'Unemployment walks before you as something more real than a spectre. It presents not only an economic difficulty, but an acute problem from human beings.'

"I heartily indorse this statement. I believe the $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan bond issue is a real solution."

KELLY PLEDGES AID

Congressman Clyde Kelly has pledged tireless effort towards forcing federal aid. Responding to the resolution of the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association, which urged support, he wrote:

"I am a member of a steering committee of a group pledged not to adjourn until public improvements have been authorized on a scale big enough to break the back of this depression."

Congressman Edmund F. Erk, responding to the association, cited his current resolution introduced in the House for a joint committee on industrial and business restoration, which he urged should study the federal aid. Declaring now was the time to start building the Lake Erie-Ohio River Canal, Congressman Erk said many projects have already been either authorized or approved by Congress and only await appropriations to begin work. He listed projects totaling $1,345,440,000, including:

Public building program, $634,444,000; roads, $300,000,000; rivers and harbors, $130,000,000; modernization of battleships, $30,000,000; Boulder Dam, $165,000,000; forest highways, $30,000,000; public works, Navy, $10,000,000; military posts construction, $15,000,000, and veterans' hospitals, $31,000,000.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 24.

I don't suppose their is any country unless it be India, where the wife is any more downtrodden than they are in the United States. Amelia Putnam flew across the Atlantic Ocean and then had to call up her husband to see if he thought it would be safe for a married woman to venture into London alone.

Will Rogers

Our hats are off to Amelia. Her bravery is only surpassed by her skill. But there is no use kidding ourselves, it does make a "sucker" out of us men. While the men are playing bridge, and arguing over their golf scores, the women are flying the ocean. Yours,

WILL.

Perhaps Hoover Thinks Public Has Had 'Works'

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

We're glad to hear about that proposed truce between Congress and the President.

But why should they be at war?

It's time we all got together. And put our shoulders to the buzz saw.

We admit that Washington relief would not relieve the people of anything. That's because Wall street attended to the job.

But why the executive opposition to a bond issue for public works? Does Mr. Hoover think the public has been given the works already?

And we don't want to hear of any war between Congress and the President, because it makes the Vice President a spy.

2 CONTRACTORS ACCUSE MAN

Accused of engaging contractors for the remodeling of a house at 122 Henderson street, North Side, without authority, W. A. McDonald, of 429 Trenton avenue, Wilkinsburg, will be arraigned before Alderman Edward Haas, of 1711 West Liberty avenue, tonight and before Alderman Charles E. Gibson, of 1714 Beaver avenue, tomorrow night.

McDonald was charged with false pretense in an information filed before Alderman Haas by Edward Benson, a painting contractor, of 1218 Reed street, seeking payment of $180. J. C. Hosick, an electrician, of 920 Western avenue, seeking payment of $200, filed a similar charge before Alderman Gibson.

William S. Anderson, of 803 Woodbourne avenue, Brookline, general contractor, said McDonald told him the house was to be remodeled. Anderson was said to have referred McDonald to Benson, Hosick and a plumbing contractor.

Half finished with the job, the contractors, it was said, learned from Maurice Murphy, the owner, that McDonald was not authorized to have them do the work.

N. Y. MAN HELD, WANDLESS OUT ON BAIL

Bond Set Low Because of Help With Arrest; Police Tracing Alleged Threats

Howard E. Wandless, secretary of the Modern Building and Loan Association, is expected to appear as a witness against C. C. Donkin, of New York, held in the county jail in default of $45,000 bail on charges of conspiracy to defraud and extortion, brought by Deputy State Secretary of Banking George F. Taylor Jr.

Wandless has been released on $15,000 bail on charges of conspiracy to defraud.

LOW BAIL GRANTED

A shortage existing in the funds of the Modern Building and Loan Association is said to approximate $90,000.

Bail for Wandless was set at an unusually low figure because of the help he gave officers in the arrest of Donkin in New York, Sunday, and his offer to turn state's evidence, authorities said.

Taylor announced he plans to place additional charges of embezzlement against Donkin. Hearings for both men will be held before Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan.

DIRECTORS' STATEMENT

The Modern Building and Loan Association is carrying on business as usual while an audit is being made of its funds. Directors, in a statement said:

"Whereas the audit of the Modern Building and Loan Association has not been completed no accurate statement as to figures relative to shortage and to undivided profits can be issued. It is hoped that the earnings not withdrawn and the amount of the surety bond will offset any shortage."

The exact nature of the hold Donkin is said to have had on Wandless is still puzzling investigators. They said it was believed that a number of years ago Wandless had a part in an irregular business transaction of which Donkin learned.

THREATS REPORTED

Since that time, Wandless told police, he had been threatened by telephone, telegraph and letter. Repeatedly he sent payments of money to Donkin, he told authorities, and produced a packet of more than 50 threatening telegrams and letters purporting to be from Donkin.

It was an offer of cash, police said, that trapped Donkin in Greenwich Village Sunday. New York detectives aided in the arrest.

Several others knew of the threats and the money paid to Donkin, authorities declare, and more arrests are expected.

PHYSICAL TEST GIVEN PUPILS

A second group of Penn Township children were examined yesterday in the Lincoln Park School to determine their physical fitness to enter school this fall. Weight and height measurements are taken, vaccinations examined or administered and general health recommendations for the correction of physical defects are being made under the direction of Miss Ila Grant, school nurse, according to S. Roberts, supervising principal.

The first group, including children who will enter the William Penn and Ben Franklin schools, were examined last Friday in the William Penn School. Today children from the Universal and Washington school districts will receive attention at the latter school building. On Wednesday the nurse will attend children of the Davidson and Roosevelt schools in the Davidson building; on Thursday examinations are at the Morrow School and on Tuesday, May 31, at the William McKinley School.

Kreuger, Toll Files Bankruptcy Petition

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, May 24.—(AP)—Kreuger and Toll, the parent company of the vast interests which were headed by the late Ivar Kreuger, filed a petition in bankruptcy today and applied for annulment of the provisional moratorium granted to it by the Swedish government.

This action followed the adoption by Parliament of a bill amending the bankruptcy law. The purpose of the amendment was to facilitate liquidation of Kreuger & Toll and to give creditors of the company more protection than was provided under the old bankruptcy law.

INDEPENDENTS' FUND $208,256

HARRISBURG, May 24.—(AP)—The Independent Republican Campaign Committee spent $208,256 in its unsuccessful efforts in behalf of Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler for Senator and candidates for state offices indorsed by Gov. Gifford Pinchot at last month's Republican primary.

The report of contributors filed with the State Elections Bureau yesterday covered 142 pages and showed donations ranging from $1 to a maximum of $1,000. There were two contributions of $1,000 from Gov. Pinchot and C. M. Hansom, of Philadelphia. Gen. Butler gave $500.

With the report, Arthur C. Dale, committee chairman, issued a statement defending the "high price of organized opposition to the solidly-entrenched" Regulars and saying he had "no apologies to make for any dollar that was contributed or any dollar expended."

The Regular organization has not yet reported its expenditures.

WIDENING PLAN DELAYED WEEK

Council yesterday laid over for a week an ordinance authorizing improvement and widening of Shetland street from 22 to 25 feet, on motion of Councilman P. J. McArdle.

It was found residents of the street must pay for the removal of about 40 water lines. Councilman McArdle visited the district and also noted that the Pittsburgh Railways Company uses Shetland street as the terminus of car runs. Paulson avenue, nearby, is a street 60 feet in width, and it was believed that layovers should be confined to that thoroughfare.

Council recessed until Wednesday to give the residents of the district affected further opportunity to be heard. The street can be resurfaced without expense to the property owners. Michael De Rosa is said to be back of the plan to widen it.

Insurance Collector Loses $260 in Holdup

An armed man who robbed Oscar Wanetick, 40, of 908 Cherokee street, collector for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, of $260 of the company's collections last night, was being sought by police today.

Wanetick was walking in California avenue, near Forsythe street, when the gunman confronted him. The thug fled in an automobile which he had parked nearby.

First he made his way into the contagious disease ward. There the nurses overtook him. He jumped out of a window and landed in a basement light well.

Orderlies attempted to rescue him. He bombarded them with rocks.

HEARING FREES GEARY, DE BASI

Alderman Thomas M. Geary and his deputy constable, James DeBasi, were discharged by Justice of the Peace Theresa Haser, of Keown Station, yesterday when William Kessler, former deputy constable from Alderman Luke Sullivan's office, who preferred the information, failed to appear.

Geary was charged with pointing firearms and DeBasi with assault and battery 10 days ago during the arrest of a constable from Sullivan's office. Geary and DeBasi denied the charges.

At Alderman Sullivan's office it was said Kessler did not appear because he had not been informed of the date of the hearing.

3 STUDENTS SUE CHARITY BODY

The Supplies for Needy Commission, conducting the Helping Hand, was named defendant in three suits filed in Common Pleas Court by college students claiming a total of $29,500 damages for injuries in an automobile collision.

Miss Fern Wolfe, seeking $12,500 damages, and William F. Richardson, seeking $8,500 damages, both attending University of Pittsburgh and living in McKeesport, and Clarence S. Marsh, of Duquesne, and attending Duquesne University, seeking $8,500 damages, were in Marsh's automobile when it collided with a car owned by the commission at Beechwood boulevard and Forward avenue January 14, the suits alleged.

The driver of the commission car, named Acklin, abandoned his machine immediately after the collision and has not been seen since, according to Marshall, Braun & Notari, attorneys for the plaintiffs.

"LET sleeping dogs lie!" So said the cigarette trade when first we raised the subject of inhaling. But dodging an important issue is not Lucky Strike's policy!

Do you inhale? That question is vitally important . . . for every smoker inhales—knowingly or unknowingly. Every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette! And the delicate membranes of your throat demand that your smoke be pure, clean—free of certain impurities!

No wonder Lucky Strike dares to raise this vital question! For Luckies bring you the protection you want... because Luckies' famous purifying process removes certain impurities concealed in every tobacco leaf. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

So, whether you inhale knowingly or unknowingly, safeguard those delicate membranes!

RETURN OF BANK SUBSCRIPTION CASH NEAR

McCaffrey Assails State Department for Failure Of Reorganization Plan

A plan under which money subscribed for reopening the Pennsylvania Bank and Trust Company will be returned to the subscribers will be adopted at a meeting next week, Thomas McCaffrey, Jr., chairman of the reorganization committee announced. Unless a decision is made for a new start under the enabling act of 1930 the plan for reopening the institution will be dropped, he declared.

Affairs of the bank are in as good condition as those of any bank that has been closed, he said, adding that lack of co-operation by the State Department of Banking, which changed appraisals and new money quota requirements as the stock and bond market fluctuated, was responsible for the inability of workers to re-open the band.

WOULD REPAY ALL

He said:

"Another factor was that our plan embraced a guarantee of 100 per cent return of the more than $2,000,000 deposits to our 7,000 depositors. No state bank in Pennsylvania has been able to reopen on that basis.

"If the banking department had listened to us six months ago we would now have our bank open. The department at first told us that we must raise $220,000 'new money,' which meant a sale of 4,000 shares at $80. After we had sold 1,100 shares and reported progress we were informed that we must raise $400,000.

"Ten days ago we learned that this would not satisfy the department. Dr. William D. Gordon, state secretary of banking, came to Pittsburgh and told us that the bank's assets had depreciated a little more than an additional $100,000 during the preceding three weeks and that we would have to make another setup.

APPRAISALS LOW

"We prepared a new setup, calling for raising $560,000 of 'new money' through the sale of 7,000 shares at $80. We felt that would be a hard goal to reach, but we hoped that if conditions improved within 60 or 90 days the department would grant us easier conditions. But we were simply told our plan was impractical.

"One thing that hurt was their low appraisal of some of our bank's assets. Our bank building, suitable only for bank purposes, was appraised by the department at $37,500, although I appraised it at $240,000 in 1930."

PLAN NEW BANK IN WASHINGTON

A stock selling campaign for a new bank at Washington, Pa., will be started June 1, it was announced here today, following a meeting yesterday of the State Banking Department officials and James C. Chaplin, president of the Colonial Trust Company. The Colonial Trust Company was designated as trustee depository. Washington business interests, headed by John M. Spriggs, are backing the movement.

The new bank, designed to take the place of the three closed banks in Washington, will have as its foundation the assets and holdings of the Union Trust Company of Washington. Under the reorganization plan the original stock will be split 60-40, the present stockholders to receive the latter share. The 60 per cent, or 3,000 shares, is to be sold to raise capital for the new bank, which will have a total capital of $340,000, according to its sponsors.

. . . PARTLY BLIND . . .

Salvation Campaign Pledge Hardly Decipherable

Salvation Army officials were puzzled for a half hour today deciphering an almost illegible postcard from a contributor 93 years old who is almost blind. Living in Jackson Center, Mercer County, he pledged a contribution of $10.

As nearly as the words could be interpreted, the note is: "Applied for Army's most deserved. I am nearly 93 years old and partly blind. (The three ensuing words defied solution). I will be 93 ys old in July 15."

The contribution came in the daily batch of replies received in connection with the Army's drive now under way for $112,500. According to the Army's latest reports from the corps of 1,100 women solicitors receipts are measuring fairly well up to expectations.

Nine employes of Stouffer's restaurant, 618 Smithfield street, caught in a rush of refrigerant fumes when a tank burst in the kitchen on the second floor late yesterday, today were reported recovered. Fifteen employes and diners were driven to the street.

The victims were treated in the emergency hospital of the Bell Telephone Company nearby and sent to their homes. They gave their names as Richard Steinberg, day manager; Andy Drobuszowski and James R. Bryner, dish washers; Anna Urban, roll baker; Ted Mannick, of the supply room; Catherine Papciak, pastry cook; Anna Babjack, assistant cook, and Miss M. J. McLaughlin and Miss L. G. The fumes were first reported as being ammonia by an employe of the restaurant, but later it was stated they were from another refrigerant.

KERR'S STAND HOLDS UP BILLS

Payment of several bills authorized by resolution by City Council was held up yesterday as a result of a statement of Controller James P. Kerr that he will not sign warrants for bills except those passed by ordinance. Members of Council said they wanted to know if the Controller intends to insist upon this action.

Council directed City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt to confer with Kerr.

Controller Kerr today said he had no objection to Council ordering the bills paid, provided the resolutions for payment were advertised.

President John S. Herron said payments had been made in accordance with the Wallace act, but that in view of questions raised Council should be informed by the legal department whether an ordinance or resolution should be passed to authorize the payments.

More Traynor Records. • Johnson's Shutout Feat.

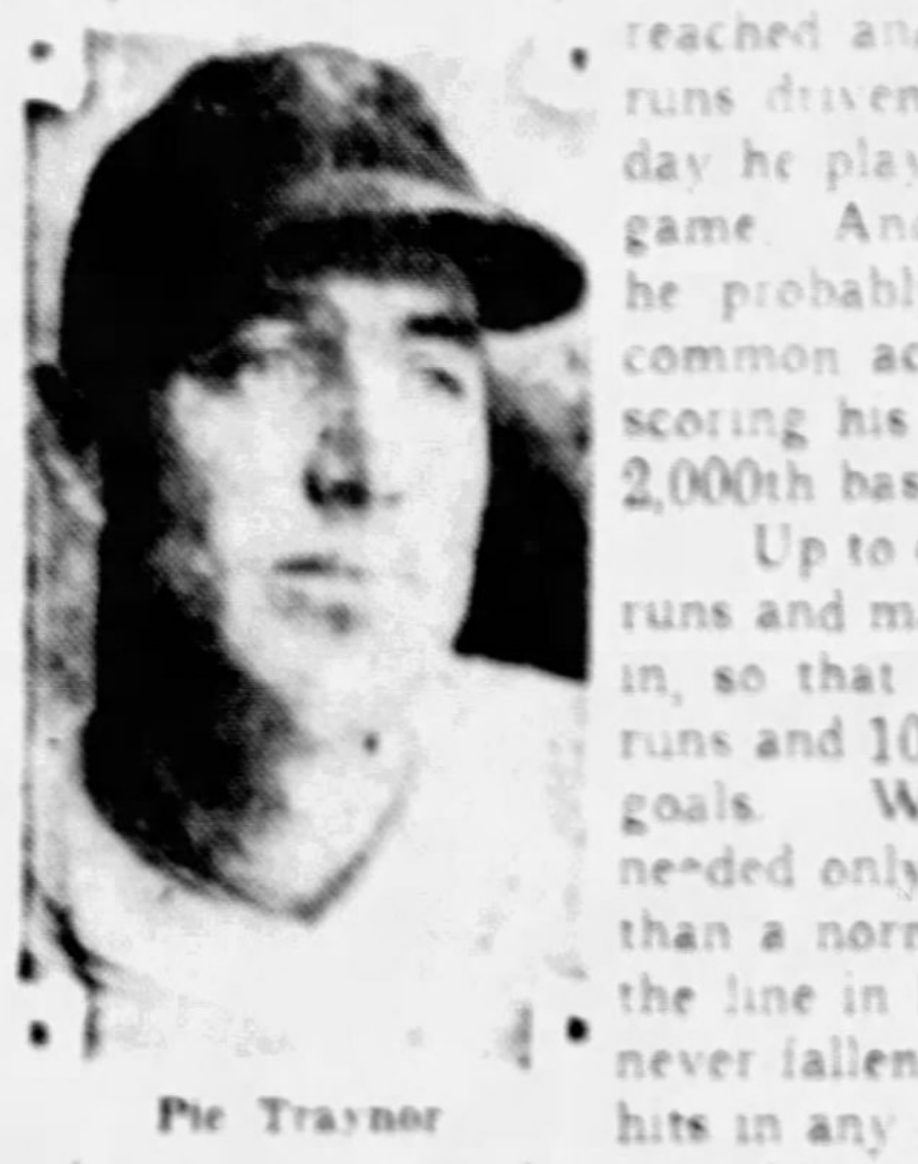
PIE NEAR 1,000 RUNS AND 2,000 HITS

IT'S JUST ONE unusual mark after another for Pie Traynor, as the Pirate captain continues to round out notable chapters in the story of his remarkable career. Last fall he reached and passed a total of 1,000 in runs driven across the plate. Last Sunday he played his 1,500th major league game. And before the season is ended he probably will place two other uncommon achievements to his credit by scoring his 1,000th run and making his 2,000th base hit.



Pie Traynor

Up to date, Traynor has scored 950 runs and made 1,893 hits since he broke in, so that he needs only 50 additional runs and 107 safeties to reach two more goals. When the season started he needed only 65 runs and 139 hits. Less than a normal gait will carry him over the line in both departments, as he has never fallen lower than 81 runs nor 160 hits in any of his 10 full seasons. With only seven to go, he probably will make his 1,900-hit in a few more days. Two other marks that Pie is likely to reach this year are 6,000 times at bat and 150 stolen bases. He has been up 5,881 times and has swiped 145 sacks.

THOUGH SUPPORTING THEIR reconstructed club loyally in the main, Cincinnati fans have been giving Mickey Heath a riding almost daily because of his failure to hit. The jeering has affected him.

Dan Howley is convinced Heath will prove a satisfactory regular if the home fans only give him half a chance. Those who watched Mickey in the minors back up the Red pilot's opinion. They say Heath has always been a late starter in hitting, and predict June will find him stinging the ball.

IT IS UNUSUAL for the big leagues to present in one year enough players from one college to make a complete lineup, but by moving Riggs Stephenson back into the infield, where he first played, you could make up a team of former University of Alabama men who wore major league uniforms this season.

THE RECENT FEAT of Johnny Allen, George Pipgras, Charley Ruffing and Vernon Gomez in pitching four consecutive shutouts for the Yankees, recalls the greatest individual feat of that kind during a league season. In 1908, his second year in the majors, Walter Johnson shut out the New York Americans in three straight games on their own grounds. On Friday, September 4, he beat Chesbro and Doyle, 3 to 0; on Saturday, September 5, he beat Manning and Lake, 6 to 0, and in the first game of a double-header on Monday, September 7, he beat Chesbro, 4 to 0. Probably the only reason why Walter didn't squeeze in another game on Sunday was that they weren't playing Sunday ball in the East at that time.

Walter Johnson

FAR FROM WEAKENING under the strain of pitching three games in four days, Johnson appeared to get stronger as he went along. Against six hits in the first game, he allowed only four in the second and two in the third. A fair sort of pitcher, was Walter.

Christy Mathewson's three shutouts against the A's in the world series of 1905 are not to be overlooked while this subject is before the house, particularly as Matty was hurling against a pennant winner while Johnson did his whitewashing against a tail-ender. But Christy did not make his record in consecutive games. He had two days' rest between his first and second games and one day's rest between his second and third tilts.

JOHNSON STILL HOLDS the record for consecutive shutout innings, 56 in 1913, but the high mark for successive shutout games belongs to Doc White, who hurled five in a row for the White Sox on September 12, 16, 19, 25 and 30, in 1904.

The National League record for shutout games is held jointly by Ed Reulbach and Grover Alexander, each of whom pitched four straight, Reulbach for the Cubs in 1908, and Alexander for the Phillies in 1911. As the second and third numbers of his string, Reulbach pitched a double-header against Brooklyn on the afternoon of September 26, 1908, and blanked the Dodgers in both games.

"A MAN IS at his best between 26 and 30, and after that he begins to go down," said Max Schmeling when Ed Hughes asked his opinion of the best age for athletic achievement. "A fighter is at his best at 30," was Jack Sharkey's response to the same question. "He is at his best physically because his frame has attained its full growth, has matured in every way. And at that age he has the experience he lacked in younger days. That is something very important, particularly in my game." Schmeling will be 27 on September 28. Sharkey will be 30 on October 6. Putting 27 and 30 together, Hughes considers it just possible that each is swayed by a little personal vanity and prejudice; that each likes to think himself at the peak of his power.

AND HE FINDS in looking over the sports field, past and present, that age isn't a matter of figures, but an individual question of how you can stand the pace. Several big league baseball players are 40 or beyond. Jack Quinn is 47. Babe Ruth is drawing a $75,000 salary at 38. Jimmy Hennigan will run in the Olympic marathon at 40. De Mar was winning marathons up to 42. Nurmi isn't far behind.

Pat McDonald, still tossing weights and trying for the Olympic team, is well past 50. Bill Tilden continues to play great tennis at 40. Jerry Travers, amateur golf champion in 1907, is coming back. Frank Kramer equaled the quarter-mile cycling record at 44. Jack Britton was a ring champion at 38. Bob Fitzsimmons gave Jim Jeffries a great fight at 40 and stayed in the game until he was 52. Jem Mace won the heavyweight championship at 38. Kaye Don is 47. Sir Malcolm Campbell is 48, and Barney Oldfield is coming back at 54.

BACK IN THE days when Pittsburgh was the American center of the ice sport, hockey was played with seven men on a side. They reduced it to six by dropping the rover. Now they've voted to do the same thing to box lacrosse, recently introduced in this country, though the change will be delayed until next year.

Another change decided on is to make each game hereafter consist of four 15-minute periods instead of three 20-minute sessions, the idea being to speed up the game. The sport is catching on in the East. Among other institutions, West Point has plans under way already to install a box lacrosse court.

George Spitz

FOLLOWERS OF TRACK and field sports in this district who could not understand the failure of Howard Spencer, Geneva's star Negro high jumper, to do better than 6 feet 3 inches in his meeting with George Spitz, world champion, in New York last week, when he had easily beaten that mark in the Penn relays a short time before, have the explanation in a statement by Spitz. The champion was explaining his own inability to go higher than 6 feet 4 inches. "The conditions rendered better jumping impossible," he said. "When I ran up to the bar I pulled up great pieces of earth with my spikes. I thought any minute I'd break an ankle or pull a tendon."

CINCINNATI, May 24.—George Gibson's Pirates this morning acted like a person who had an account to square and the comparison holds. Eager for action this afternoon in the first clash of a three-game series with the rushing Reds, the Pittsburghers showed their vengeful spirit after they had recalled that in six clashes with Danny Howley's crew this year they have copped only one game.

It's been many a year since any Cincinnati club won five of its first six games with a Pittsburgh representative, but the revamped Rhinelanders are cutting a lot of capers this season.

FRENCH TO HURL

Larry French is the laddie buck who aims to slow down the Redlegs today. Rearin' to go again on top of his two-hit masterpiece against the Cardinals, the ambitious left-hander will get the slab assignment from Manager George Gibson. French probably will be opposed on the slab by Silas Johnson, a clever young right-hander.

Manager Gibson expected to pick up two players today. Heinie Meine, holdout pitching ace, who signed Sunday, is due to join the club in time to work out before this afternoon's fracas. Catcher Tom Padden, secured on trial from the New York Yankees, also is expected to hook up with the Buccos.

The coming of Catcher Padden brought about the unconditional release yesterday of Catcher Leo Dixon, a former major league receiver, who was signed by the Buccos a few weeks ago when a big emergency existed in the Pittsburgh catching corps. Earl Grace and Hal Finney were unable to catch so the management secured Dixon, who was a free agent. Leo proved a handy boy to have around, but it was not necessary to use him in a contest. Several other Pirates must be disposed of within three weeks, as the club must be down to the lawful 23 by June 15.

Boss Gibson is anxious to get a peek at young Padden. The trial package took part in almost 100 games for Kansas City, of the American Association, last year. His bat played a merry tune as he compiled a batting average of almost .350.

GRACE IN TRIM

Earl Grace, meantime, is in excellent shape and is catching fine ball. It is becoming more apparent each day that the Buccos put over a beneficial deal when they traded Rolly Hemsley to the Cubs for the dependable Grace. The pitchers seem to be in a better stride when he is receiving them.

The Pirates are to show at Forbes Field for a stretch before they leave for the East. After staging the third game here on Friday they will head for Forbes Field there to take on the Cardinals in two games, which will wind up the week. On Sunday they will sport themselves in Chicago in a dual bill with the Cubs, after which they will hustle back to Forbes Field for the annual Memorial Day games, the Reds to furnish the opposition. The Cubs also will appear in a series in Forbes Field next week.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: TERRY M'GOVERN—McGovern won the bantamweight title on September 12, 1899, by knocking out Pedlar Palmer, of England, in one round at Hartford, Conn. On June 23, 1900, he whipped George Dixon in eight rounds in New York for the featherweight title. A few weeks later, on July 16, 1900, he knocked out the lightweight champion, Frank Erne, in three rounds, although the title was not at stake. These victories all were accomplished within one year, and before McGovern was old enough to vote—his birth date being March 9, 1880. THE ISLAND OF THE SAD DAY—Such is the name of the Island of Tokaboko, named Pappenburg by the original Dutch settlers in Japan. My caption commemorates the sad day in 1620 when the Japanese persecution of rising Christianity culminated in the last 10,000 converts to Catholicism being driven to the top of the island rising out of the ocean to a height of 200 feet. Summoned to renounce their Catholic faith, the 10,000 martyrs declared that they preferred death to apostasy and were driven off the edge of the precipice at the point of the Tycoon soldiers' spears, to perish in the sea. THE INVENTION OF THE "Y." Palamedes, of Euboea, the ancient inventor of chess, also is the inventor of the letter "Y." According to his own version, the form of the new letter was suggested to him by the flight formation of cranes.

Big Tom Netherland, rangy and hefty Beaver High School all-round star, who shattered the W. P. I. A. L. and all listed scholastic records for heaving the 12-pound shot at the annual W. P. I. A. L. championship meet in the Pitt Stadium last Saturday, will not carry his laurels into the state meet at Altoona this week.

Although he has made his reputation as a shot-putter, it is the discus that interests the big fellow the most, and last Saturday he was unable to get a hold of one, failing to gain a place in the event, the winning distance of which he has bettered on numerous occasions. He's decided not to enter the P. I. A. A. carnival, putting it up to Andy Lasky, of New Castle, to lug the burden in the shot and discus both for the W. P. I. A. L. team.

The W. P. I. A. L. athletes, for the most part, will repair to Altoona Friday for light drills and a good night's rest before the ardorous all-day meet Saturday.

Coach Guy Halferty, of Carnegie Tech, is working his Tartan squad for all it is worth for the final meet of the season Thursday with Grove City. The Grovers boast no particular strength, and it is Tech's ambition to make a clean sweep of the first place, if possible.

RACE PILE-UP KILLS JOCKEY

CLEVELAND, May 24.—(AP.)—Bainbridge race track, scene of many a serious spill in seasons past, had on its record today another spectacular smashup, probably the worst of them all.

One jockey was killed and two others injured, one of them critically, when five horses piled up in a struggling mass in yesterday afternoon's third race, a $600 claiming event.

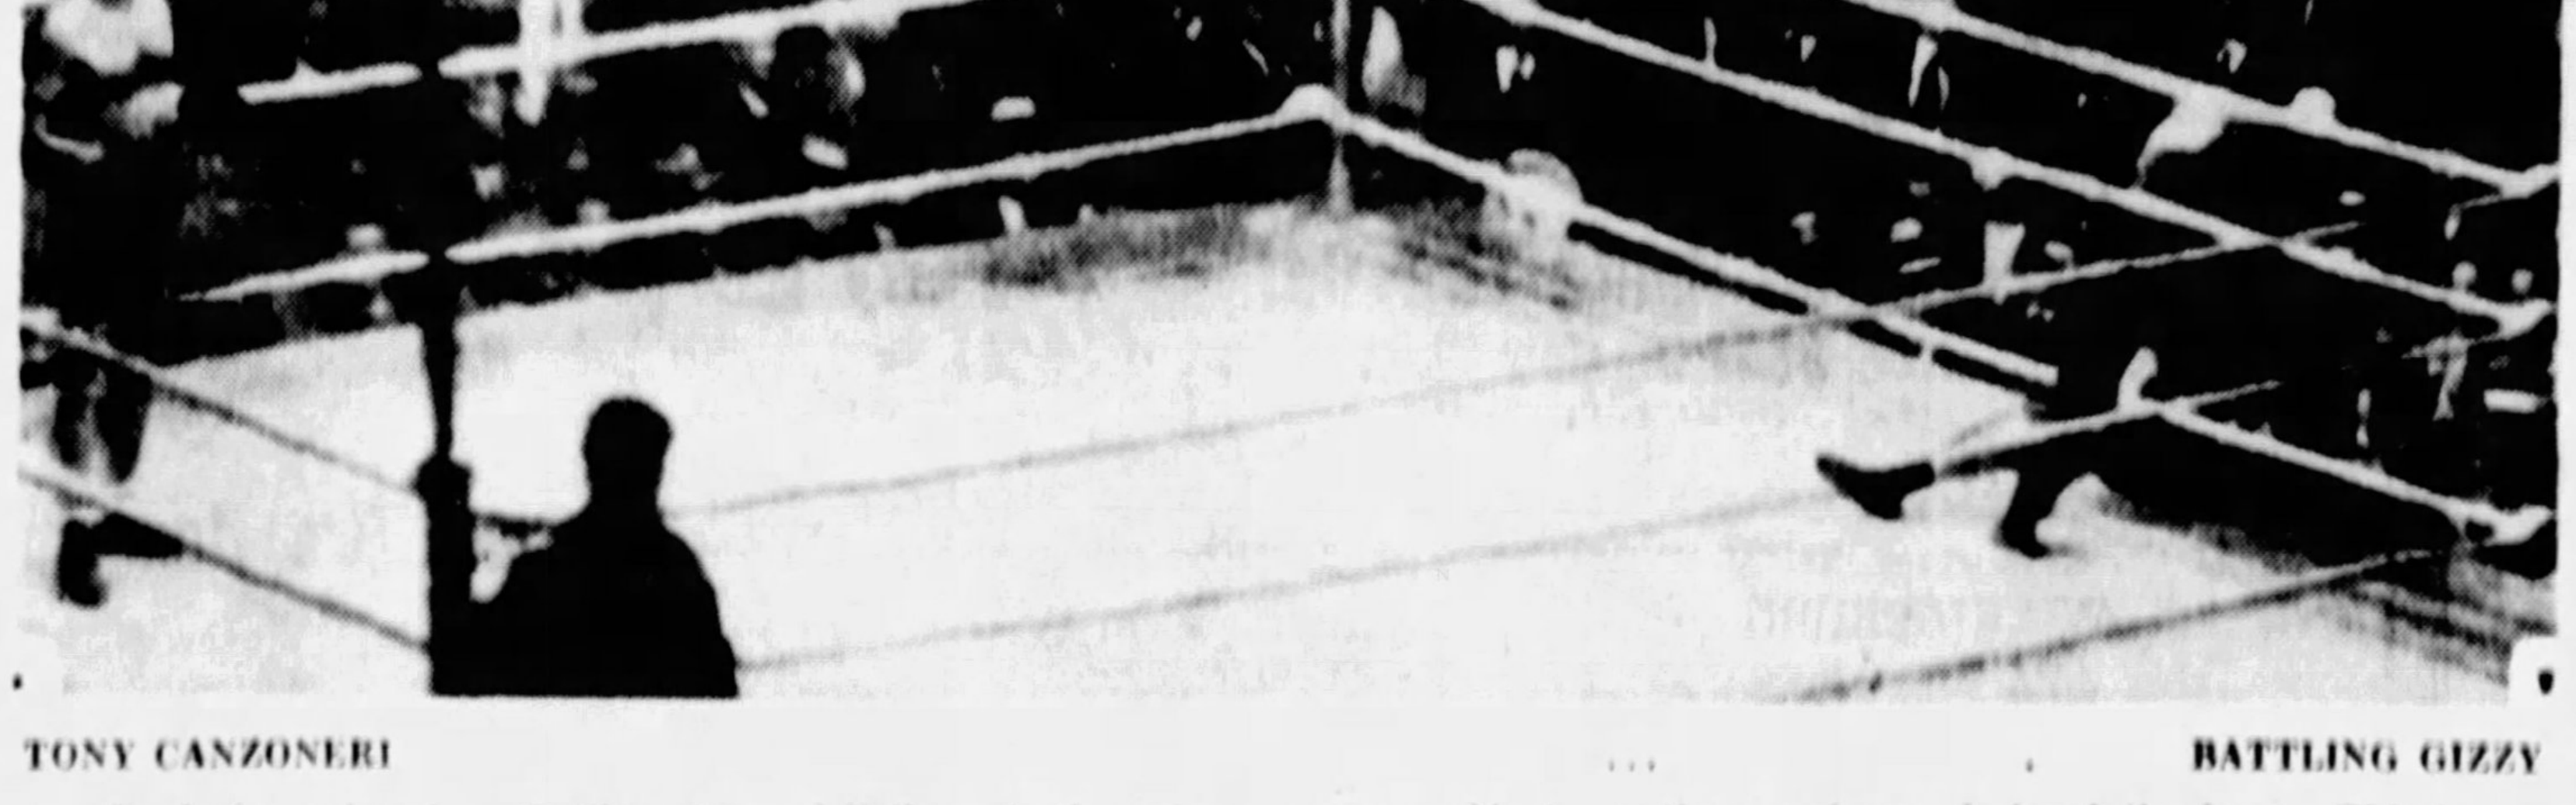
Charles Peg, 20, of Catonsville, Md., up on Chorister, received fatal injuries and died in an ambulance. His skull was fractured.

Jose Hernandez, 18, of New Orleans, and William Carroll, 20, of Covington, Ky., are in a hospital today, Hernandez with a fractured left arm and possible internal injuries, and Carroll injured internally and in a serious condition.

Tracy Reno, up on Erin Go Bragh, went down in the pile-up, killing his mount. Reno and Lee Hardy, the fifth jockey figuring in the smash, managed to roll out uninjured.

None of the jockeys was able to give a coherent account of what happened, but spectators said the horses piled up when Hernandez' mount, Phi Delta, bore out from the fence and interfered with the field.

How Canzoneri-Gizzy Bout Wound Up



Confusion reigned as Battling Gizzy fell through the ropes during the fifth round of his bout with Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion of the world, at the Meyers Bowl last night. He was unable to continue and was declared the loser. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

Mr. and Mrs. Boxing Fan st were in somewhat of a daze to day following a series of ey popping adventures that thrilled them in the opening show of the season in the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, last night. The arena was jammed to capacity for an inaugural that long will be remembered.

Tony Canzoneri

Only one fight went the limit, and that was the opening preliminary. Two ended in clean-c knockouts, one was stopped, an the windup sent the spectato home talking to themselves, u able to agree upon just what h occurred as Tony Canzone lightweight champion of th world, was declared the winner o a knockout over Battling Giz of Donora, in the fifth roun when Gizzy was partly punche and partly pushed through th ropes and landed on the ring pla form and almost rolled onto th press table. He claimed he ha injured his spine and could n continue.

FANS ARGUE OVER FINISH

There were those who said punch had folded up Gizzy a others who held he hadn't bee punched at all, but had bee shoved through the ropes.

As an eye-witness, this write who shared with another scri the honor of making up a reception committee for Gizzy as h came tumbling through th strands, is in a position to sta that Gizzy was hurt. When h first hit the ropes there was n expression of pain on his face, bu the moment he struck the edge o the ring platform his features wer contorted and he moaned i agony.

Red Robinson, the referee, wh later declared Canzoneri the winner by a knockout, although the was no count over the prostra Gizzy and it therefore really w a technical knockout, or cou have been called "no contest" because of the accidental en [illegible] was on top of the Battler at on and began to drag him back int the ring, whereas the rules say man punched out of the ring mu get in under his own momentum When Gizzy protested that he wa hurt, the arbiter told him h couldn't have been hurt and ordered him to resume boxing, bu Gizzy merely continued on wit his dying swan scene, and then conference was held with the boxing commissioner while Gizzy manager asked that a doctor b called to examine his man.

Finally, they dragged Gizzy t his feet and ordered him to wal around and shake off his injur but they had to lift him almos bodily to even get him to his cor ner, whereupon announcemen was made that Canzoneri was th winner by a knockout.

ENDS IN FIASCO

Thus ended in fiasco a bout th had pleased the crowd no end u to this time. Gizzy made a ver good showing against the ma who has won three world cham pionships, holding his own in th first round, losing the second winning the third and breakin even in the fourth. His punchin flurries bothered the champion who kept stalking him, but seldom was able to get him set for good punch, the Battler invariabl blazing away with a series o swings just when Tony though he had him cornered. There we occasional slugging exchanges, i which Gizzy held up his end ve well.

True, Canzoneri hit the harde and cleaner blows and kept walking in on his man all of the time whereas Gizzy circled about th ring most of the time, attackin from a distance. But the contra in styles and Tony's inability t break through and score as h pleased made matters interestin right up to the final momen Tony was a bit in front and wa beginning to get to Gizzy mor effectively with a body bombardment just when the bout ende with such dramatic suddenness.

DUQUESNE AND TECH NET TEAMS VICTORS

WIN SEASON'S FIRST FOR BLUFFITES

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Grant Siverd's Duke varsity net squad registered a long-deferred triumph yesterday. After battling through a month of adversity, with no better consolation than an abbreviated deadlock with W. & J. the Hillmen ganged up to trim the Waynesburg College crew, 5-2, on the Bluff asphalt and thus to cop initial Red and Blue net victory of the campaign of 1932.

While the Dukes were recording their initial triumph of the season, Carnegie Tech's varsity netters closed their season by walloping Wash-Jeff, 6-1, on the Tartan rectangles. Thompson, stellar W. & J. captain, scored his team's only victory, defeating Groves, of Tech, 6-2, 6-3, to keep his singles record for the season intact.

PLAY LONG MATCH

In the final doubles match between Dueger and Hartig, of Tech, and Thompson and Ludwig, of Wash-Jeff, 32 games were necessary before the Tartan duo managed to win, 6-4, 12-10.

Singles wins by Capt. Rege Bullion, Casey, Soisson, and Stillwagon in the top quartet of singles tilts, plus success at second doubles by Bullion and Jack Harkins, accounted for the Duke victory. All of the Hill tallies came in consecutive sets, save that of Stillwagon over the younger Waychoff.

DAY'S CARD LIGHT

The coming week-end will see considerable non-league inter-club activity at Greensburg Country Club, with Howard Clark leading his Westinghouse contingent thither on Saturday and Sam Keller's Duquesne Library delegation being billed for the Westmoreland County seat either Sunday or Decoration Day.

Yesterday's summaries:

BRAVES GAIN LOOP LEAD

Associated Press.

The St. Louis Browns, winners of seven of their last eight engagements and a brand new American League menace, are having a jolly time disproving one of baseball's oldest maxims—that a club's batting strength must be concentrated midway of the line-up, and let the bottom end take care of itself.

Bill Killefer, who has ideas of his own, has upset the best traditions by keeping Jim Levey, the club's one and only .341 hitter, in eighth position, just one step above the pitcher. As a result, the Browns present a sort of "double-barreled" threat to opposing hurlers, something novel and apparently effective.

BROWNS BEAT TIGERS

Yesterday they burst loose with five runs in the seventh to come from behind and down Detroit, 7 to 6. Level made three hits, knocked in a run and scored twice.

The day's other best feature in the American League also was witnessed in the West, where Milt Gaston, of the Chicago White Sox, beat Cleveland, 4 to 0, on two scattered singles.

Red Ruffing's tight relief pitching in the ninth, when he replaced Pipgras with one out and the tying run on third and retired the last two batters, enabled the Yankes to pull out with a 6 to 5 win over the Athletics. Washington's skidding Senators took a 6-to-5 beating from the Boston Red Sox.

BRAVES TAKE LEAD

Stubbornly refusing to "crack," despite the exhortations of all and sundry critics, the Boston Braves fought 10 innings to shade Brooklyn, 5 to 4, and climbed back to the National League top. Rabbit Maranville's line single over first scored Worthington with the winning run after two were out in the tenth.

The Giants kept hammering away and finally captured a messy affair from the Phillies, 9 to 7. Three pitchers worked for each side during the see-saw struggle. The Giants collected 19 hits and the Phils 12. Also, there were four Giant errors. Bill Walker, the league's most effective pitcher last year, received credit for his first 1932 victory.

With only the two games scheduled, the Chicago Cubs slipped back to second place without a chance to defend themselves.

Lewis to Meet Shikat in New York

NEW YORK, May 24.—(AP.)—A fortnight in advance of the scheduled Sharkey - Schmeling heavyweight title fight, the new Madison Square Garden outdoor arena will be the scene of the Milk Fund's benefit wrestling match, June 10, between Ed (Strangler) Lewis and Dick Shikat.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 24.—Babe Ruth may be the home run king, but Bill Terry and Jimmy Foxx certainly are putting a lot of tacks on his throne. The Bam needs a steam - heated bat to get warmed up to his stuff.

With a royal salary of $75,000, the king's subjects naturally expect their ruler to out-monarch these other upstarts who never wore a crown any heavier than a $3 straw hat.

However, don't worry about the Bambino. When he gets his slapstick in operation, the baseballs will be plopping into the bleachers like rice on a June groom's silk hat.

HELEN VICTOR IN FRANCE

AUTEUIL, France, May 24.—(AP.)—Helen Wills Moody, making her first appearance on French courts in two years, showed the gallery in Roland Garros Stadium yesterday that she has lost none of her court wizardry as she paired with Elizabeth Ryan and reached the quarter finals of women's doubles in the French tennis championships.

Mrs. Moody and Miss Ryan, American now living in London, defeated Violette and Jacqueline Gallay, two French sisters, without the loss of a game, 6-0, 6-0, in the second round. They had a first round bye.

Helen Jacobs, the other American contender, in women's play, was not so fortunate. Paired with Gregory Mangin, who is here with Sidney B. Wood, Jr., as representative of the International Tennis Club of New York, she lost to Mlle. Rosie Berthet, of France, and Pieree Grandguillot, Egyptian Davis Cup player, 6-3, 6-2, in the first round of mixed doubles.

It takes plenty of flying skill to solo across the Atlantic. But that's only part. It takes good weather, good judgment, good instruments, courage, ability, training. And it takes an adequate supply of fuel and oil that you know you can depend on. A trans-Atlantic flight takes everything.

INJURY ENDS BOWL BOUT

efforts to bring him around in his corner later. It was one of the most spectacular knockout scored here in years and was the result of the first right hand punch started by Kilbourne.

Charley Massera of Monongahela and New York, a likely looking young heavyweight scaling 175 pounds, cut the right eye of Jack Kearns of Ripley, W. Va., 184, and otherwise battered him so badly that Referee Al Grayber halted the scheduled eight-round semi-final with five seconds to go in the fourth round. Massera was too lusty a hitter for Kearns and won all of the way.

ANOTHER KNOCKOUT

Patsy Hennigan of Clairton, 134½, knocked Al Schulo, New York southpaw, 130½, cold after 27 seconds of the second round of the second bout after being in a bad way himself in the opening round from Schulo's body blows. It was a good win for the local lad who is stepping right along in the way of victories.

George Bordell of New Kensington, 137¾, outfought Panther Brown, Negro, of Salem, O., 135, in the six-round opener, a messy affair.

It was announced that the Jackie Fields-Ted Yarosz non-title bout will be the headliner in the Bowl Tuesday night of next week.

Between Rounds

Buck McTiernan and Tommy Freeman will meet in a return bout at Hickey Park, Millvale, Thursday night of next week, the bout having been just closed. The first fought at the Meyers Bowl a year ago. Frankie Bojarski, of Erie, and Marty Gorfick, who last week stopped Matty Oldach, may box the semi-final.

When Mickey Walker boxes Paulino Uzcudun in the 10-round main bout in Madison Square Garden, New York, Thursday night, it will mark his first battle in the big town since he boxed Joe Dundee in 1928 and was technically stopped in six rounds, although he has boxed in Brooklyn. Vincent Parille of South America boxes Ralph Ficucello in the semi-final and Nate Brown meets Arthur Huttick and Ernie Fiermonte opposes Johnny Oaker in other eight rounders.

Johnny Jadick, the junior welterweight champion, who boxes Herman Perlick in the main bout at Hickey Park, Millvale, Thursday night, is an Irishman. His chief ambition just now is to box Billy Petrolle, the Fargo Express, who is zooming along at the best gait of his career.

Ted Yarosz is in hard training for his battle with Jackie Fields, the world welterweight champion, at the Meyers Bowl next Monday night. He has two incentives in the battle, one to beat the champion and the second to keep his professional record of no defeats intact.

Fred Brown has his Tony Marino, Duquesne flyweight, ready to meet any of the little fellows and is trying to induce the local promoters to bring Midget Wolgast, the champion, here for him. He also manages Hal Finney, Jimmy Leitze and Joey Bazzone.

Tommy Faire boxes Pat Igo in the semi-final of the Benny Bass-Harry Dublinsky bout in Philadelphia's open air arena tomorrow night. Billy Ketchel and Tommy Rios are in the feature preliminary.

Young Stribling will sail from San Francisco June 1 for an invasion of Australia, where he has been booked for three fights by Promoter Hugh McIntosh.

Jack Barry and Al Stillman, heavyweights, will meet in one of three 10-round bouts at St. Louis Wednesday night of next week. Allen Matthews meets Kid Dusty and John Schwake will be a principal in the other battle.

George Nichols, N. B. A. light-heavyweight champion, will meet his old rival Lou Scozza in the main bout of a show in Buffalo next Monday night. Snowflakes Wright, formerly of Pittsburgh, and Joe Lyons are in the semi-final.

ROSENBLOOM VICTOR

LAUREL, MD., May 24.—(INS.)—Maxie Rosenbloom, of New York, recognized in some states as the light-heavyweight champion, swarmed all over Reds Barry, Washington, D. C., heavyweight, to win the decision here last night. Rosenbloom eased his attack in the last round, saving Barry from a possible knockout.

Forbes

How to Bring Stability of Price Levels

By B. C. FORBES

A FIRST effort of the new "prosperity committee" should be to bring about price stability.

The industrial and banker members should arrange a session with heads of the Department of Justice and Federal Trade Commissioners to reach some legal plan enabling leaders in each important industry to get together for the purpose of checking ruinous price-cutting.

Mr. Forbes

It would be better, of course, if Congress sensibly amended the anti-trust laws to permit industrialists to discuss and effect ways and means to establish reasonable prices—reasonable from the producer's viewpoint, reasonable from the worker's viewpoint, reasonable from the consumer's viewpoint, reasonable from the investor's viewpoint, reasonable, too, from the tax-gatherer's viewpoint. But the American public has lost faith in the ability of Congress to function expeditiously, disinterestedly, farsightedly.

Ruinous low prices injure all, help none. They make impossible the payment of fair wages. They make impossible the payment of fair dividends. They make impossible the payment of fair prices for materials. They make impossible the payment of a fair share of the tax burden.

IF ALL THE current business, limited though it is, were done at a rational margin of profit, the status of wage-earners, investors, suppliers of materials, taxing bodies would be distinctly better.

But antiquated, outworn, anachronistic anti-business laws prevent business men from talking things over with a view to remedying the most disastrous price-cutting evils. If Congress consisted of statesmen, our business laws would be speedily and satisfactorily remedied. But statesmanship is not in the saddle. Hence, the imperative need for finding a way out.

Let the Department of Justice reach an understanding with industrial leaders as to how far they may go without danger of punishment in the direction of co-operating to bring about rational prices. And let the Federal Trade Commission be charged with the responsibility of seeing to it that no action inimical to the public interests be taken.

A healthier price level would bring about healthier employment conditions, healthier financial conditions, healthier social conditions.

ONE MAN of large affairs whose stature has not shrunk during these trying times, writes this column, after covering a lot of territory:

"In the Northwest, there is also a feeling of confidence as to better times.

"You will confer a great benefit on the country by advising Congress getting through with its work and going home. Unfortunately, with all the aggregate common sense there is in Congress, it is not organized to meet emergencies. Every effort to economize is met by organized opposition.

"On the other hand, people who know we must have economy are not organized to promote it. Those who would be directly hit by increased taxes fight violently against them, but the people at large do not support their Senators and Representatives in an organized way in any program.

"Inasmuch as any program for economy and for increased taxation will be imperfect, and that there will be violent opposition by those directly affected, the only thing Congress should do is to determine the measures, get them through and go home. Congress does have the power to remove uncertainty and suspense, always grave obstacles to business, and just now, with morale so badly shaken, they are of particular seriousness."

Gentlemen of Congress, won't you please speedily end the uncertainty which is driving this country to unpleasant extremes of distress and discontent?

A. P. GIANNINI, recently quoted as stating that the deposits of his Bank of America in California had increased $25,000,000, finds, on returning home from the East, that the increase has passed the $50,000,000 mark. Congratulations!

WALL STREET'S nerves have steadied somewhat. The bond and stock tickers, however, are still more influenced by the capitol than by capital. This unhappy condition should end with the ending of the Congressional session.

Can's New Castle Plant Speeds Up

The American Can Company has increased production at its New Castle (Pa.) plant to meet heavier demands for milk containers during late May and June. A night force of employes is now supplementing activity recently confined to a day turn.

Western Pennsylvania tin mills of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company are expected to benefit through the greater requirements for tin plate.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, May 24.—The bond market dozed today and price changes generally were irregular and narrow. The one firm spot in the list was occupied by the United States government group. Most of the Treasuries and Liberties took part in an early spurt, but later reacted moderately. British 5½s were in demand, reaching another new high for the year at 103¾. Columbian 6s firmed, as did Austrian 7s and French 7s. Japanese government issues again exhibited weakness.

NEW YORK, May 24.—(AP)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column; United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

BASIC POINTS
TO BE CONSIDERED IN ESTABLISHING A LIFE INSURANCE TRUST

1. Why You Need a Life Insurance Trust

THE average man, in order to provide for his family or other dependents when they will no longer be able to look to him for their support, usually accumulates a certain amount of Life Insurance.

He intends this Insurance to furnish an income which will replace that now supplied by his earnings.

But it too often happens that Life Insurance money, paid in a lump sum to beneficiaries who are inexperienced in financial matters, soon becomes dissipated through unfortunate management or unwise spending. Thus it frequently fails to accomplish the purpose for which it was acquired by the insured.

By establishing a Life Insurance Trust with an institution of outstanding strength and dependability, such as the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, you can secure the greatest possible protection against the dissipation of your Insurance Fund, and be assured of expert and careful management of your estate.

The officers of the Trust Department of the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh will be glad to discuss with you, your attorney, and your insurance counselor the drawing up of a Life Insurance Trust Agreement suitable to your needs. If you would like to have complete information on Life Insurance Trusts, we suggest that you send for our new booklet entitled, "The Life Insurance Trust Plan of Conserving and Distributing Your Life Insurance Estate."

STOCKS CAUGHT IN DOWNWARD CURRENT

Drop Moderate as Selling Volume Swells; Utilities, Foods, Tobaccos Pressed

NEW YORK, May 24.—(AP.)—The stock market finally nosed out into the downward current again today, after drifting idly in an eddy of uncertainty for the past four sessions.

The decline was moderate, but selling was in substantially larger volume. The selling was again of a selective nature, converging principally upon some of the food shares, public utilities and tobaccos, while many of the industrials and rails held up well. A reaction in the wheat market and lack of encouraging news from business or from Washington, evidently kept buyers on the sidelines.

General Foods, Public Service of New Jersey, Corn Products, American Tobacco "B" and Liggett and Myers "B" declined about 2 points to new lows, while issues off a point or so included American Telephone, American Can, Borden, Consolidated Gas, Du Pont, Drug, Electric Power and Light, Procter and Gamble, National Power and Light, New Haven, Union Pacific, Sears, Woolworth and others. Loose Wiles and National Biscuit, which dropped 3 and 2 points yesterday, recovered more than a point, but the latter again softened. Selling first appeared in volume in Reynolds "B," but that issue was supported only a fraction lower. United States Steel lost only a fraction. General Motors eased slightly to register a new low.

Selling of the utilities and tobaccos presumably was a further reflection of the recent adverse statistics. Electric power production has been running about 13 per cent under last year at this time, a substantial recession, but moderate compared to that in steel product, freight car loadings, and some other important barometers. National Power and Light reported earnings for the 12 months ended March 31 to $1.65 a share, off 16 cents from the previous 12-month period. Cigaret production, as recently reported for April, was off about 20 per cent from the like month of 1931, and May figures are not expected to show any important improvement.

The selling in the utilities and tobaccos may in part reflect some disappointment that these lines have not been as "depression proof" as they appeared to be some months ago.

The weekly freight car loadings report, showing a decrease of 16,010 cars from the previous week, was no less favorable than expected. The continued low level of freight traffic is still presenting a serious problem to the carriers, despite operating economies. Dow-Jones estimated that New York Central's April deficit after charges would amount to approximately $2,500,000.

Some shading of rates on commercial paper appeared, perhaps as a further reflection of the Federal Reserve's credit expansion program. Prime names are now quoted 2¾ to 3¼ per cent, off ¼ of 1 per cent, but banks state that borrowers of this character are all too few. The largest corporations, whose paper the banks would be glad to get, mostly have large cash balances in their treasuries.

Brazil Continues Coffee Destruction

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, May 24.—(AP.)—The coffee council announced today that 320,744 sacks of coffe had been destroyed during the last week. This made the total to date 6,565,641, of which 5,285,282 were destroyed in the State of Sao Paulo. The purpose of the destruction campaign is to eliminate the oversupply.

Chile Restricts Gasoline Imports

SANTIAGO, May 24.—Importation of gasoline into Chile will be restricted to 4,000,000 liters a month, or half the average consumption during 1931. This restriction, effective June 1, is due to difficulty of securing exchange for payment of imports.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

Southern California Edison Company, Ltd., reports for four months ended April 30 gross revenues of $11,800,278 compared with $12,767,113 in the same period last year. Net earnings for the four months, after operating expense and taxes, were $7,923,153 compared with $7,933,404. Balance for dividends and depreciation, after fixed charges, was $5,595,026 against $5,576,001.

United Light and Power Company and subsidiaries for 12 months ended March 31, 1932, report consolidated net income of $7,448,216 after depreciation, interest, amortization, taxes, subsidiary preferred dividends, etc., equivalent after preferred dividends to $1.11 a share on 3,473,923 average number of combined Class A and B common shares outstanding during the period. This compares with $9,775,936 or $1.75 a share on 3,467,799 average combined Class A and B common shares for the 12 months ended March 31, 1931.

Norfolk and Western Railway reports for the four months ended April 30 net income of $5,332,420 after taxes and charges, equal after dividend requirements on the 4 per cent preferred, to $2.15 a share on the common, compared with net of $5,395,065 or $3.61 a common share in the first four months of 1931. April net income was $956,151 against $1,320,792 in April, 1931.

LOCAL MARKET CONTINUES NARROW

Quiet Trading Recorded In List Here as Prices Mark Fractional Swings

There was no change in the general character of the trading on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. Continuance of the dull, narrow movements marked the early dealings when only a few scattered transactions appeared on the board.

The apparent stalemate on the "big board" tended to lessen what little activity has been evident in local stocks recently. The key stocks in the New York market drifted in fractional fluctuations throughout the greater part of the forenoon.

In the local market only the smallest fractional changes were recorded. However, the trading element looked upon the list as reflecting a fairly stabilized price structure, a condition regarded as a necessary preliminary to any general improvement.

CAR LOADINGS DOWN 16,010

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Loading of revenue freight during the week ended May 14 totaled 517,667 cars, a decrease of 16,010 cars under the preceding week, 229,390 cars under the corresponding week in 1931, and 411,092 cars less than the same week in 1930, the American Railway Association reports.

Sale of New Securities To Be Major Problem When Recovery Starts

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

WHAT IS TO BE the future of the securities business? In discussions of business affairs, little attention has been paid to this problem but it is likely to be one of extreme importance shortly after process of recovery in commercial activity gets under way.

Large corporations which under ordinary conditions would have disposed of bond issues to repay them for expenditures made for plant improvements or to refund older maturing bond issues, have been unable to raise funds through the usual channels. Some of them have met their emergencies by drastic economies others by short time financing through the aid of banks and a few have been forced into receiverships in spite of the fact that they would not be considered insolvent except under the topsy-turvy conditions of today.

Reductions in working capital have been common throughout all industry as a result of the losses of the past two years. When business starts to recover, many of these organizations will need additional cash to enable them to handle a normal volumn of sales. Where are they going to get the money? This will be a pressing problem in the future.

Recovery in Market For Bonds Essential

THERE ARE SOME obvious conclusions which can be drawn. First of all, new bonds cannot be sold to investors as long as the market for older issues is in a state of extreme depression except in the cases of a few organizations of exceptional strength. It is logical to assume that a recovery in the bond market will accompany a revival in business but the securities of so many corporations are selling at less than half their par values that it is doubtful if bond prices will regain enough ground to permit refinancing until recovery in sales and production has been under way for a fairly long period.

A second obvious conclusion is the fact that most of the machinery for distributing securities has been destroyed. Many of the outstanding investment banking organizations have discontinued their branch offices and have reduced their local sales forces to mere skeletons. Others have suffered to such an extent from the events of the past two years that their resources have been seriously impaired. It is probably true that these organizations were expanded too greatly in the boom years but the question of their ability to meet coming needs with existing organizations is a doubtful one.

Public Confidence in Securities Damaged

A THIRD OBVIOUS conclusion is that public confidence in a large share of the investment banking houses has been rudely shattered and that, when these organizations start peddling a new set of wares, they are going to find the sales resistence pretty tough.

During the years of depression a vast need for new financing has been accumulating. The investment bankers may be able to meet this need after recovery has been under way for a considerable period, but it is unlikely that they will be able to take care of the needs of business when recovery is just starting and when ability to finance will be most important.

During this early period industry will have to turn to the banks for a greater amount of temporary financing than at any time since 1920. Commercial paper and the acceptance market are likely to be restored to a position of utmost importance and the banking business is likely to bear much the same relationship to business that it held in pre-war days.

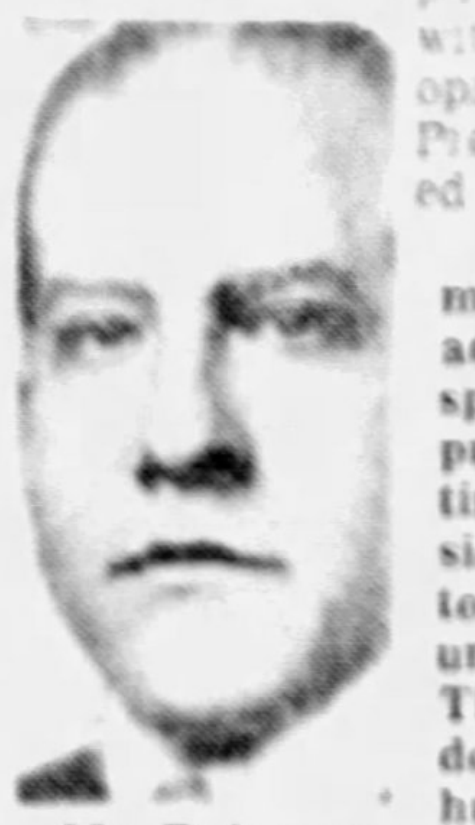
HOOVER PUSHED PUBLIC WORKS POLICY IN '23

Says That Public Projects Now Completed Anticipate Needs for Years to Come

By MERRYLE RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 24—President Hoover, who in 1923 helped to popularize the modern economic policy of using public works as a stabilizer, now tends to throw cold water on the idea.

Nevertheless, in his letter to the president of the American Society of Civil Engineers, Mr. Hoover seeks to reconcile his present views with his earlier opinions. The President pointed out:



Mr. Rukeyser

"I have for many years advocated the speeding up of public works in time of depression as an aid to business and unemployment. That has been done upon a huge scale and is proceeding at as great a pace as fiscal stability will warrant. All branches of government—federal, state and municipal—have greatly expanded their 'public works' and have now reached a stage where they have anticipated the need for many such works for a long time to come . . . ."

IDEA UNWARRANTED

The Chief Executive thus gives the impression that public authorities in the United States have been carrying out the mandate of the experts who under his sponsorship in 1923 set forth the doctrine of expanding public works in time of subnormal business and of contracting them in periods of boom. Such independent statistics as are available hardly warrant such an optimistic assumption. Though the federal government, which in normal times is a minor factor in public works as compared with states and local subdivisions, attempted to retard public construction during the earlier prosperity and put itself in financial condition to expand during a depression by rapidly retiring billions of public indebtedness while the country was prosperous, the other political units—states, cities and counties—unfortunately raised public construction to a new peak during the boom, according to the studies of the National Bureau of Economic Research, and also raised their aggregate debt to a new peak.

UNDER 1929

Thus, though it is true that up to 1932 the federal government showed a substantial net increase in public works since the depression started, the published statistics indicate that most of the gain was offset by a decline in public works by states, cities and other local subdivisions. Accordingly, it would seem that the aggregate dollar expenditure for all kinds of public works in 1931 by all units of government in the United States was less than in 1929, the peak boom year.

The Engineering News Record, authoritative journal in this field, has compiled the subjoined statistics on contracts let for public works construction:

	Total	Federal	Other Than Federal
'29	$3,262,000,000	$289,000,000	$2,974,000,000
'30	3,362,000,000	340,000,000	3,022,000,000
'31	3,182,000,000	524,000,000	2,659,000,000

On the basis of actual figures for the first four months, the same authority estimates a decline in aggregate public works construction this year of not less than $1,400,000,000.

COTTON PRICES SHOW DROP

NEW YORK, May 24.—Cotton opened steady today, 3 points up to 3 points off, on southern selling and trade buying influenced by steady cables. July sold at 5.82.

May sold off to 5.72 before the end of the first half hour, making net decline of 6 points, while later deliveries sagged back to about yesterday's closing quotations after the initial demand had been supplied.

Liquidation of near months continued later in the morning with May selling off to 5.65 or 13 points net lower, while there was also considerable liquidation of July and switching from that position to later months. These offerings combined with some selling promoted by the more favorable weather outlook for the Eastern belt, the lower grain market and the indifferent action of stocks sent the general list about 7 to 13 points net lower with December declining to 6.12 and prices were within a point or two of the lowest at midday.

CORN FOLLOWS WHEAT DOWN

CHICAGO, May 24.—(AP.)—Heavy rains in parts of Kansas and Nebraska led to a decided setback of wheat prices early today. Upturns in Liverpool wheat quotations, together with reports of a better demand abroad, were virtually ignored. Opening ½-1 lower, Chicago wheat futures continued to recede. Corn started at ⅛-⅜ decline and subsequently sagged further.

Larger buying, however, developed on the break in prices, and the market steadied at around 1½ under yesterday's finish. Corn and oats took their cue from wheat. Provisions sagged with grains.

LONE STAR GAS CORPORATION CUTS DEBT

Company Offers Plans to Convert Dividend Scrip To Cash or Other Shares

Lone Star Gas Corporation has reduced its bonded indebtedness $780,000 since January 1 and has cut its bank loans $1,325,000, L. B. Denning, president, declares in a letter to stockholders. This left a balance due to banks on May 16 of $5,077,500. During the same period cash increased $400,000 to $1,963,000.

The letter announced that stockholders have the selection of three methods for handling scrip for fractional shares of convertible 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock in which common dividends are now being paid.

CONVERSION PLANS

Under Plan 1 the corporation holds scrip for fractional shares until enough has accumulated to permit delivery of full shares. Under Plan 2 the stockholder authorizes the corporation to endeavor to purchase sufficient scrip to make up full shares. Under Plan 3 the stockholders authorizes the corporation to attempt to sell his scrip representing fractional shares. Purchases or sales will be at prices prevailing on the Pittsburgh exchange on the tenth day of business preceding the dividend payment date.

OLD SCRIP SOLD

On May 2 the corporation authorized the sale of all the outstanding scrip certificates for common stock issued February 2, 1931. A price of $4.62½ per share was obtained. Expenses amounted to 5½ cents per share or a net of $4.57. Accumulated dividends on this stock amounted to $1.03 a share. Stockholders have been advised that this class of scrip should be sent in for redemption and checks will be mailed for $5.60 a full share of 80 cents for each 1-7 share.

New Haven Dividend Action Due June 14

NEW YORK, May 24.—(AP.)—Directors of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company met today, but decided to defer action on the preferred dividend until June 14.

STOCK EXCHANGE TOPICS

General Electric Dividend Expected to Hold at Current Rate

Dividend action by the General Electric Company will be taken on Friday when directors meet to consider the matter. In ordinarily well-informed quarters there is little if any doubt that the present $1 annual rate will be maintained. The usual quarterly payment of 25 cents a share is expected at that time. Earnings for the current quarter, will, it is believed, be somewhat better than the 16 cents a share reported for the three months ended March 31, last, though it is not expected that results for the June quarter will show dividend requirements for the period fully covered.

On the basis of the market's performance since the admonition by the stock exchange to its members regarding marginal requirements on short commitments, it begins to look as though the bear element has found operations too costly or decided on an extended vacation. At any rate the volume of business has dried up to minimum levels seldom witnessed. The extreme dullness ruling in the market place would be viewed with much satisfaction in most quarters and as conclusive evidence of lack of potential selling but for the many tangible and intangible restraints upon the bears.

Share trading on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday was, with one exception, the dullest of the entire bear market. Transactions totaled 557,280 shares compared with 533,010 on September 1, 1931. The latter turnover was the smallest, Saturday's excepted, since October 7, 1924, when 437,000 shares changed hands. Price changes were extremely narrow and net changes in most instances amounted to only a few cents divided about evenly between gains and losses.

The bond market was under minute scrutiny as the new week got under way. The search is on for evidence of coordinated buying activities which would be interpreted as denoting the presence in the market of the hand of the committee of 12 gathered together to administer excess credits made available by the reserve. The market, however, was completely lacking in evidence of any such operations yesterday. Those who expect that the drive for credit use will be an influence in the bond market are satisfied that such operations are at least a little in the future and are not expecting to discern any signs for two weeks or so.

New York, Ontario and Western continues to stand out as one of the few railroads in the country which is able to register actual improvement both in gross and net operating income from month to month. A small road deriving its business and revenues chiefly from coal traffic the Ontario and Western displayed increase of more than $105,000 in gross for April over the same month a year ago, and its net operating income of $225,488 was practically four times as large as the $72,548 reported for April last year. The four months showing was equally impressive. New Haven owns more than 50 per cent of the outstanding stock.

Although Standard Oil Company of New Jersey is not disposed to bid for an oil monopoly in Chile the corporation may be compelled by circumstances to do so, it was reported in Wall street. Chile last week promulgated a law authorizing a state petroleum monopoly with the government participating up to 75 per cent in profits. Foreign capital is permitted a 25 per cent participation in a proposal internal loan of about $3,600,000. The Chilean oil business is now controlled by Standard of New Jersey and Royal Dutch Shell. The New Jersey company, it is understood, is opposed to the principle of oil monopolies. Its investments in Chile, however, are so large that it could not easily withdraw from the trade there, oil men pointed out.

Chicago Prosperity Committee Planned

CHICAGO, May 24.—A meeting of leading local bankers and businessmen is likely to be held at the Federal Reserve Bank tomorrow to consider formation of a committee to devise ways and means of putting to use in this district the increased credit made available through purchases of government securities by the Federal Reserve banks.

MURDER OF THE NIGHT CLUB LADY :-: :-: By ANTHONY ABBOT

"Was Mrs. Quires with you all this time?" asked Dougherty softly.

"I am waiting," snapped Edgar Quires, jingling keys and silver impatiently, "for your explanation."

"From that," returned Thatcher Colt, "I assume that you have not read the newspapers."

"No—I had a headache this morning and did not care about reading them."

"Then I have the very sad duty to inform you that your sister Christine is dead."

The announcement seemed to have no effect whatever upon Edgar Quires. His wife covered her face with her hands and her shoulders heaved and shuddered, but Edgar Quires sat bolt upright, straight as a tree and his eyes, fixed on Thatcher Colt, remained blank.

"Dead!" he repeated in a calm voice. "That is impossible. You must have made a mistake in identities!"

"Christine Quires is dead," repeated Colt inexorably. "She was murdered."

THREATENS REVENGE

At the last word Edgar Quires seemed to be galvanized into action. His hands gripping the edge of the desk he stood up, bent over, bringing his face close to Colt's, and baring long, straight white teeth like fangs in the jaws of a wolf.

"Murdered!" he cried. "Christine murdered! How? What do you mean? Murdered! Then I know who killed her."

Colt, too, had risen to his feet. He put one hand calmly on the brother's shoulder.

"Name him!"

"Name him! I'll kill him! I'll kill him with slow torture," raged Edgar Quires. He was not loud nor violent, but it was a terrible thing to be a witness of this strong man's fury. It was a fury that spoke in low and awful tones, the more terrible because one felt it was under a too complete mastery; that he meant what he said and would carry out his threats.

"Name the man," repeated Colt severely. "It is our business to find him—and the law's business to try and to punish."

Mrs. Quires lifted up her tear-stained face.

"I will tell you," she cried in a broken voice. "It is an actor about whom Christine had found out unspeakable things. His name is Guy Everett. Find him and you will have her murderer!"

BECOMES EMOTIONAL

It did not seem plausible that Edgar Quires or his wife could have concocted such a circumstantial account. Manifestly the brother was angry because his wife had revealed Everett's name. His intention of dealing personally with the actor seemed thoroughly realistic. But Colt managed him deftly and finally the brother was leaning back in the chair, his ruddy face paling with the knowledge of the tragedy.

"My God—to think that Christine is gone and I didn't know!" he exclaimed in a dazed voice.

Colt recognized the symptoms. Edgar Quires was the man who could takes disaster squarely on the chin, and give a bold face to misfortune, when taken by surprise. But now, in the calm after the first shock, he was becoming emotional; he must be jacked up suddenly. Colt's next question was almost an accusation:

"Why are you and your wife trying to put the blame on Guy Everett?"

The strong face of Edgar Quires settled into a rock-like rigidity, in which only the eyes were human.

"Guy Everett killed her," he repeated inflexibly.

"But you must have a reason for saying so?"

"Christine expected him to kill her."

EXPLAINS ABOUT EVERETT

Edgar Quires made this startling announcement with a calmness that was terrifying. One felt that he would kill Guy Everett on sight.

"You must be explicit. Tell me exactly what you know," urged Colt. "It is silly for you to think that you can avenge her death. We are men and we must meet the situation like men."

"That is what I intend to do," said the brother quietly. Mrs. Quires laid her hand against his arm.

"Eddie," she pleaded. "Mr. Colt is right. We do not want any more trouble. Tell him what he asks."

A flicker of tenderness was in the strong man's eyes. I saw that he loved his wife, and he had said that he loved his sister.

"I will tell you what I know," he agreed readily. "I have no wish to argue with you as to what I conceive to be my duty. We have had enough talk. Christine and I had lunch together a week ago at the McAlpin Hotel. It was then that we discussed her financial affairs. She had made heavy investments on the market. The advice came from Lola Carewe. She told me then that she might have to call on me for cash. I agreed to help her if she promised never to get herself in such a jam again. I was very fond of Christine—anyhow, that is what we meant to discuss at luncheon. But, toward the close, we talked of her personal affairs. She told me of having met Guy Everett. And she said that he hoped to marry Lola. She told me that she was afraid of him. The reason was that Guy Everett believed that she influenced Lola against him. As a matter of fact, Christine said she had done nothing of the kind. She had no wish to meddle in Lola's affairs. But for some reason, Guy Everett believed that she was his enemy. They had one violent row. Christine described that row to me. She said that Everett had acted like a beast. He was drunk at the time. He had threatened her life if she did not stop interfering with his business."

"Where did this happen?" asked Colt.

"In Lola's apartment. They were alone there together one evening about a month ago. Christine told me that she was satisfied Everett was either a user of some kind of drug or else insane. His language was vile, and his threats of the most bloodthirsty kind. I tried then to get her to leave New York and come into our home. But frankly I must admit that Christine could not get along in our family. It was not my fault, nor my wife's—but she did not like our manner of living. I think she thought of us as amiable Babbitts. But when we were separated, there was the most tender and affectionate relationship between us. I was willing to run the risk of further quarrels, in order to get her away from the New York crowd she seemed to be tied up with. Especially this Guy Everett. But Christine would not do this."

"Has it ever occurred to you," suggested Thatcher Colt, "that her telegram might have reference to personal danger?"

Edgar Quires thought for a moment.

"It had not occurred to me," he confessed.

"But it doesn't seem unlikely, does it, Eddie?" said his wife with a faraway look.

"Are you your sister's only heir, Mr. Quires?"

"I think so."

"Do you know the extent of her estate?"

"She has been borrowing on an inheritance. She was to get the full amount in a short time. The original amount was a large sum—nearly a million, I think. She has been entitled only to the income until now. How much she has left, I don't know. She had got into the hands of speculators and money-lenders."

"I see. You do not mention any names?" from Dougherty.

"I mean the whole New York crowd that she got tangled up with. Specifically, I mean Lola Carewe. She was always telling Christine about her intimacy with Vincent Rowland, and the inside financial tips that she got through that old millionaire."

"Did you ever hear of any plan of Lola and your sister going into business together?" asked Thatcher Colt.

"No, but it would not surprise me. Christine had seemed to lose all sense of self-protection. She was led around by Lola Carewe as if she were a hypnotized subject. I tell you, Mr. Colt, that Guy Everett and Lola Carewe conspired together to get my sister's fortune away from her—God only knows if they have left anything at all—and then, when Christine was ready to expose them, they killed her."

Synopsis

Lola Carewe and Christine Quires are mysteriously murdered in the former's apartment. Scorpions were the instruments of death. The police suspect Guy Everett, an actor. Lola had blackmailed him. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt learns that a young Paris bank clerk, named Basil Boucher, loved Lola. Edward Quires, Christine's brother, left his Rochester home for New York following the receipt of a telegram the day of the murders. Suspicion also points to Dr. Hugh Baldwin when it is disclosed that he purchased scorpions. Colt, calling to question Baldwin, finds him dead—from a scorpion bite! In Baldwin's desk Colt finds a statement in which the doctor says he accidentally poisoned Gaylord Gifford, Lola's husband. Lola's knowledge of this placed Baldwin in her power. She forced him to supply narcotics which she used to victimize her friends and later blackmail them. The statement says Vincent Rowland, aged attorney, was behind Lola's activities. Because of the lack of evidence against Rowland, Colt objects to his immediate arrest. A report from France says that Basil Boucher drowned himself after stealing money to buy Lola a ruby. Christine's brother, Edgar Quires, is questioned by Colt after arriving in the city. Quires said that Christine called for him to help her straighten out some investments.

Quires seemed to be determined to carry out his threats.

Madge and Veritzen Reach Breaking Point

Philip Veritzen looked at me with lifted eyebrows and a touch of hauteur in his manner as I asked him if I had misunderstood him about the date on which he wished me to go into the city for work upon my play.

"I thought I had made myself perfectly clear," he said. "And I certainly do mean next Tuesday."

"But next Tuesday will be impossible," I said. "I cannot leave here for even five minutes until Lillian gets back. And I cannot possibly go into the city to stay for any length of time until the young people go back to school."

"Is it permitted to ask at what time the schools will open and leave you free to come into the city?" he asked.

"About three weeks from now," I said, and braced myself for the next round.

"Three weeks!" he exclaimed. "In three weeks I could have the play cast and be well started on rehearsals. I must insist—"

"I am sorry," I interrupted, "but it is impossible for me to do what you ask."

He frowned, terrifyingly, then evidently thought better of it and tried other tactics.

"My dear child!" he said with infinite condescension in his tone. "You evidently have not the slightest idea of the work which must be done upon this production, and the necessity for starting work on it at once."

"I ought to know," I said quietly. "I was a member of your organization for over a year."

A LAW UNTO HIMSELF

I looked at him steadily as I spoke hoping that he would get my meaning, for it was an open secret in Philip Veritzen's great dramatic organization that he was a law unto himself in the time of his productions, and that he never permitted any schedule to interfere with his temperamental work.

He had no need to study time or season. His place in the theatrical world was akin to that of the old Douglass whose seat, wherever he sat, was the head of the table. A Veritzen production did not need a favorable week or a favorable season. He was sure of his audience and of his reception. No matter what time his premiere was staged.

He was so absolutely poised that I knew no muscle of his face, no inflection of his voice, would betray what he was thinking, but away back in his eyes I saw a spark which told me that my verbal rapier had flicked him.

"I'm afraid you didn't learn any lesson from that year," he said. "For your own guidance I will tell you now that my acceptance of a play means that the time of the author until its production must be absolutely at my command. Of course, compensation will be adequate."

IMPOSSIBLE TO LEAVE

"Please!" I threw up my hands. "You surely do not think that—"

"That you are 'holding out' for payment for your extra work," he finished with a smile.

"No, my dear child, I thought nothing of the sort. I simply am trying to make you see how impractical and—if I must say it—how ignorant about this thing you are."

"I am sure your indictment is a true one," I told him, smiling. "And I wish you would believe me when I tell you that if I had only myself to consider I would willingly go into the city on Tuesday and remain there, in spite of the heat and discomfort and in spite of the fact that I know it is almost an unprecedented thing for you to return to the city yourself so early."

"But," I hurried on, giving him no chance to interrupt me, "there are conditions facing me in the household which make it absolutely impossible for me to go into the city at the time you have named."

He looked at me steadily for several seconds, almost as if he were mentally measuring my determination.

"Suppose," he said slowly at last, "that I tell you I must return your drama to you, unless you can come into the city next Tuesday."

I took a deep breath and tested my theory with an open ultimatum at which I had but hinted during our other interview.

"Then I would have no other recourse but to turn my play over to a theatrical agent and hope for the impossible to happen."

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

The managers of the 17 Warner Theaters where the Junior Komic Club meets Saturday mornings report that each youngster who has appeared on the stage at Komic Club meetings will be on hand Friday night to try out in the juvenile division of Warner Brothers' "Pittsburgh on Parade."

The regular patrons of these theaters are in for a very pleasant surprise when they get a slant at the unusual talent among the youngsters who entertain the boys and girls of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club at the regular Saturday morning meetings.

PRODUCE SHOW

At the Manor Chapter, Manager Joe Blowitz recently suggested to his ushers that they produce a show by selecting from the membership any youngsters they considered "kid" talent. Well, the ushers went right to it and put in a lot of time rehearsing the boys and girls selected for "their" show. Saturday the show was given at the regular meeting under the final supervision of Manager Blowitz, and it was a smashing success.

NEW MEMBERS

At the Grand (Greensburg) Chapter Saturday the following boys and girls were enrolled in the club: Elizabeth Perry, Janet Perry, Ruth Wolinsky, Florence Glantz, Betty Shepherd, Dorothy Kimmel, Irene Maxwell, Miles Yerkes, Robert Stough, William Chenoweth, William Mason, Billy Overly, Marion Denard, Jack Huffman, Mark Gregg, Robert Shambro.

These new members, together with the old members, were entertained by Tony Weaver and his accordian, while Tom Ficco sang. The Grand Junior Komic Club Orchestra, which was organized some time ago, is made up of the following boys and girls, who also entertained the youngsters: Janet Paterson, leader and piano; Dorothy Harris, violin; William Wolinsky, saxaphone; Rex Duncan, trombone; Robert Brinker, drums; Richard Steel, trombone.

If you are not a member of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, send your name and address, name of your parents, date and year of your birth, school you attend, to the Secretary, Junior Komic Club, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., and a membership card and button will be mailed you. Or, you can join at any of the Warner Theaters where the Junior Komic Club meets regularly each Saturday morning.

The Need Grows

Government Aid to Relieve the Destitute and Revive Business Becomes More Urgent.

Welfare organizations report that appeals for aid are coming, on the average, from more than 200 families in Allegheny County daily. These are "new" families—families, that is, who have not previously applied for aid.

The workers in the "Family Help-Family" campaign, who set out a month or more ago to raise $100 each for the relief of 28,000 destitute families and fell woefully short of the goal, reported yesterday that since their last previous report they had succeeded in procuring funds sufficient to take care of 162 families, or less than a single day's increment to the list of applicants.

Much as we should like to believe that the need for relief is decreasing, the facts are against us. The welfare organizations foresee the necessity for taking care of 55,000 families in the county next winter unless business revives.

Appreciation of these things no doubt had much to do with the action of the Builders' Exchange of Pittsburgh in urging Congress to borrow $5,000,000,000 through a bond issue and spend the money on public works. In urging the adoption of the prosperity loan plan the officers of the exchange truly said:

The Builders' Exchange is but one of many local organizations that have called for the $5,000,000,000 loan. Every association that has not already done so should petition Congress to adopt the plan.

Among public works of special interest to Pittsburgh which it has been suggested might well be embodied in the public works program the proposed canal to connect the Ohio River with Lake Erie by way of the Beaver and Mahoning Rivers is particularly worthy of consideration because in the long run it would cost the government nothing. The canal would be an income-producing job. There is assurance that enough freight would be carried over it from the outset to return a tidy revenue.

The whole nation would benefit by the acquisition of a new artery of low cost transportation linking the Ohio River with the Great Lakes, and it would be a boon to Pittsburgh because it would offer a means of escape from the unfair railroad freight rates which are throttling our coal industry.

The flood storage reservoirs at the headwaters of the Allegheny and Monongahela also would fit well in a federal program of public works. They would give the Ohio Valley needed protection from flood and at the same time would assure a navigable stage of water in time of drought and thus round out and complete the improvement of the Ohio River—a job on which the government has already spent more than $100,000,000.

There is every inducement then—the avoidance of the dole, the revival of industry, the construction of badly needed local jobs which would benefit many states—why the people of this community should get behind the $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan plan solidly and work for its enactment.

Wall Street Pools

The Public Has Been Deceived Through a Process of Pure Jugglery.

Well, we know a little more NOW about Wall street pools—the spirit of deception in which they are conceived, the methods of public deception in their operation, and their results—both to the insiders and to those less fortunate, the outsiders and victims.

In exposing the Radio pool which was formed in 1929, the Senate Banking and Currency Committee has revealed the typical devices used by professional operators to transfer to their own pockets the money of the credulous and confiding public.

The process is pure jugglery, not different from three-card monte or the ancient shell game, except that the Wall street pool juggles the PRICE OF A STOCK, instead of a pea or a playing card.

Some 844,000 SHARES of Radio stock were bought and sold within SEVEN DAYS. The brokers, acting for the pool, bought stock as they deemed it necessary to support quotations and contrived by the rapid mingling of buying and selling, to steadily DISTRIBUTE MORE STOCK THAN THEY PURCHASED.

The buying was merely to work the price upward. The objective of the pool was to distribute the stock to the unwary, as it moved up. When distribution had been effected—in other words, when the stock was securely in the possession of buyers, to whom fate had assigned the unhappy lot of holding the bag, the mission of the pool was fulfilled. Its work was done. Nothing remained but to count and distribute the profits.

The profits amounted to $4,924,078, and it required but SEVEN DAYS to roll up this huge sum.

With the closing out of the pool and the appeasement of its appetite, the stock began to settle down to a natural and unmanipulated quotation. This process has gone on without interruption. From a high of 109¼, reached three days before the pool ceased operating, Radio stock had gone steadily down until at present it is quoted at 4.

Tax-Exempt Property

A Levy on the Real Estate of the Public Utilities Would Help to Reduce the Taxpayers' Burden.

The Wilkinsburg school district owns 40 acres of land in Wilkins Township, purchased, it is said, in anticipation of the section being annexed by the borough.

School land is exempt from taxation, but the Wilkins Township Commissioners feel an injustice is being done the township in exempting from taxation Wilkins Township land owned by another municipality.

The question of tax-exemption for real estate is especially interesting right now because of the difficulty that many home owners are having in paying their taxes.

A surprisingly large amount of land is exempt from taxation. If it were taxed the burden of the home owners would, of course, be reduced.

The Legislature might well look into the matter, with a view to removing the exemption from certain kinds of land now tax-free.

Is there any good reason why the public utilities companies, which are among the most prosperous corporations, should enjoy tax exemption?

Years ago, when they were embarking in business and needed encouragement, there may have been justification in exempting them from certain forms of taxation. But in view of the earnings that some of the companies in Pittsburgh have reported—earnings obtained through charging excessive rates—they seem well able to bear their share of the tax burden.

Trifles, Light as Summer Love

Some women keep on going to Reno, as they keep on turning the key to the radio, just hoping against hope that they'll get something that they can STAND, "next time."

* * *

The fact that a man lives in a kitchenette apartment and dines in a breakfast nook never seems to dampen his enthusiasm for singing "Home, Sweet Home" when the party grows mellow.

The average woman's hair has such a way of changing, these days, that her husband would never know what color it was, if she didn't leave it in the comb.

A fashionable seashore place is one where people go for the invigorating ozone and the curative sunrays—and get them through the chinks in the ballroom windows or the cardroom doors.

* * *

No matter how kind-hearted and generous a woman may be, she can't help feeling a little glow of comfort when she hears that an old flame has "married unhappily."

Of course, the modern girl doesn't have fainting fits or hysterics. She can get almost anything she wants these days without having to cry on some man's shoulder for it.

Most of a married man's rainy Sundays are spent in finding something around the house that ought to be done—and then telling everybody else how to do it.

A summer lover, like a summer hat, doesn't necessarily have to be the kind that will last; it is enough if they are both attractive and flattering.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 24.—Ill-winds of depression blow dandy for dogdom. Hundreds of metropolites, shorn of accustomed luxuries, found consolation in the companionship of canine pets. The truism in classing the dog as man's best friend received a new appreciation.

During the present year more than 50 new dog shops have sprung up in all sorts of districts—from opulent Park avenue to forlorn Second. It is one of the few businesses netting profit. A great change, too, in the attitude towards dogs by apartment house owners and hotels.

Formerly dogs were permitted in rooms of exclusive inns only—such as the Waldorf, Pierre's and Ritz. Now nearly all accept them. Indeed, business being what it is, many would probably accept elephants as paying guests. There are six monkeys in one smart tavern.

High tariffed hotels in the flushed era often charged a $2 a day rate for dogs with chopped meat orders 60 cents. But no more. The housing and feeding are free. The rule that they must ride only in the freight elevators was also abolished.

Pedigreed dogs now sell reasonably. Thoroughbreds that sold for $1,000 are procurable as low as $200. The sidewalk puppy salesman has come back to the old stands, with offerings from $2 to $10. Thus the dog again has his day.

The elfin Harriet Hoctor who, with Clare Luce, shares my terpsichorean fervors, hangs up a new record for popularity in London, even in a period when the city rings with the cry "Buy British." She has been appearing in a John Murray Anderson revue and is to tour Europe with a series of dance recitals. She is the daughter of an upstate village tombstone maker.

Speaking of dogs, the Sealyham has just been clipped for the hot weather and instead of a roly-poly ball of white fluff suddenly stretches out the length of a German compound verb. There is one thing about a Sealyham, however. Anything you do seems a noticeable improvement.

Terseness in writing is to my notion its supremest achievement. My best lesson in brevity came from Ray Long years ago. I complained of my inability to shorten 3,000 words to 500, protesting it could not be done. He wrote: "Lincoln's Gettysburg address, the Lord's Prayer and the Sermon on the Mount can be put on a single page and they are rather fine, don't you think?"

The pretzel is staging an eloquent comeback and is offered in the swank delicatessens in fancy hand painted tin boxes, each one encased separately in cellophane. Yet I cannot forget Mark Twain's description of the pretzel: "A doughnut suffering from anemia and cholera morbus."

At breakfast they were recalling the amusing stratagems of the talented Bill Phelon, one of the best baseball writers of his period. In his lead to a Cincinnati paper from the Polo Grounds one day he opened extravagantly with "A large and intelligent audience greeted the Reds today." A fussy telegraph editor replied tartly that the press association stated the audience was slim and nondescript. To which Phelon replied: "Maclyn Arbuckle and Irvin Cobb are in the stand. They are large. I'm intelligent."

Then there was Phelon's description of a lean and lanky second baseman recruit from the briar patches, making his first appearance in city company: "He looks like the fellow who used to play the yellow box-wood clarinet in our home town band."

* * *

And it was Phelon, after a half hour's wait for ham and eggs in a Chicago depot restaurant, who barked at the waiter: "Change my order to an ultimatum."

* * *

In that masterful German film "Trapeze" there is a cafe scene with a close up of the plate revealing the size of the customer's tip. To those of us who always strain for a furtive peep at such gratuities it was a grand touch.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

She wonders why she ever married him. What could she have seen in a weak little man like that?

Yes; he's honest, and hard-working and kind; but there's nothing to him—no more fighting spunk than a mouse.

"He's always getting taken in," she snorts, "and he never can seem to make up his mind and stand up for his rights. I get so mad I sometimes wish I'd never seen him. I despise weakness, for I'm a strong woman—"

Oh, yeah? And I suppose you're thinking, sister, that you deserve a lot of laurels for that fact? Then you're thinking wrong. For I'm far from agreeing that strong women are God's greatest gift to matrimony.

Am I telling you? I am. And I'm just the girl who can, for I'm a strong woman myself; and I, too, used to glory in the fact.

I had gobs and gobs of that spunk you so admire. No job was too tough for me to tackle, no risk too great. I not only fought all my own battles but I offered, often insisted upon, fighting other people's. Frequently I started battles just so I could fight 'em.

Making-up-my-mind was another one of my big, brutal habits. You could hear me making-up-my-mind all over the place. Feebler souls might have wished to do a little determining for themselves, but they didn't stand much chance when I crashed into action.

Indeed, in my love for making-up-minds I usually went right ahead and made up theirs, as well as my own. Generally without the slightest regard for their personal inclination.

And did I do all this because I loved my fellow man and wished to serve him for his best good?

I kidded myself that I did, and I handed myself many medals for my big-hearted attitude, my courage and good sense.

BUT THE TRUTH WAS I WAS JUST A BIG BULLY, GETTING MY OWN WAY.

I liked to battle, and I liked to boss. And as long as people humored me in my favorite pastimes, applauded my battling, submitted to my bossing, I was greatly pleased and warmed up to them accordingly; but if they didn't I usually got as sore as a wet hen, and despised them heartily.

Yes, I was a strong woman, with all the highly disagreeable virtues of the breed.

But gradually—never mind how—I got wise to myself, lady, and I began to see that Us Strong Gals didn't deserve all the honors.

We made a lot of noise—but there were quieter souls whose silence was worth a million of our brawling broadcasts.

We made up our minds—but frequently we didn't have much mind to make up, and the result was a mess.

We rushed ahead and got somewhere—but we missed a lot of lovely scenery by the way.

Our victories and successes always made front page news. We saw to it that they did.

But there were failures which were nobler than our successes.

There were compromises and surrenders more beautiful than our victories.

As a matter of fact, the greatest human achievements had not been performed by the strong and ruthless. They had frequently been the contribution of the weak and the timid, the gentle, the humble and the heart-broken.

And so I've revised my opinion of myself, sister. I no longer think that we brawling broads are such a treat. Instead, I often find myself looking with envious and humbled eyes at those who have courage not to fight, wisdom enough to be foolish, strength enough to be weak and simple and trusting.

And when good fortune puts such a gentle soul in my way, I no longer sneer and hand out great, noisy gobs of advice. I thank God, instead, for a chance to listen and learn.

Isn't It So?

It's no use to know better unless you do it.

There wouldn't be worms to go around if all the birds were early.

A man lives in proportion to the number of thoughts he is alive to.

Let your conscience be your guide—but not the other fellow's.

We Want Work: Lesson From 'Mary Barton'

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The American people, we are sure, have no sympathy with the attempt of special interests seeking tariff privilege to take advantage of the nation's necessities in the matter of the balancing of the budget, to force tariff rate boosts into the tax bill. And while a tax bill that will balance the budget must be passed, it is intolerable that there should be any surrender on that point.

We want no more Tennessee Coal and Iron Company scandals—made easy by the necessities of the nation. It is now reported that President Hoover may make his protest against the incorporation of more protective tariff privileges into the tax law. Thus there is a possibility that the country is to behold the amazing spectacle of a high tariff President, more responsible than any one else for the most outrageous tariff act in history, rebuking some Democrats in Congress for insisting on making that tariff higher still. We may not understand the finesse of politics and the psychology of the mass of the people, but we suspect that the persistence of Democrats in fighting for a Republican tariff will make the Democratic party ridiculous in the eyes of the nation.

It is true that but a few Democrats are seeking to increase the tariff, but the Republicans control the major part of the press and of the agencies of publicity, and during the campaign the country will get the impression that the Democratic party is responsible.

Gov. Ritchie's severe strictures on these tariff privilege Democrats are soundly democratic—unless we are profoundly ignorant of what the Democratic party stands for.

Speaker Garner Submits a Program

Meanwhile Speaker Garner submits a program of his own. He would place $100,000,000 at the disposal of the President, to be used at his discretion in relieving suffering that is beyond the cure of the communities where it exists or of the local governmental units. This, as he shows, has been done before when the necessity did not even approach that of today.

Then he would so broaden the base of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation as to permit it to make loans to cities, counties and states requiring them for the relief of human misery where "legal and adequate security could be offered." Something of the sort was urged by the City of New York when the bill creating the corporation was pending, but there was more interest in embarrassing a Democratic city administration than in preventing the slow starvation of hundreds of thousands of its women and children.

Then, again, he would provide a billion dollar prosperity loan for building purposes that would put men to work, and to take care of the interest and sinking fund so as not to embarrass the budget, he would levy a gasoline tax of one-third of 1 per cent. This, as Rainey points out, "could not be passed on to the consumer because we have no unit of value of that amount."

The process of whittling down the prosperity loan to an amount that will be wholly inadequate goes on. But it is a happy omen when we find Congress turning its attention to the desperate needs of human beings and recognizing the responsibility of a National Government in dealing with a national crisis.

Trade Must Be Revived

There is not going to be a restoration of prosperity until something is done to revive trade through the restoration of purchasing power. President Hoover has made impossible the restoration of our lost foreign trade by his action in vetoing a bill providing for negotiations with our former customers for reciprocal arrangements to reopen the markets. Mr. Garner says:

"It is evident that the situation cannot be remedied by international negotiations to remove barriers and restrictions upon international commerce since the present administration will not permit legislation of this nature. Therefore we must consider what, if anything, can be done to improve the situation by direct action of the government."

The fact that revival depends on trade is indicated in the observation of the great banks in New York that there are no demands for loans by the big industries because they are not expanding. They are not expanding because the demand for their products does not justify it. And there are no demands for their products since there is no trade with Europe because of a stupid tariff act, and little domestic trade because millions have no purchasing power.

There Must Be a Prosperity Loan

But before Congress adjourns, it is going to do something toward creating jobs on needed public construction, or the people are going to ask each member the reason why when he goes back home to face his constituents.

Generations ago when there was untold suffering among the workers in the industrial centers of England, Mrs. Gaskell wrote a great novel, "Mary Barton," to awaken the public conscience, and Disraeli, about the same time, wrote his "Sybil" for the same purpose. Human nature then was much as it is now. One of the characters in Mrs. Gaskell's novel, offered charity, replied with feeling:

"I don't want money, child! Damn their charity and their money! I want work and it is my right. I want work."

This novel made a profound impression, for it was written from the heart by a woman who was a mother and who had looked into the pinched faces of starving children and into the anguished eyes of their parents. But there were "economists" and "conservatives" in those days who were shocked by the author's action in picturing these suffering unemployed as human beings and not as inanimate cogs in the industrial machinery. Even the Manchester Guardian, not then the liberal paper it has become, thought the book revealed a "morbid sensibility to the conditions of the operatives"; and the Edinburgh Review thought such books "likely to be mischievous in the South for the lack of stress o. artisan improvidence."

But it was "a story over which statesmen weep," which Carlyle warmly praised, and to which Walter Savage Landor paid poetic tribute:

"Some there are whose names will live
Not in the memories, but in the hearts of men;
Because those hearts they comforted and cheered,
And, when they saw God's images cast down,
Lifted them up again, and blew the dust
From the worn feature and disfigured limb."

There are so many of "God's images cast down" in this country now that the federal government dare no longer stand aloof.

There must be a prosperity loan, and provision must be made for federal help to prevent the slow or speedy starvation of American children.

A Tribute to the American Workers

The other day at a dinner a man beside me expressed his astonishment at the orderly manner in which men denied their inalienable right to work have acted, and at the absence of hysteria among the hungry. It is a fine tribute to the American workers as a class. Their self control has been superb, but they cannot go on forever living without work or bread. But we may be sure that bitterness is hidden away for the time. Mrs. Gaskell gives us a hint in her novel:

"Lamentations and tears are thrown aside as useless, but the lips are compressed for curses, and the hands clinched and ready to smite."

The jobless millions in America have earned better treatment from the National Government than they have received; they must receive the treatment they have earned before this Congress adjourns—for the "hands clinched and ready to smite" might smite next winter.
